Things That Never Die

Listen to the water-mill
Through the livelong day,
How the clicking of its wheel Wears the hours away. . . .

EDWARD DOWDEN

[1843-1913]

I said, "I will find God," and forth I went

To seek him in the clearness of the sky,

¹ In 1870, Major-General DANIEL CRAIG McCALLUM [1815-1878] published a book of verse, The Water-Mill, and Other Poems, in which the first poem was practically the same as Miss Doudney's, and caused international dispute. His poem contained the following lines:

Oh! listen to the water-mill, through all the live-long day,
As the clicking of the wheel, wears hour by hour away. . . .
The mill will never grind again with water that is past. . . .
Oh! the wasted hours of life, that have swiftly drifted by,
Alas! the good we might have done, all gone without a sigh.

Miss Doudney's poem was first published in 1864. See Burton E. Stevenson: Famous Single Poems [1923].

² Ira D. Sankey composed music for this poem, and sang it at the funeral of the Reverend Charles H. Spurgeon, Feb., 1892.

The chances and changes, the personal history of any absolute genius, draw us to watch his adventure with curiosity and inquiry, lead us on to win more of his secret and borrow more of his experience (I mean, needless to say, when we are at all critically minded); but there is something in the clear safe arrival of the poetic nature, in a given case, at the point of its free and happy exercise, that provokes, if not the cold impulse to challenge or cross-question it, at least the need of understanding so far as possible how, in a world in which difficulty and disaster are frequent, the most wavering and flickering of all fine flames has escaped extinction.

Thoughts. Stanza 2*

We meet him first in Homer's verse,
The dog by the Aegean seas;
He barks at strangers, ay, and worse,
He bites! We learn, in language terse,
That even Argos has the curse

Of fleas! ²

The Friend of Man. Stanza 3

Mountains divide us, and the waste of seas —

Yet still the blood is strong, the heart is Highland,

And we in dreams behold the Hebrides.
Canadian Boat Song, St. 2

This poem appeared in Noctes Ambrosiana, No. 46, in Blackwood's Magazine, Vol. 26, P. 400, Sept., 1829. It is generally credited to JOHN GALT [1779-1839], but JOHN WILSON ("Christopher North"), who won the first Newdigate Prize, founded in 1805, has been suggested as the author. John Gibson Lockhart, son-in-law of Sir Walter Scott, noted, on a copy of the poem in his own handwriting, that the song had been sent to him by a friend in Upper Canada. Galt, author of Annals of the Parish, was in Canada in 1824 and 1826. The poem was likewise found in the handwriting of Hugh Montgomerie [1739-1819], twelfth Earl of Eglinton, ascribed to a Gaelic origin.

Robert Louis Stevenson misquotes the second stanza of the song in The Silverado Squatters, Chap. 4. Joseph Chamberlain, the British statesman, gave Stevenson's version in a speech at Inverness.

Men will try to persuade themselves, or at least others, that they read poetry because it is a criticism of life, because it expresses the doubts and fears and thoughts and hopes of the time, because it is a substitution for religion, because it is a relief from serious work, because and because and because. As a matter of fact, they (that is to say, those of them who like it generally) read it because they like it, because it communicates an experience of half-sensual, half-intellectual pleasure to them.

*Life of Sir William Osler.
Vol. I, Chap. 11*

The desire to take medicine is perhaps the greatest feature which distinguishes man from animals.

Ibid. Chap. 14

This is yet the childhood of the world, and a supine credulity is still the most charming characteristic of man.

Ibid.

We are here to add what we can to,
not to get what we can from, Life.¹

Ibid.

To have striven, to have made an effort, to have been true to certain ideals — this alone is worth the struggle.

Ibid. Chap. 16

Humanity has but three great enemies: fever, famine and war; of these by far the greatest, by far the most terrible, is fever.

Ibid.

Though a little one, the master-word [Work] looms large in meaning. It is the open sesame to every portal, the great equalizer in the world, the true philosopher's stone which transmutes all the base metal of humanity into gold.²

Ibid. Chap. 22

Things cannot always go your way.
Learn to accept in silence the minor aggravations, cultivate the gift of taciturnity and consume your own smoke³ with an extra draught of hard work, so that those about you may not be annoyed with the dust and soot of your complaints.

erature — subtract the work of the men above forty, and while we should miss great treasures, even priceless treasures, we would practically be where we are to-day. . . . The effective, moving, vitalizing work of the world is done between the ages of twenty-five and forty.¹

Life of Sir William Osler.

Vol. I, Chap. 24

My second fixed idea is the uselessness of men above sixty years of age, and the incalculable benefit it would be in commercial, political, and in professional life if, as a matter of course, men stopped work at this age.

Ibid.

In that charming novel, "The Fixed Period," [by] Anthony Trollope, . . . the plot hinges upon the admirable scheme of a college into which at sixty men retired for a year of contemplation before a peaceful departure by chloroform. That incalculable benefits might follow such a scheme is apparent to anyone who, like myself, is nearing the limit, and who has made a careful study of the calamities which may befall men during the seventh and eighth decades.²

Ibid.

Nothing will sustain you more potently than the power to recognize in your humdrum routine, as perhaps it may be thought, the true poetry of life — the poetry of the commonplace, of the ordinary man, of the plain, toil-worn woman, with their loves and their joys, their sorrows and their griefs.

Ibid. (The Student Life)

Lift up one hand to heaven and thank your stars if they have given you the proper sense to enable you to appreciate the inconceivably droll situations in which we catch our fellow creatures.

do the day's work well and not to bother about to-morrow. . . . The second ideal has been to act the Golden Rule, as far as in me lay, toward my professional brethren and toward the patients committed to my care. And the third has been to cultivate such a measure of equanimity as would enable me to bear success with humility, the affection of my friends without pride, and to be ready when the day of sorrow and grief came to meet it with the courage befitting a man.

Life of Sir William Osler. (Farewell Dinner, May 2, 1905)

Throw all the beer and spirits into the Irish Channel, the English Channel, and the North Sea for a year, and people in England would be infinitely better. It would certainly solve all the problems with which the philanthropists, the physicians, and the politicians have to deal.¹

Ibid. Vol. II, Chap. 26

No man is really happy or safe without a hobby, and it makes precious little difference what the outside interest may be — botany, beetles or butterflies, roses, tulips or irises; fishing, mountaineering or antiquities — anything will do so long as he straddles a hobby and rides it hard.²

Ibid. Chap. 29

Nothing in life is more wonderful than faith — the one great moving force which we can neither weigh in the balance nor test in the crucible.³

Ibid. Chap. 30

In the life of a young man the most essential thing for happiness is the gift of friendship.

It is the prime duty of a woman of this terrestrial world to look well. Neatness is the asepsis of clothes.

The quest for righteousness is Oriental, the quest for knowledge, Occidental.³

Of "Americanism" of the right sort we cannot have too much. Mere vapor-

My Shadow. Stanza 1

The world is so full of a number of things,

I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings.

Happy Thought

The eternal dawn, beyond a doubt, Shall break on hill and plain,
And put all stars and candles out Ere we be young again.

To Minnie

All that I could think of, in the darkness and the cold, Was just that I was leaving home and my folks were growing old.

Christmas at Sea. Stanza 11

There are men and classes of men that stand above the common herd: the soldier, the sailor, and the shepherd not infrequently; the artist rarely; rarer still, the clergyman; the physician almost as a rule. He is the flower (such as it is) of our civilization.

Underwoods. Dedication

Generosity he has, such as is possible to those who practise an art, never to those who drive a trade; discretion, tested by a hundred secrets; tact, tried in a thousand embarrassments; and what are more important, Heracleian cheerfulness and courage.

Ibid.

Gratitude is but a lame sentiment; thanks, when they are expressed, are often more embarrassing than welcome.

The rain had cleared and the sun poured down upon us, as in procession, headed by the acolytes and priests, we bore the coffin to the grave. A semi-circle of Scotch firs formed, as it were, a little harbour for him. The breeze blew freshly, south-west by south a little westerly — a good wind, as I thought, to steer up Channel by, and one that he who would no longer feel it on his cheek, looking aloft to see if all the sails were drawing properly, must have been glad to carry when he struck soundings, passing the Wolf Rock or the Smalls after foul weather in the Bay.

Handsomely, as he who lay in it might well have said, they lowered the coffin down. The priest had left his Latin and said a prayer or two in English, and I was glad of it, for English surely was the speech the Master Mariloving with new graces of his own.

Every few years our industrial system gets the jim-jams. Capital flies to cover, factories close and labor goes tramping across the country seeking honest employment and receiving a warm welcome — from militia companies with shotted guns. Cheerful idiots begin to prattle of "over-production," the economic M. D.'s to refurbish all the old remedies, from conjure-bags to communism. They all know exactly what caused the "crisis" and what to do for it; but despite the doctors the patient usually — survives. And the M. D. who succeeds in cramming his pet panacea down its throat claims all the credit for the recovery. If you are tempted to reveal A tale to you someone has told

 It passes through these gateways three,
 Then you may tell the tale, nor fear

Answers to Nine Questions

We have no more right to consume happiness without producing it than to consume wealth without producing it.

Candida. Act I

A prosperous man of business, who probably never read anything but a newspaper since he left school.

Cashel Byron's Profession. Chap. 5

All this struggling and striving to make the world better is a great mistake; not because it isn't a good thing to improve the world if you know how to do it, but because striving and struggling is the worst way you could set about doing anything.

Ibid. Chap. 6

We don't bother much about dress and manners in England, because, as a nation we don't dress well and we've no manners.

You Never Can Tell. Act I

A family enjoying the unspeakable peace and freedom of being orphans.

Ibid. Act II

The great advantage of a hotel is that it's a refuge from home life.

Ibid.

It's well to be off with the Old Woman before you're on with the New.¹

The Philanderer. Act II

The fickleness of women I love is only equaled by the infernal constancy of the women who love me.

Ibid.

The test of a man or woman's breeding is how they behave in a quarrel.

Ibid. Act IV

People are always blaming their circumstances for what they are. I don't believe in circumstances. The people who get on in this world are the people who get up and look for the circumstances they want, and, if they can't find them, make them.

Mrs. Warren's Profession. Act II

There are no secrets better kept than the secrets that everybody guesses.

Ibid. Act III

A great devotee of the Gospel of Getting On.

Ibid. Act IV

This is the true joy in life, the being used for a purpose recognized by yourself as a mighty one; the being thoroughly worn out before you are thrown on the scrap heap; the being a force of Nature instead of a feverish selfish little clod of ailments and grievances complaining that the world will not devote itself to making you happy.

Man and Superman. Epistle Dedicatory

A lifetime of happiness! No man alive could bear it: it would be hell on earth.

Man and Superman. Act I

The more things a man is ashamed of, the more respectable he is.

Ibid.

You think that you are Ann's suitor: that you are the pursuer and she the pursued; that it is your part to woo, to persuade, to prevail, to overcome. Fool: it is you who are the pursued, the marked-down quarry, the destined prey.

Ibid. Act II

Marry Ann and at the end of a week you'll find no more inspiration in her than in a plate of muffins.

Ibid.

Home life as we understand it is no more natural to us than a cage is natural to a cockatoo.

Getting Married. Preface

In the extreme instances of reaction against convention, female murderers get sheaves of offers of marriage.

Ibid.

When two people are under the influence of the most violent, most insane, most delusive, and most transient of passions, they are required to swear that they will remain in that excited, abnormal, and exhausting condition continuously until death do them part.

Ibid.

A man is like a phonograph with half-a-dozen records. You soon get tired of them all; and yet you have to sit at table whilst he reels them off to every new visitor.

Ibid. (The Play)

In England we always let an institution strain itself until it breaks.

The whole strength of England lies in the fact that the enormous majority of the English people are snobs.

Getting Married (The Play)

You don't learn to hold your own in the world by standing on guard, but by attacking, and getting well hammered yourself.

Ibid.

Religion is a great force — the only real motive force in the world; but what you fellows don't understand is that you must get at a man through his own religion and not through yours.

Every person who owes his life to civilized society and who has enjoyed since his childhood its very costly protections and advantages should appear at reasonable intervals before a properly qualified jury to justify his existence, which should be summarily and painlessly terminated if he fails to justify it and it develops that he is a positive nuisance and more trouble than he is worth. Nothing less will really make people responsible citizens.

[1857-1924]

A work that aspires, however humbly, to the condition of art should carry its justification in every line.

The Nigger of the Narcissus.
Preface

But the artist appeals to that part of our being which is not dependent on wisdom; to that in us which is a gift and not an acquisition — and, therefore, more permanently enduring. He speaks to our capacity for delight and wonder, to the sense of mystery surrounding our lives: to our sense of pity, and beauty, and pain.

Ibid.

The ship, a fragment detached from the earth, went on lonely and swift like a small planet.

Ibid. Chap. 2

Goodbye, brothers! You were a good crowd. As good a crowd as ever fisted with wild cries the beating canvas of a heavy foresail; or tossing aloft, invisible in the night, gave back yell for yell to a westerly gale.

Ibid. Chap. 5

She strode like a grenadier, was strong and upright like an obelisk, had a beautiful face, a candid brow, pure eyes, and not a thought of her own in her head.

Tales of Unrest. The Return

What greatness had not floated on the ebb of that river [the Thames] into the mystery of an unknown earth! . . . The dreams of men, the seed of commonwealths, the germs of empires.

Heart of Darkness

Ibid. Falk: A Reminiscence

I have known the sea too long to believe in its respect for decency.

Ibid.

An elemental force is ruthlessly frank.

Typhoon. Falk: A Reminiscence

Efficiency of a practically flawless kind may be reached naturally in the struggle for bread. But there is something beyond — a higher point, a subtle and unmistakable touch of love and pride beyond mere skill; almost an inspiration which gives to all work that finish which is almost art — which is art.

The Mirror of the Sea.

The Fine Art

The East Wind, an interloper in the dominions of Westerly Weather, is an impassive-faced tyrant with a sharp poniard held behind his back for a treacherous stab.

Ibid. Rulers of East and West

The autocratic sway of the West Wind, whether forty north or forty south of the equator, is characterized by an open, generous, frank, barbarous recklessness. For he is a great autocrat, and to be a great autocrat you must be a great barbarian.

Ibid.

The air of the New World seems favorable to the art of declamation.

Nostromo. Chap. 6

There are on earth no actors too humble and obscure not to have a gallery; that gallery which envenoms the play by stealthy jeers, counsels of anger, amused comments, or words of perfidious compassion.

Chance. Part II, Chap. 4

What all men are really after is some form, or perhaps only some formula, of peace.

Under Western Eyes. Part I

A man's real life is that accorded to him in the thoughts of other men by reason of respect or natural love.

Ibid. 1

Let a fool be made serviceable according to his folly.

Ibid. 3

The belief in a supernatural source of evil is not necessary; men alone are quite capable of every wickedness.

Ibid. Part II, 4

Why should a man certain of immortality think of his life at all?

Under Western Eyes. Part II, 4

No woman is an absolute fool. . . .
No woman is ever completely deceived.

Ibid. 5

That strange impulse of indiscretion, common to men who lead secret lives, and accounting for the invariable existence of "compromising documents" in all the plots and conspiracies of history.

Ibid. Part III, 1

You can't ignore the importance of a good digestion. The joy of life . . . depends on a sound stomach, whereas a bad digestion inclines one to skepticism, incredulity, breeds black fancies and thoughts of death.

Ibid. 3

All ambitions are lawful except those which climb upward on the miseries or credulities of mankind.

A Personal Record. Preface

The sight of human affairs deserves admiration and pity. And he is not insensible who pays them the undemonstrative tribute of a sigh which is not a sob, and of a smile which is not a grin.

Ibid.

Only in men's imagination does every truth find an effective and undeniable existence. Imagination, not invention, is the supreme master of art as of life.

Ibid. Chap. 1

For Englishmen especially, of all the races of the earth, a task, any task, undertaken in an adventurous spirit acquires the merit of romance.

Ibid. Chap. 5

Only a moment; a moment of strength, of romance, of glamour — of youth! . . . A flick of sunshine upon a strange shore, the time to remember, the time for a sigh, and — goodbye! — Night — Goodbye . . . !

Youth

There is no rest for a messenger till the message is delivered.

The Rescue. Part VI, 8

I am a great foe of favouritism in public life, in private life, and even in the delicate relationship of an author to his works.

Lord Jim. Author's Note

There is a weird power in a spoken word. . . . And a word carries far — very far — deals destruction through time as the bullets go flying through space.

Ibid. Chap. 15

That faculty of beholding at a hint the face of his desire and the shape of his dream, without which the earth would know no lover and no adventurer.

Ibid. Chap. 16

Felicity, felicity — how shall I say it? — is quaffed out of a golden cup in every latitude: the flavour is with you — with you alone, and you can make it as intoxicating as you please.

Ibid.

It is when we try to grapple with another man's intimate need that we perceive how incomprehensible, wavering, and misty are the beings that share with us the sight of the stars and the warmth of the sun.

Ibid.

We wander in our thousands over the face of the earth, the illustrious and the obscure, earning beyond the seas our fame, our money, or only a crust of bread; but it seems to me that for each of us going home must be like going to render an account. We return to face our superiors, our kindred, our friends — those whom we obey, and those whom we love.

Ibid. Chap. 21

You shall judge of a man by his foes as well as by his friends.

Ibid. Chap. 34

Vanity plays lurid tricks with our memory.

Ibid. Chap. 41

Some great men owe most of their greatness to the ability of detecting in those they destine for their tools the exact quality of strength that matters for their work.

 of beauty, or serviceability, or both.
 Hence has arisen that exaltation of the defective, of which John Ruskin and William Morris were such eager spokesmen in their time. . . . The Kelmscott Press reduced the matter to an absurdity by issuing books for modern use, edited with the obsolete spelling, printed in black-letter, and bound in limp vellum fitted with thongs.

The Theory of the Leisure Class.
Chap. 6

The womanliness of woman's apparel resolves itself into the more effective hindrance to useful exertion offered by the garments peculiar to women.

Ibid. Chap. 7

Priestly vestments show, in accentuated form, all the features that have been shown to be evidence of a servile status and a vicarious life.

Ibid.

The walking-stick serves the purpose of an advertisement that the bearer's hands are employed otherwise than in useful effort, and it therefore has utility as an evidence of leisure.

Ibid. Chap. 10

The sporting man's sense of luck and chance is an inarticulate or inchoate animism . . . it implies the possibility of propitiating, or of deceiving and cajoling, or otherwise disturbing the unfolding of propensities resident in the objects which constitute the apparatus and accessories of any game of skill or chance. There are few sporting men who are not in the habit of wearing charms or talismans.

Ibid. Chap. 11

To meet the requirements of the highest economic efficiency under modern conditions, the world process must habitually be apprehended in terms of quantitative, dispassionate force and sequence.

Ibid. Chap. 12

The adoption of the cap and gown is one of the striking atavistic features of modern college life.

Ibid. Chap. 14

The classics have scarcely lost in absolute value as a voucher of scholastic respectability, since for this purpose it is only necessary that the scholar should be able to put in evidence some learning which is conventionally recognized as evidence of wasted time.

Ibid.

As felicitous an instance of futile classicism as can well be found is the conventional spelling of the English language. English orthography satisfies all the requirements of the canons of reputability under the law of conspicuous waste. It is archaic, cumbrous, and ineffective; its acquisition consumes much time and effort; failure to acquire it is easy of detection.

Without an element of the obscene there can be no true and deep aesthetic or moral conception of life. . . . It is only the great men who are truly obscene. If they had not dared to be obscene they could never have dared to be great.

Impressions and Comments

The omnipresent process of sex, as it is woven into the whole texture of our man's or woman's body, is the pattern of all the process of our life.

The New Spirit

The Normans who came over to England with William the Conqueror and constituted the proud English nobility were simply a miscellaneous set of adventurers, professional fighting men, of unknown, and no doubt for the most part undistinguished, lineage. William the Conqueror himself was the son of a woman of the people.

The Task of Social Hygiene.

Introduction

If men and women are to understand each other, to enter into each other's nature with mutual sympathy, and to become capable of genuine comradeship, the foundation must be laid in youth.

Ibid. Chap. 1

The larger our great cities grow, the more irresistible becomes the attraction which they exert on the children of the country, who are fascinated by them, as the birds are fascinated by the lighthouse or the moths by the candle.¹

Ibid. Chap. 5

An urban life saps that calm and stolid strength which is necessary for all great effort and stress, physical or intellectual.

Ibid.

Prosperity and civilization are far from being synonymous terms. The working community that is suddenly glutted by an afflux of work and wages is in exactly the same position as the savage who is suddenly enabled to fill himself with a rich mass of decaying blubber. It is prosperity, it is not civilization.

¹ It is well known that a number of eminent men have been born in London; but, in the course of a somewhat elaborate study of the origins of British men of genius, I have not been able to find that any were genuinely Londoners by descent. — A Study of British Genius

The Task of Social Hygiene.

Chap. 5

There are few among us who have not suffered from too early familiarity with the Bible and the conceptions of religion.

Ibid. Chap. 7

The German feels nothing of that sensitive jealousy with which the French seek to guard private life and the rights of the individual.

Ibid. Chap. 9

The Englishman's reverence for the individual's rights goes beyond the Frenchman's, for in France there is a tendency to subordinate the individual to the family, and in England the interests of the individual predominate.

Ibid.

Holland is one of the traditional lands of freedom; it was the home of independent intellect, of free religion, of autonomous morals, when every other country in Europe was closed to these manifestations of the spirit.

Ibid.

When Charles V retired in weariness from the greatest throne in the world to the solitude of the monastery at Yuste, he occupied his leisure for some weeks in trying to regulate two clocks. It proved very difficult. One day, it is recorded, he turned to his assistant and said: "To think that I attempted to force the reason and conscience of thousands of men into one mould, and I cannot make two clocks agree!"

Ibid.

The extension of trade is a matter of tariffs rather than of war, and in any case the trade of a country with its own acquisitions by conquest is a comparatively insignificant portion of its total trade.

Ibid. Chap. 10

So far as business and money are concerned, a country gains nothing by a successful war, even though that war involves the acquisition of immense new provinces.

The Task of Social Hygiene.
Chap. 10

Conquest brings self-conceit and intolerance, the reckless inflation and dissipation of energies. Defeat brings prudence and concentration; it ennobles and fortifies.

Ibid.

A nation's art-products and its scientific activities are not mere national property; they are international possessions, for the joy and service of the whole world. The nations hold them in trust for humanity.

Ibid.

There has never been any country at every moment so virtuous and so wise that it has not sometimes needed to be saved from itself.

Ibid.

Those persons who are burning to display heroism may rest assured that the course of social evolution will offer them every opportunity.

Ibid.

The immense value of becoming acquainted with a foreign language is that we are thereby led into a new world of tradition and thought and feeling.

Ibid. Chap. 11

While some would claim for the English the supreme poetic literature, there can be no doubt that the French own the supreme prose literature of modern Europe.

Ibid.

The family only represents one aspect, however important an aspect, of a human being's functions and activities. . . . A life is beautiful and ideal, or the reverse, only when we have taken into our consideration the social as well as the family relationship.

The by-product is sometimes more valuable than the product.

Ibid. Chap. 3

It has taken God — or Nature, if we will — unknown millions of years of painful struggle to evolve Man, and to raise the human species above that helpless bondage to reproduction which marks the lower animals.

Ibid.

All civilization has from time to time become a thin crust over a volcano of revolution.

Ibid. Chap. 7

The greatest task before civilization at present is to make machines what they ought to be, the slaves, instead of the masters of men.

Ibid.

The art of dancing stands at the source of all the arts that express themselves first in the human person. The art of building, or architecture, is the beginning of all the arts that lie outside the person; and in the end they unite.

The Dance of Life. Chap. 2

Dancing is the loftiest, the most moving, the most beautiful of the arts, because it is no mere translation or abstraction from life; it is life itself.

Ibid.

The place where optimism most flourishes is the lunatic asylum.

Ibid. Chap. 3

He who would walk sanely amid the opposing perils in the path of life always needs a little optimism; he also needs a little pessimism.

Ibid.

Thinking in its lower grades is comparable to paper money, and in its higher forms it is a kind of poetry.

Ibid.

In philosophy, it is not the attainment of the goal that matters, it is the things that are met with by the way.

The Dance of Life. Chap. 2

Every man of genius sees the world at a different angle from his fellows, and there is his tragedy.

Ibid.

The mathematician has reached the highest rung on the ladder of human thought.

Ibid.

The verse of every young poet, however original he may afterwards grow, usually has plainly written across it the rhythmic signature of some great master. . . . The same thing happens with prose, but the rhythm of the signature is less easy to hear.

Ibid. Chap. 4

The most obviously beautiful things in the world of Nature are birds and flowers and the stones we call precious.

Ibid.

All the conventional rules of the construction of speech may be put aside if a writer is thereby enabled to follow more closely and lucidly the form and process of his thought.

Ibid.

If at some period in the course of civilization we seriously find that our science and our religion are antagonistic, then there must be something wrong either with our science or with our religion.

Ibid. Chap. 5

A man must not swallow more beliefs than he can digest.

Ibid.

The Promised Land always lies on the other side of a wilderness.

Ibid.

What we call "morals" is simply blind obedience to words of command.

Ibid. Chap. 6

There is no occasion for any one who is told that he has written a "moral" book to be unduly elated, or when he is told that his book is "immoral" to be unduly cast down. The significance of these adjectives is strictly limited. Neither the one nor the other can have more than the faintest effect on the march of the great compact majority of the social army.

The Dance of Life. Chap. 6

The world's greatest thinkers have often been amateurs; for high thinking is the outcome of fine and independent living, and for that a professorial chair offers no special opportunities.

Ibid.

For the artist life is always a discipline, and no discipline can be without pain. That is so even of dancing, which of all the arts is most associated in the popular mind with pleasure. To learn to dance is the most austere of disciplines.

Ibid.

The methods of statistics are so variable and uncertain, so apt to be influenced by circumstance, that it is never possible to be sure that one is operating with figures of equal weight.

Ibid. Chap. 7

The prevalence of suicide, without doubt, is a test of height in civilization; it means that the population is winding up its nervous and intellectual system to the utmost point of tension and that sometimes it snaps.¹

Ibid.

The more rapidly a civilization progresses, the sooner it dies for another to arise in its place.

Ibid.

The sun and the moon and the stars would have disappeared long ago — as even their infinitely more numerous analogues on the earth beneath are likely to disappear — had they happened to be within the reach of predatory human hands.

Ibid.

Had there been a Lunatic Asylum in the suburbs of Jerusalem, Jesus Christ would infallibly have been shut up in it at the outset of his public career. That interview with Satan on a pinnacle of the Temple would alone have damned him, and everything that happened after could but have confirmed the diagnosis. The whole religious complexion of the modern world is due to the absence from Jerusalem of a Lunatic Asylum.

KENNETH GRAHAME

[1859-1932]

As a rule, indeed, grown-up people are fairly correct on matters of fact; it is in the higher gift of imagination that they are so sadly to seek.

The Golden Age. The Finding of the Princess

A man can stand very much in the cause of love: poverty, aunts, rivals, barriers of every sort, — all these only serve to fan the flame. But personal ridicule is a shaft that reaches the very vitals.

Ibid. "Young Adam Cupid"

The year was in its yellowing time, and the face of Nature a study in old gold.

Ibid. A Harvesting

Those who painfully and with bleeding feet have scaled the crags of mastery over musical instruments have yet their loss in this, — that the wild joy of strumming has become a vanished sense.

Ibid.

I began to like this man. He answered your questions briefly and to the point, and never tried to be funny. I felt I could be confidential with him.

Ibid. The Roman Road

Monkeys, who very sensibly refrain from speech, lest they should be set to earn their livings.

Ibid. "Lusisti Satis"

Grown-up people really ought to be more careful. Among themselves it may seem but a small thing to give their word and take back their word.

The Magic Ring

There is nothing — absolutely nothing — half so much worth doing as simply messing about in boats, . . . or with boats. . . . In or out of 'em, it doesn't matter.

The Wind in the Willows. Chap. I Villagers all, this frosty tide, Let your doors swing open wide, Though wind may follow, and snow be-

Yet draw us in by your fire to bide;
Joy shall be yours in the morning!

Loveliest of trees, the cherry now Is hung with bloom along the bough.

A Shropshire Lad. II

Now, of my threescore years and ten, Twenty will not come again,
And take from seventy springs a score,
It only leaves me fifty more.

Ibid.

Clay lies still, but blood's a rover; Breath's a ware that will not keep.
Up, lad: when the journey's over There'll be time enough to sleep.

Ibid. IV, Reveille

The sun moves always west;
The road one treads to labour Will lead one home to rest,
And that will be the best.

Ibid. VII

If the heats of hate and lust
In the house of flesh are strong;
Let me mind the house of dust
Where my sojourn shall be long.

Ibid. XII

When I was one-and-twenty
I heard a wise man say,
"Give crowns and pounds and guineas
But not your heart away;
Give pearls away and rubies
But keep your fancy free."
But I was one-and-twenty,
No use to talk to me.

Ibid. XIII

"The heart out of the bosom Was never given in vain;
'Tis paid with sighs a-plenty And sold for endless rue."

And I am two-and-twenty,
And Oh, 'tis true, 'tis true.

A Shropshire Lad. XIII

His folly has not fellow Beneath the blue of day That gives to man or woman
His heart and soul away.

Ibid. XIV

To-day, the road all runners come, Shoulder-high, we bring you home,
And set you at your threshold down, Townsmen of a stiller town.

Ibid. XIX, To an Athlete Dying Young

And silence sounds no worse than cheers
After earth has stopped the ears.

Ibid.

That is the land of lost content,
I see it shining plain,
The happy highways where I went
And cannot come again.

Ibid. XL

Oh, 'tis jesting, dancing, drinking Spins the heavy world around.
If young hearts were not so clever,
Oh, they would be young for ever:
Think no more; 'tis only thinking Lays lads underground.

Ibid. XLIX

With rue my heart is laden For golden friends I had,
For many a rose-lipt maiden
And many a lightfoot lad.

Ibid. LIV

By brooks too broad for leaping
The lightfoot boys are laid.

Ibid.

And cowards' funerals, when they

Are not wept so well at home, Therefore, though the best is bad, Stand and do the best, my lad.

Ibid. LVI, The Day of Battle

Why, if 'tis dancing you would be,
There's brisker pipes than poetry.

Ibid. LXII

Oh many a peer of England brews Livelier liquor than the Muse, And malt does more than Milton can
To justify God's ways to man.

Ale, man, ale's the stuff to drink
For fellows whom it hurts to think.

A Shropshire Lad. LXII

Oh, I have been to Ludlow fair And left my necktie God knows where,
And carried half way home, or near,
Pints and quarts of Ludlow beer.

Ibid.

Luck's a chance, but trouble's sure, I'd face it as a wise man would,
And train for ill and not for good.

Ibid.

Mithridates, he died old.

Ibid.

We'll to the woods no more,
The laurels all are cut,¹

Followed their mercenary calling And took their wages and are dead.

*Last Poems. XXXVII, Epitaph on an Army of Mercenaries*¹

Oh stay with company and mirth
And daylight and the air;
Too full already is the grave Of fellows that were good and brave And died because they were.

Ibid. XXXVIII

They say my verse is sad: no wonder;
Its narrow measure spans Tears of eternity, and sorrow, Not mine, but man's.

More Poems [1936]

The thoughts of others
Were light and fleeting,

More Poems [1936]

XLVIII, Alta Quies

I was brought up in the Church of England and in the High Church party, which is much the best religion I have ever come across. But Lemprière's "Classical Dictionary," read when I was eight, made me prefer paganism to Christianity; I abandoned Christianity at thirteen, and became an atheist at twenty-one.

Autobiographical note written for a French translation of his poems

I am not a pessimist but a peyorist (as George Eliot said she was not an optimist but a meliorist); and that philosophy is founded on my observation of the world, not on anything so trivial and irrelevant as personal history. Secondly, I did not begin to write poetry in earnest until the really emotional part of my life was over; and my poetry, so far as I could make out, sprang chiefly from physical causes, such as a relaxed sore throat during my most prolific period, the first five months of 1895.

Ibid.

Good literature continually read for pleasure must, let us hope, do some good to the reader: must quicken his perception though dull, and sharpen his discrimination though blunt, and mellow the rawness of his personal opinions.

*The Name and Nature of Poetry*¹

Poems very seldom consist of poetry and nothing else; and pleasure can be derived also from their other ingredients.

Ibid.

Good religious poetry, whether in Keble or Dante or Job, is likely to be most justly appreciated and most discriminatingly relished by the undevout.

Ibid.

¹ The Leslie Stephen Lecture, delivered at Cambridge University, May 9, 1933.

Even when poetry has a meaning, as it usually has, it may be inadvisable to draw it out. . . . Perfect understanding will sometimes almost extinguish pleasure.

The Name and Nature of Poetry

Experience has taught me, when I am shaving of a morning, to keep watch over my thoughts, because, if a line of poetry strays into my memory, my skin bristles so that the razor ceases to act. . . . The seat of this sensation is the pit of the stomach.

Ibid.

I have seldom written poetry unless I was rather out of health, and the experience, though pleasurable, was generally agitating and exhausting.

Ibid.

I can no longer expect to be revisited by the continuous excitement under which in the early months of 1895 I wrote the greater part of my other book [A Shropshire Lad].

Last Poems, Preface [1922]

ELBERT HUBBARD

[1859-1915]

It is not book learning young men need, nor instruction about this and that, but a stiffening of the vertebrae which will cause them to be loyal to a trust, to act promptly, concentrate their energies, do a thing — "carry a message to Garcia."¹

*A Message to Garcia*²

The man who is anybody and who does anything is surely going to be criticized, vilified, and misunderstood. This is a part of the penalty for greatness, and every great man understands it; and understands, too, that it is no proof of greatness. The final proof of greatness lies in being able to endure contumely without resentment.

Get Out or Get in Line

If you work for a man, in heaven's name work for him! If he pays you wages that supply you your bread and butter, work for him — speak well of him, think well of him, stand by him and stand by the institution he represents.

JEROME KLAPKA JEROME

[1859-1927]

Let your boat of life be light, packed with only what you need — a homely home and simple pleasures, one or two friends, worth the name, some one to love and some one to love you,¹ a cat, a dog, and a pipe or two, enough to eat and enough to wear, and a little more than enough to drink; for thirst is a dangerous thing.

Three Men in a Boat. Chap. 3

Fox-terriers are born with about four times as much original sin in them as other dogs.

Ibid. Chap. 13

They [bagpipes] appear to be a trying instrument to perform upon. You have to get enough breath for the whole tune before you start.

Ibid. Chap. 14

It is in the circumstantial detail, the embellishing touches of probability, the general air of scrupulous — almost of pedantic — veracity, that the experienced angler is seen.

Ibid. Chap. 17

"Nothing, so it seems to me," said the stranger, "is more beautiful than the love that has weathered the storms of life. . . . The love of the young for the young, that is the beginning of life. But the love of the old for the old, that is the beginning of — of things longer."

It is to be something very different believe in loveliness, to believe in belief; it is to be so little that the elves can reach to whisper in your ear; it is to turn pumpkins into coaches, and mice into horses, lowness into loftiness, and nothing into everything, for each child has its fairy godmother in its soul.

The Little Minister. Chap. 3

If it's heaven for climate, it's hell for company.

Ibid.

It's a weary world, and nobody bides in't.

Ibid. Chap. 4

Has it ever struck you that the trouts bite best on the Sabbath? God's crit-ters tempting decent men.

Ibid. Chap. 8

We should be slower to think that the man at his worst is the real man, and certain that the better we are ourselves the less likely is he to be at his worst in our company. Every time he talks away his own character before us he is signifying contempt for ours.

Ibid. Chap. 9

You canna expect to be baith grand and comfortable.

Ibid. Chap. 10

A house is never still in darkness to those who listen intently; there is a whispering in distant chambers, an unearthly hand presses the snib of the window, the latch rises. Ghosts were created when the first man woke in the night.

The Little White Bird. Chap. 1

Shall we make a new rule of life from tonight: always to try to be a little kinder than is necessary?

Ibid. Chap. 4

The only ghosts, I believe, who creep into this world, are dead young mothers, returned to see how their children fare. There is no other inducement great enough to bring the departed back.

Ibid.

She was the thing we call romance, which lives in the little hut beyond the blue haze of the pine-woods.

Ibid. Chap. 9

I am in danger, I see, of being included among the whimsical fellows.

Ibid.

Every maid, I say, is for him who can know her. The others had but followed the glamour in which she walked, but I had pierced it and found the woman.

Ibid.

The reason birds can fly and we can't is simply that they have perfect faith, for to have faith is to have wings.

Ibid. Chap. 14

Poets are people who despise money except what you need for today.

Ibid. Chap. 15

When a great man dies — and this was one of the greatest since Shakespeare — the immortals await him at the top of the nearest hill.

 O great ensample, where our sons

Too proud for tears, their birthright

Heirs of the Island Race!

In Memoriam: The Scott Antarctic Expedition, 1912. Stanza 4

Ye that have faith to look with fearless eyes

Beyond the tragedy of a world at strife,

And trust that out of night and death shall rise

The dawn of ampler life;

Rejoice, whatever anguish rend your heart,

That God has given you for a priceless dower,

To live in these great times and have your part

In Freedom's crowning hour;

That you may tell your sons who see the light

High in the heavens — their heritage to take —

"I saw the powers of Darkness put to flight,

I saw the Morning break."

The Gift

To draw him thence away:
Only my day is dim,
Only I long for him,
Where is my friend to-day?

My Friend

Chinese poetry is of all poetry I know the most human and the least symbolic or romantic. It contemplates life just as it presents itself, without any veil of ideas, any rhetoric or sentiment; it simply clears away the obstruction which habit has built up between us and the beauty of things.

India, China, and Japan. Page 47*

Consider the American continent! How simple it is! How broad! How large! How grand in design! A strip of coast, a range of mountains, a plain, a second range, a second strip of coast! That is all! Contrast the complexity of Europe, its lack of symmetry, its variety, irregularity, disorder and caprice! The geography of the two continents already foreshadows the differences in their civilizations.

A Modern Symposium

The United States of America — the greatest potential force, material, moral, and spiritual, in the world.

The Choice Before Us. Chap. 1

To the man who has the religion of peace, the supreme value is love. To the man who has the religion of war, the supreme value is strife.

Ibid. Chap. 3

Government is everywhere to a great extent controlled by powerful minorities, with an interest distinct from that of the mass of the people.

Ibid. Chap. 4

The true way for one civilization to "conquer" another is for it to be so obviously superior in this or that point that others desire to imitate it.

Ibid. Chap. 5

War is not "inevitable," but proceeds from definite and removable causes.

The Choice Before Us. Chap. 9

Nations are quite capable of starving every other side of life — education, sanitation, housing, public health, everything that contributes to life, physical, intellectual, moral, and spiritual, in order to maintain their armaments.

Ibid. Chap. 11

Every kind of discrimination is a protection of the incompetent against the competent, with the result that the motive to become competent is taken away.

Ibid. Chap. 12

What we commonly have in our mind when we speak of religion is a definite set of doctrines, of a more or less metaphysical character, formulated in a creed and supported by an organization distinct from the state.

The Greek View of Life. Chap. 1, Sect. 1

A fundamental, and as many believe, the most essential part of Christianity, is its doctrine of reward and punishment in the world beyond; and a religion which had nothing at all to say about this great enigma we should hardly feel to be a religion at all.

Ibid. Sect. 11

All modern societies aim, to this extent at least, at equality, that their tendency, so far as it is conscious and avowed, is not to separate off a privileged class of citizens, set free by the labour of others to live the perfect life, but rather to distribute impartially to all the burdens and advantages of the state, so that every one shall be at once a labourer for himself and a citizen of the state.

Ibid. Chap. 2, Sect. 12

Dissatisfaction with the world in which we live and determination to realize one that shall be better, are the prevailing characteristics of the modern spirit.

The young man was given leave to take the Sultan's horse and fly; and when he was gone the Sultan went down indignantly into the garden, and found Death still there. "How dare you make threatening gestures at my favourite?" he cried; but Death, astonished, answered: "I assure your Majesty I did not threaten him. The human race, in its intellectual life, is organized like the bees: the masculine soul is a worker, sexually atrophied, and essentially dedicated to impersonal and universal arts; the feminine is a queen, infinitely fertile, omnipresent in its brooding industry, but passive and abounding in intuitions

Dialogues in Limbo. III

Beauty is pleasure regarded as the quality of a thing.

The Sense of Beauty. On Nature of Beauty

The infinity which moves us is the sense of multiplicity in uniformity. Accordingly, things which have enough multiplicity, as the lights of a city seen across water, have an effect similar to that of the stars, if less intense; whereas a star, if alone, because the multiplicity is lacking, makes a wholly different impression.

Ibid. On Form

Beauty as we feel it is something indescribable: what it is or what it means can never be said.

say that it is a prodigious incantation.
There are tones that call up all ghosts of youth and joy and tenderness; — there are tones that evoke all phantom pains of perished passion; — there are tones that revive all dead sensations of majesty and might and glory, — all expired exultations, — all forgotten magnanimities. Well may the influence of music seem inexplicable to the man who idly dreams that his life began less than a hundred years ago! He who has been initiated into the truth knows that to every ripple of melody, to every billow of harmony, there answers within him, out of the Sea of Death and Birth, some eddying immeasurable of ancient pleasure and pain.

scourged with the thing called Shame.

*The Last of the Light Brigade.
Stanza 8*

God gives all men all earth to love,
But since man's heart is small, Ordains for each one spot shall prove Belovèd over all.

Sussex. Stanza 12

A fool there was and he made his prayer
(Even as you and I!)

To a rag and a bone and a hank of hair (We called her the woman who did not care)

But the fool he called her his lady fair —

The Vampire. Stanza 1

Oh, the years we waste and the tears we waste

And the work of our head and hand Belong to the woman who did not know . . .

And did not understand.

Ibid. Stanza 2

When Earth's last picture is painted, and the tubes are twisted and dried,

When the oldest colours have faded, and the youngest critic has died,

We shall rest, and, faith, we shall need it — lie down for an æon or two,

Till the Master of All Good Workmen shall put us to work anew.

When Earth's Last Picture Is Painted. Stanza 1

And only the Master shall praise us, and only the Master shall blame;

And no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame;

But each for the joy of the working, and each, in his separate star,

Shall draw the Thing as he sees It for the God of Things as They Are!

Ibid. Stanza 3

Oh, East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet, Till Earth and Sky stand presently at God's great Judgment Seat.

But there is neither East nor West, Border, nor Breed, nor Birth,

When two strong men stand face to face, though they come from the ends of the earth!

But oh, beware my Country, when my Country grows polite!

Et Dona Ferentes. Stanza 11

A Tinker out of Bedford,

A vagrant oft in quod,

A private under Fairfax,

A minister of God, —

Two hundred years and thirty Ere Armageddon came

His single hand portrayed it,

And Bunyan was his name!

The Holy War. Stanza 1

Broke to every known mischance, lifted over all

By the light sane joy of life, the buckler of the Gaul;

Furious in luxury, merciless in toil.

France [1913]

Strictest judge of her own worth, gentlest of man's mind,

Creation's cry goes up on high

From age to cheated age:

"Send us the men who do the work

For which they draw the wage!"

The Wage-Slaves. Stanza 3

This is our lot if we live so long and labour unto the end —

That we outlive the impatient years and the much too patient friend:

And because we know we have breath in our mouth and think we have thoughts in our head,

We shall assume that we are alive, whereas we are really dead.

It is their care that the gear engages; it is their care that the switches lock.

Ibid. Stanza 2

Raise ye the stone or cleave the wood¹ to make a path more fair or flat; Lo, it is black already with blood some Son of Martha spilled for that!

Not as a ladder from Earth to Heaven, not as a witness to any creed, But simple service simply given to his

This new ship here, is fitted according to the reported increase of knowledge among mankind. Namely, she is cumbered, end to end, with bells and trumpets and clocks and wires which, it has been told to me, can call Voices out of the air or the waters to con the ship while her crew sleep. But sleep Thou lightly, O Nakhoda! [Captain]. It has not yet been told to me that the Sea has ceased to be the Sea.

Foreword to the Publisher [1935]

Something of Myself. Chap. 8 (Posthumous autobiography, 1937)

LOGAN PEARSALL SMITH

[1865-]

I rang the bell as of old; as of old I gazed at the great shining Door and waited. But, alas! that flutter and beat of the wild heart, that delicious Doorstep Terror — it was gone; and with it dear, fantastic, panic-stricken Youth had rung the bell, flitted around the corner and vanished for ever.

Trivia. On the Doorstep

'For the Pen,' said the Vicar; and in the sententious pause which followed I felt that I would offer any gifts of gold to avert or postpone the solemn, inevitable, and yet, as it seemed to me, perfectly appalling statement that 'the Pen is mightier than the Sword.'

Ibid. In Church

What a bore it is, waking up in the morning always the same person. I wish I were unflinching and emphatic, and had big, bushy eyebrows and a Message for the Age. I wish I were a deep Thinker, or a great Ventriloquist.

Ibid. Green Ivory

Enshrined in a box of white pasteboard I keep upstairs a black ceremonial object: it's my last link with Christendom and grave Custom: only on sacred occasions does it make its appearance, only at some great tribal dance of my race. To pageants of Woe I march with it, or of the hugest Felicity: at great Hallelujahs of Wedlock, or at last Valedictions; I hold it bareheaded as I bow before altars and tombs.

Ibid. The Fetish

But when in modern books, reviews, and thoughtful magazines I read about the Needs of the Age, its Complex Questions, its Dismays, Doubts, and Spiritual Agonies, I feel an impulse to go out and comfort that bewildered Epoch, to wipe away its tears, still its cries, and speak edifying words of Consolation to it.

Ibid. My Mission

And as at night I went past the Abbey, saw its walls towering high and solemn among the Autumn stars, I pictured to myself the white population in the vast darkness of its interior — all that hushed people of Heroes — ; not dead, I would think them, but animated with a still kind of life, and at last, after all their intolerable toils, the sounding tumult of battle, and perilous sea-paths, resting there, tranquil and satisfied and glorious, amid the epitaphs and allegorical figures of their tombs; — those high-piled, trophied, shapeless Abbey tombs, that long ago they toiled for, and laid down their gallant lives to win.

Trivia. The Abbey at Night

There are two things to aim at in life: first, to get what you want; and, after that, to enjoy it. Only the wisest of mankind achieve the second.

Afterthoughts [1931]

Happiness is a wine of the rarest vintage, and seems insipid to a vulgar taste.

Ibid.

How awful to reflect that what people say of us is true!

Ibid.

Solvency is entirely a matter of temperament and not of income.

Ibid.

That we should practise what we preach is generally admitted; but anyone who preaches what he and his hearers practise must incur the gravest moral disapprobation.

Ibid.

It is almost always worth while to be cheated; people's little frauds have an interest which more than repays what they cost us.

Ibid.

'Well, for my part,' they say, 'I cannot see the charm of Mrs. Jones.'

'Is it not just conceivable,' I feel inclined to answer, 'that Mrs. Jones hasn't tried to charm you?'

Ibid.

Why are happy people not afraid of Death, while the insatiable and the unhappy so abhor that grim feature?

Ibid.

When they come downstairs from their Ivory Towers, Idealists are apt to walk straight into the gutter.

Ibid.

The indefatigable pursuit of an unattainable Perfection, even though it consist in nothing more than in the pounding of an old piano, is what alone gives a meaning to our life on this unavailing star.

Ibid.

Eat with the Rich, but go to the play with the Poor, who are capable of Joy.

Afterthoughts [1931]

We need new friends; some of us are cannibals who have eaten their old friends up: others must have ever-renewed audiences before whom to re-enact an ideal version of their lives.

Ibid.

A best-seller is the gilded tomb of a mediocre talent.

Ibid.

What I like in a good author is not what he says, but what he whispers.

Ibid.

People say that life is the thing, but I prefer reading.

Ibid.

Most of all I envy the octogenarian poet ¹ who joined three words —

'Go, lovely Rose' — so happily together, that he left his name to float down through Time on the wings of a phrase and a flower.

Ibid.

Thank heavens, the sun has gone in, and I don't have to go out and enjoy it.

Ibid.

What with its crude awakenings can youth know of the rich returns of awareness to elderly people from their afternoon naps; of their ironic thoughts and long retrospections, and the sweetness they taste of not being dead?

Ibid.

How I should like to distil my disesteem of my contemporaries into prose so perfect that all of them would have to read it!

Ibid.

Unsaleability is almost the hallmark, in modern times, of quality in writing . . . the enormous and half-educated publics of present-day England and America, though welcoming the novels of our famous novelists, have as a rule acclaimed as masterpieces books that were soon forgotten, while ignoring at first all that was exquisite and rare.

[1866—]

Romantic plays with happy endings are almost of necessity inferior in artistic value to true tragedies. Not, one would hope, simply because they end happily; happiness in itself is certainly not less beautiful than grief; but because a tragedy in its great moments can generally afford to be sincere, while romantic plays live in an atmosphere of ingenuity and make-believe.

Preface to The Iphigenia in Tauris of Euripides

The enemy has no definite name, though in a certain degree we all know him. He who puts always the body before the spirit, the dead before the living; who makes things only in order to sell them; who has forgotten that there is such a thing as truth, and measures the world by advertisement or by money; who daily defiles the beauty that surrounds him and makes vulgar the tragedy.

The Manuscript Roller

JOHN GALSWORTHY

[1867-1933]

Justice is a machine that, when some one has once given it the starting push, rolls on of itself.

Justice. Act II

There is nothing more tragic in life than the utter impossibility of changing what you have done.

Ibid.

You don't know what marriage is. Day after day, year after year. It's no use being sentimental — for people brought up as we are to have different manners is worse than to have different souls. . . . It's the little things.

The Eldest Son. Act II

You called me a damned Jew. My race was old when you were all savages. I am proud to be a Jew.¹

Loyalties. Act II, Sc. 1

Public opinion's always in advance of the Law.

Windows. Act I

The value of a sentiment is the amount of sacrifice you are prepared to make for it.

Ibid. Act II

For a man that can't see an inch into human nature, give me a psychological novelist.

Ibid.

Love is no hot-house flower, but a wild plant, born of a wet night, born of an hour of sunshine; sprung from wild seed, blown along the road by a wild wind. A wild plant that, when it blooms by chance within the hedge of our gardens, we call a flower; and when it blooms outside we call a weed; but, flower or weed, whose scent and colour are always wild!

The Man of Property. Part II, Chap. 4

By the cigars they smoke, and the composers they love, ye shall know the texture of men's souls.

Indian Summer of a Forsythe. Chap. 1

A man of action, forced into a state of thought, is unhappy until he can get out of it.

Maid in Waiting. Chap. 3

¹ In his Reminiscences of Sixty Years in the National Metropolis, BENJAMIN PERLEY POORE [1820-1887] quotes this reply of Senator Judah P. Benjamin [1818-1884] to a Senator of German extraction who taunted him with being a Jew: "The gentleman will please remember that when his half-civilized ancestors were hunting the wild boar in the forests of Silesia, mine were the Princes of the earth."

We were running naked and staining ourselves with woad in our woods, when the looms of India and China were producing the delicate fabrics we seek now to imitate. — OLIVE SCHREINER: From Man to Man, Chap. 7

Politicians are marvels of energy and principle when they're out of office, but when they get in, they simply run behind the machine.

Maid in Waiting. Chap. 5

There's just one rule for politicians all over the world: Don't say in Power what you say in Opposition; if you do, you only have to carry out what the other fellows have found impossible.

Ibid. Chap. 7

One's eyes are what one is, one's mouth what one becomes.

Flowering Wilderness. Chap. 2

She had that peculiar feeling, experienced by all at times, of having once been someone else, which accounts for so much belief in the transmigration of souls.

Ibid. Chap. 11

Over the River. Chap. 1

He ordered himself a dozen oysters; but, suddenly remembering that the month contained no "r," changed them to a fried sole.¹

The White Monkey. Part III, Chap. 7

It has often been remarked that the breakfast-tables of people who avow themselves indifferent to what the Press may say of them are garnished by all the newspapers on the morning when there is anything to say.

W. COMPTON LEITH

What song the Sirens sang? . . .
They sang of all that is above fulfilment and beyond clear vision; of the immeasurable, the uncontained, the half-imagined; of that which is touched

Ibid. Chap. 14

A gifted small girl has explained that pins are a great means of saving life, "by not swallowing them."

Dramatic Values

Germany lay at our feet, a world's wonder of downfall, a very Lucifer, fallen, broken, bereaved beyond all the retributive griefs which Greek tragedy shows you afflicting the great who were insolent, wilful, and proud. But it was not enough for our small epicures of revenge. They wanted to twist the enemy's wrists, where he lay bound, and to run pins into his eyes. And they had the upper hand of us now. The soldiers could only look on while the scurvy performance dragged itself out till the meanest of treaties was signed at Versailles.

Disenchantment. Chap. 13 [1922]

"The freedom of Europe," "The war to end war," "The overthrow of militarism," "The cause of civilization" — most people believe so little now in anything or anyone that they would find it hard to understand the simplicity and intensity of faith with which these phrases were once taken among our troops, or the certitude felt by hundreds of thousands of men who are now dead that if they were killed their monument would be a new Europe not soured or soiled with the hates and greeds of the old.

Among the mind's powers is one that comes of itself to many children and artists. It need not be lost, to the end of his days, by anyone who has ever had it. This is the power of taking delight in a thing, or rather in anything, everything, not as a means to some other end, but just because it is what it is, as the lover dotes on whatever may be the traits of the beloved object. A child in the full health of his mind will put his hand flat on the summer turf, feel it, and give a little shiver of private glee at the elastic firmness of the globe.

Disenchantment. Chap. 15

All dullness is in the mind; it comes out thence and diffuses itself over everything round the dull person, and then he terms everything dull, and thinks himself the victim of the impact of dull things. In stupid rich people, in boys and girls deadeningly taught at dead-alive schools, in all disappointed weaklings and in declining nations, this loss of power to shed anything but dullness upon what one sees and hears is common enough.

Ibid.

The paradoxes of conduct begin to twinkle into sight; sugar is good, but there is a time to refrain from taking it though you can; a lie will easily get you out of a scrape, and yet, strangely and beautifully, rapture possesses you when you have taken the scrape and left out the lie.

All dream and unaccountable desire; Crawling, but pestered with the thought of wings;

Spreading through every inch of earth's old mire

Mystical hanker after something higher.

The Menagerie. Stanza 19

Shrill and high, newsboys cry
The worst of the city's infamy.

In New York. Stanza 4

The roaring street is hung for miles With fierce electric fire.

WILLIAM HENRY OGILVIE

[1869—]

Ragged, uncomely, and old and gray,
A woman walked in a northern town,
And through the crowd as she wound her way

One saw her loiter and then stoop down,

Putting something away in her old torn gown.

A Royal Heart. Stanza 1

"It's broken glass,"

She said: "I hae lifted it frae the street To be oot o' the road o' the bairnies' feet!"

Ibid. Stanza 3

The real ones, the right ones, the straight ones and the true,

The pukka, peerless sportsmen — their numbers are but few;

The men who keep on playing though the sun be in eclipse,

The men who go on losing with a laugh upon their lips.

The True Sportsman

When the last fence looms up, I am ready

And I hope when the rails of it crack, There'll be nothing in front but the master,

The huntsman, the fox and the pack.

An Old Story

Life is the game that must be played: This truth at least, good friends, we
know;

So live and laugh, nor be dismayed
As one by one the phantoms go.

Ballade by the Fire. Envoy

The songs of one who strove to play
The broken flutes of Arcady.

Ballade of Broken Flutes

There be two men of all mankind That I'm forever thinking on:

They chase me everywhere I go, — Melchizedek, Ucalegon.

Two Men

Like dead, remembered footsteps on old floors.

The Pity of the Leaves

Oh for a poet — for a beacon bright To rift this changeless glimmer of dead gray;

To spirit back the Muses, long astray,
And flush Parnassus with a newer light.

Sonnet

Look at a branch, a bird, a child, a rose, Or anything God ever made that grows, —

Nor let the smallest vision of it slip, Till you may read, as on Belshazzar's wall,

The glory of eternal partnership.

Sonnet

And thus we die, Still searching, like poor old astronomers

Who totter off to bed and go to sleep
To dream of untriangulated stars.

Penrod was doing something very unusual and rare, something almost never accomplished except by coloured people or by a boy in school on a spring

He was merely a state of being.

Penrod. Chap. 8

There are two things that will be be-of them is that he has taken to drink.

Ibid. Chap. 10

They were upon their great theme:
"When I get to be a man!" Being human, though boys, they considered their present estate too commonplace to West Sussex Drinking Song.

Chorus

A lovely river, all alone,
She lingers in the hills and holds A hundred little towns of stones, Forgotten in the western wolds.

The Evenlode

Don poor at Bed and worse at Table, Don pinched, Don starved, Don miserable;

Don stuttering, Don with roving eyes, Don nervous, Don of crudities. . . .
Don middle-class, Don sycophantic, Don dull, Don brutish, Don pedantic;
Don hypocritical, Don bad,
Don furtive, Don three-quarters mad;
Don (since a man must make an end),
Don that shall never be my friend.

Lines to a Don

The moon on the one hand, the dawn
on the other:

The moon is my sister, the dawn is my brother.

The moon on my left and the dawn on my right.

My brother, good morning: my sister, good night.

The Early Morning

The great hills of the South Country

They stand along the sea;

And it's there walking in the high woods

That I could wish to be,
And the men that were boys when I was a boy

Walking along with me.

The South Country. Stanza 2

If I ever become a rich man, Or if ever I grow to be old,
I will build a house with deep thatch

To shelter me from the cold, And there shall the Sussex songs be sung

And the story of Sussex told.

The South Country. Stanza 9
a boy

Shall sit and drink with me.

Duncton Hill. Stanza 1

They say that in the unchanging place,
Where all we loved is always dear,
We meet our mornings face to face
And find at last our twentieth year.

Dedicatory Ode

From quiet homes and first beginning,
Out to the undiscovered ends, There's nothing worth the wear of winning

But laughter and the love of friends.

A poor life this if, full of care,
 We have no time to stand and stare.

Leisure

They sniffed, poor things, for their green fields,

They cried so loud I could not sleep:
 For fifty thousand shillings down

I would not sail again with sheep.

Sheep. Stanza 5

So every time we passed it by,
 Sailing to England's slaughter-house, Eight ragged sheep-men — tramps and

'The mighty fleet of Wren, with their topgallants and mainsails of stone.

The nautical simile leaps to the mind at the sight of Wren's white spires and towers, and it is appropriate, too, to the material in which Wren worked. Portland stone is a marine deposit of the Jurassic period before Britain first at Heaven's command arose from out the azure main. Its beds are full of fossils of marine creatures, cockles, sea-urchins, starfish, and oysters. You can see shell imprints on the freshly cut whitbed stone on the top of the new Bush Building, and you can see 'horses' heads' — as certain shell fossils are called by masons — on the weather-beaten south parapet of St. Paul's. You can see and feel the shells projecting from the plinth of King Charles's statue at Charing Cross. It is a strange thought that the majesty of the capital of this sea-joined empire should come itself from beneath the sea. How could our poets have missed such a theme?

Have faith in Massachusetts. In some unimportant detail some other States may surpass her, but in the general results, there is no place on earth where the people secure, in larger measure, the blessings of organized govern-

There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, any time.

Telegram to Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor [September 14, 1919], on the occasion of the Boston police strike Vermont is a State I love. I could not look upon the peaks of Ascutney, Killington, Mansfield, and Equinox without being moved in a way that no other scene could move me. It was here that I first saw the light of day; here I received my bride; here my dead lie pillowed on the loving breast of our everlasting hills. I love Vermont because of her hills and valleys, her scenery and invigorating climate, but most of all because of her indomitable people. They are a race of pioneers who have almost beggared themselves to serve others. If the spirit of liberty should vanish in other parts of our Union and support of our institutions should languish, it could all be replenished from the generous store held by the people of this brave little State of Vermont.

New Year's Eve, 1913

Poetry is founded on the hearts of men: Though in Nirvana or the Heavenly courts

The principle of beauty shall persist,
Its body of poetry, as the body of man,
Is but a terrene form, a terrene use,
That swifter being will not loiter with;
And, when mankind is dead and the world cold,

Poetry's immortality will pass.

CLARENCE DAY

[1874-1935]

A race of civilized beings descended from the great cats would have been rich in hermits and solitary thinkers.
The recluse would not have been stig-matized as peculiar, as he is by us simians. They would not have been a credulous people, or easily religious.
False prophets and swindlers would have found few dupes. And what generals they would have made! what consummate politicians!

This Simian World. VI

Curiosity is a valuable trait. It will make the simians learn many things.
But the curiosity of a simian is as excessive as the toil of an ant. Each simian will wish to know more than his head can hold, let alone ever deal with;
and those whose minds are active will wish to know everything going. It would stretch a god's skull to accomplish such ing the theory of evolution in his classroom at the Central High School.

an ambition, yet simians won't like to think it's beyond their powers. Even small tradesmen and clerks, no matter how thrifty, will be eager to buy costly encyclopedias, or books of all knowledge. Almost every simian family, even the dumbest, will think it is due to themselves to keep all knowledge handy.

This Simian World. IX

Simians even believe, many of them, that knowledge is power. Unfortunate dupes of this saying will keep on reading, ambitiously, till they have stunned their native initiative, and made their thoughts weak; and will then wonder dazedly what in the world is the matter, and why the great power they were expecting to gain fails to appear. Again, if they ever forget what they read, they'll be worried. Those who can forget — those with fresh eyes who have swept from their minds such facts as the exact month and day that their children were born, or the numbers on houses, or the names (the mere meaningless labels) of the people they meet, — will be urged to go live in sanitariums or see memory doctors!

Ibid.

Huge seas of talk of every sort and kind, in print, speech, and writing, will roll unceasingly, involving an unbelievable waste in labor and time, and sapping the intelligence talk is supposed to upbuild. In a simian civilization, great halls will be erected for lectures, and great throngs will actually pay to go inside at night to hear some self-satisfied talk-maker chatter for hours. Almost any subject will do for a lecture, or talk; yet very few subjects will be counted important enough for the average man to do any thinking on them, off by himself.

Ibid. X

It is possible that our race may be an accident, in a meaningless universe, living its brief life uncared-for, on this dark, cooling star: but even so — and all the more — what marvelous creatures we are! What fairy story, what tale from the Arabian Nights of the jinns, is a hundredth part as wonderful as this true fairy story of simians! It is so much more heartening, too, than the tales we invent. A universe capable of giving birth to many such accidents is — blind or not — a good world to live in, a promising universe.

This Simian World. XIX

There is another way to truth: by the minute examination of facts. That is the way of the scientist: a hard and noble and thankless way. Of things beneath the Sun;

This, that a man should earn his bread and eat

Rejoicing in his work which he hath done.

A voice cried out to you, as to the imprudent Theseus: "Beware, my lord! Beware lest stern Heaven hate you enough to hear your prayers! In the queer mess of human destiny the determining factor is Luck. For ev-many men of fairly equal capacities.

Among them Luck decides who shall accomplish the great work, who shall be crowned with laurel, and who shall fall back into obscurity and silence.

Hubble¹ estimates that about two million such nebulae are visible in the great 100-inch telescope at Mount Wilson, and that the whole universe has about a thousand million times the volume of that part of space visible in this telescope. Let us now multiply 1,000 million by 2 million, and the product by 1,000 million. The answer (2×10^{24}) gives some indication of the probable number of stars in the universe; the same number of grains of sand spread over England would make a layer hundreds of yards in depth. Let us reflect that our earth is one millionth part of one such grain of sand, and our mundane affairs, our troubles and our achievements, begin to appear in their correct proportion to the universe as a whole.

The Wider Aspects of Cosmogony [1928]

Observation and theory agree in indicating that the universe is melting away into radiation. Our position is that of polar bears on an iceberg that has broken loose from the icepack surrounding the pole, and is inexorably melting away as the iceberg drifts to warmer latitudes and ultimate extinction.

Ibid.

Taking a very gloomy view of the future of the human race, let us suppose that it can only expect to survive for two thousand million years longer, a period about equal to the past age of the earth. Then, regarded as a being destined to live for threescore years and ten, humanity, although it has been born in a house seventy years old, is itself only three days old.

Ibid.

It does not at present look as though Nature had designed the universe primarily for life; the normal star and the normal nebula have nothing to do with life except making it impossible. Life is the end of a chain of by-products; it seems to be the accident, and torrential deluges of life-destroying radiation the essential.

Hugo, dur partisan

... combattit sous l'armure, Et tint haut sa bannière au milieu du mur-mure:

Il la maintient encore; et Vigny, plus secret, Comme en sa tour d'ivoire, avant midi, rentrait

(Hugo, strong partisan

... fought in armor,
And held high his banner in the midst of the tumult:

He still holds it; and Vigny, more discreet,
As if in his tower of ivory, retired before noon).

The poet, retired in his Tower of Ivory, isolated, according to his desire, from the world of man, resembles, whether he so wishes or not, another solitary figure, the watcher enclosed for months at a time in a lighthouse at the head of a cliff. — JULES DE GAULTIER

City, lyric city. . . .

City kind to actresses; tolerant of actors; city of independent handmaidens. City of contraceptions, contraptions, and curses thundered from a thousand pulpits. City of unfortunate fortune tellers. City entered by night. . . .

City of carpenters without wood, of plumbers without mercy. City of uncomfortable comfort stations. City of clanging radiators, of supine superintendents. City wherein there is no room to die. . . .

City wrought in flame. City of arguments unending. City of terminals, city of endings, city of the last attempt. City wherein no one knows whether he is coming or going. . . . City of odalisques working in stores, of seraglios seeking for sultans, of tired old women scrubbing offices by night. Great glorious patriotic city, giving its canes to crippled soldiers. Fairy city in those magic hours of the passing night; the pause before the dawn. . . .

Dress-suit city, for hire and for keeps. . . .

City that breathes of things too large for books, that is too beautiful for poets, too terrible for drama, too true for testimony. . . .

City worth visiting, if only for a week.

East Side, West Side, 1919-1929

The sea has always been a seducer, a careless lying fellow, not feminine, as many writers imagine, but strongly masculine in its allurements. The king of the sea, with his whiskers of weed and his trident and dolphins, truly represents the main and gives it character. The sea, like a great sultan, supports thousands of ships, his lawful wives. These he caresses and chastises as the case may be. This explains the feminine gender of all proper vessels.

Vignettes of the Sea

dustries, employing simple, innocent, primitive men — slow-speaking truck farmers, husky red-faced slaughterers in the abattoirs, solid German bakers, and milkmen. The milkman alone is enough to redeem the night from its undeserved evil reputation. A cartload of pasteurized milk for nurslings at four o'clock in the morning represents more service to civilization than a cartful of bullion on its way from the Sub-treasury to the vaults of a national bank five hours later.

At first I was rather unwilling to study Latin grammar. It seemed absurd to waste time analyzing every word I came across — noun, genitive, singular, feminine — when its meaning was quite plain. I thought I might just as well describe my pet in order to know it — order, vertebrate; division, quadruped; class, mammalia; genus, filinus; species, cat; individual, Tabby. But as I got deeper into the subject, I became more interested, and the beauty of the language delighted me. I often amused myself by reading Latin passages, picking up words I understood and trying to Here, more than anywhere else in the world, the daily panorama of human existence — the unending procession of governmental extortions and chicaneries, of commercial brigandages and throat-slittings, of theological buffooneries, of aesthetic ribaldries, of legal swindles and harlotries — is so inordinately extravagant, so perfectly brought up to the highest conceivable amperage, that only the man who was born with a petrified diaphragm can fail to go to bed every night grinning from ear to ear, and awake every morning with the eager, unflagging expectations of a Sunday-school superintendent touring the Paris peep-shows.

On Being an American [1922]

Human enterprises that, in all other countries, are resigned despairingly to an incurable dulness — things that seem devoid of exhilarating amusement by their very nature — are here lifted to such inordinate buffoonery that contemplating them tears the very midriff from its moorings.

Ibid.

To be happy one must be (a) well fed, unhounded by sordid cares, at ease in Zion, (b) full of a comfortable feeling of superiority to the masses of one's fellow men, and (c) delicately and unceasingly amused according to one's taste. It is my contention that, if this definition be accepted, there is no country in the world wherein a man constituted as I am — a man of my peculiar weakness, vanities, appetites, and aversions — can be so happy as he can be in the United States. Going further, I lay down the doctrine that it is a sheer physical impossibility for such a man to live in the United States and not be happy.

Words and Poetry

RICHARD HENRY TAWNEY

[1880—]

The burden of our civilization is not merely, as many suppose, that the product of industry is ill-distributed, or its conduct tyrannical, or its operation interrupted by bitter disagreements. It is that industry itself has come to hold a position of exclusive predominance among human interests, which no single interest, and least of all the provision of the material means of existence, is fit to occupy. Like a hypochondriac who is so absorbed in the processes of his own digestion that he goes to the grave before he has begun to live, industrialized communities neglect the very objects for which it is worth while to acquire riches in their feverish preoccupation with the means by which riches can be acquired.

That obsession by economic issues is as local and transitory as it is repulsive and disturbing. To future generations it will appear as pitiable as the obsession of the seventeenth century by religious quarrels appears today.

Steam engines are very human. Their very weaknesses are understandable. Steam engines do not flash back and blow your face in. dark corner of his canvas. He has revealed it in the sonnets where there is Will in overplus. Like John O'Gaunt his name is dear to him, as dear as the coat of arms he toadied for, on a bend sable a spear or steeled argent, honorificabilitudinitatibus, dearer than his glory of greatest shakescene in the country. What's in a name? That is what we ask ourselves in childhood when we write the name that we are told is ours. A star, a daystar, a fire-drake rose at his birth. It shone by day in the heavens alone, brighter than Venus in the night, and by night it shone over delta in Cassiopeia, the recumbent constellation which is the signature of his initial among the stars. His eyes watched it, lowlying on the horizon, eastward of the bear, as he walked by the slumberous summer fields at midnight, returning from Shottery and from her arms.

One realm we have never conquered — the pure present. One great mystery of time is terra incognita to us — the instant. The most superb mystery we have hardly recognized — the immediate, instant self. The quick of all time is the instant. The quick of all the universe, of all creation, is the incarnate, carnal self.

A good many young writers make the mistake of enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, big enough for the manuscript to come back in. This is too much of a temptation to the editor.

Personally I have found it a good scheme to not even sign my name to the story, and when I have got it sealed up in its envelope and stamped and addressed, I take it to some town where I don't live and mail it from there. The editor has no idea who wrote the story, so how can he send it back? He is in a quandary.

Babbitt. Chap. 1

A sensational event was changing from the brown suit to the gray the contents of his pockets. He was earnest about these objects. They were of eternal importance, like baseball or the Republican Party. They included a fountain pen and a silver pencil (always lacking a supply of new leads) which belonged in the righthand upper vest pocket. Without them he would have felt naked. On his watch-chain were a gold penknife, silver cigar-cutter, seven keys (the use of two of which he had forgotten), and incidentally a good watch. Depending from the chain was a large, yellowish elk's-tooth — proclamation of his membership in the Brotherly and Protective Order of Elks. Most significant of all was his loose-leaf pocket note-book, that modern and efficient note-book which contained the addresses of people whom he had forgotten, prudent memoranda of postal money-orders which had reached their destinations months ago, stamps which had lost their mucilage, clippings of verses by T. Cholmondeley Frink and of the newspaper editorials from which Babbitt got his opinions and his polysyllables, notes to be sure and do things which he did not intend to do, and one curious inscription — D.S.S.D.M.Y.P. Between the Pulitzer Prizes, the American Academy of Arts and Letters and its training-school the National Institute of Arts and Letters, amateur boards of censorship, and the inquisition of earnest literary ladies, every compulsion is put upon writers to become safe, polite, obedient, and sterile.

In protest, I declined election to the National Institute of Arts and Letters some years ago, and now I must decline the Pulitzer Prize.

I invite other writers to consider the fact that by accepting the prizes and approval of these vague institutions, we are admitting their authority, publicly confirming them as the final judges of literary excellence, and I inquire whether any prize is worth that subservience.

Letter declining the Pulitzer Prize for his novel, Arrowsmith [1926]

To a true-blue professor of literature in an American university, literature is not something that a plain human being, living today, painfully sits down to produce. No; it is something dead; it is something magically produced by superhuman beings who must, if they are to be regarded as artists at all, have died at least one hundred years before the diabolical invention of the typewriter. To any authentic don, there is something slightly repulsive in the thought that literature could be created by any ordinary human being, still to be seen walking the streets, wearing quite commonplace trousers and coat and looking not so unlike a chauffeur or a farmer. Our American professors like their literature clear and cold and pure and very dead.

If I should die, think only this of me:
 That there's some corner of a foreign

That is for ever England.

The Reflex

JAMES NORMAN HALL

[1887—]

The thing that numbs the heart is this:
 That men cannot devise
 Some scheme of life to banish fear
 That lurks in most men's eyes.

Fear

Fear of the lack of shelter, food,
 And fire for winter's cold;
 Fear of their children's lacking these,
 This in a world so old.

Shine, Perishing Republic.
Stanza 1

You make haste on decay: not blame-worthy; life is good, be it stubbornly long or suddenly

A mortal splendor: meteors are not needed less than mountains: shine, perishing republic.

But for my children, I would have them keep their distance from the thickening center; corruption Never has been compulsory, when the cities lie at the monster's feet there are left the mountains.

Shine, Perishing Republic.

Stanzas 3 and 4

All these tidal gatherings, growth and decay,

Shining and darkening, are forever Renewed; and the whole cycle impenitently

Revolves, and all the past is future: —

Make it a difficult world . . . for practical people.

Practical People

After all, after all we endured, who has grown wise?

We take our mortal momentary hour With too much gesture, the derisive skies

Twinkle against our wrongs, our rights, our power.

Look up the night, starlight's a steady-ing draught

For nerves at angry tension.

The Truce and the Peace. 7 [1918]

"Loyal to your highest, sensitive, brave, Sanguine, some few ways wise, you and all men are drawn out of this depth

Only to be these things you are, as flowers for color, falcons for swift-ness, Mountains for mass and quiet. Each for its quality

Is drawn out of this depth. Your tragic quality Required the huge delusion of some major purpose to produce it.

What, that the God of the stars needed your help?" He said "This is my last Worst pain, the bitter enlightenment that buys peace."

Poetry and Criticism [1926]

The attitude of the professional players toward the amateurs is best summed up in a raffish story they delight in telling on all occasions. It begins with a touching picture of an old broken-down tragedian sharing a park bench with a bedraggled and unappetizing street-walker. "Ah, Madame," says the tragedian, "quelle Ironie! The two oldest professions in the world — ruined by amateurs."

The Knock at the Stage-Door

Beerbohm Tree said what we have all wanted to say of the extra-women in nearly every throne-room and ball-room and school-room scene since the theater began. "Ladies," said Tree, peering at them plaintively through his monocle, "just a little more virginity, if you don't mind."

"Trees" (if I have the name right) is one of the most annoying pieces of verse within my knowledge. The other one is Kipling's "If," with third place reserved for Henley's "Invictus."

"Trees" maddens me, because it contains the most insincere line ever writ-tongue must have been not far from the Kilmer cheek when he wrote, "Poems are made by fools like me."

Ibid. "Trees," "If," and "Invictus"

It is a good trick when a writer can go out and set down with accuracy some living being whom he has observed with fidelity. He holds the mirror up to Na-

By the canal in Flanders I watched a barge's prow Creep slowly past the poplar-trees; and there I made a vow
That when these wars are over and I am home at last However much I travel I shall not travel fast.

Horses and cars and yachts and planes:
I've no more use for such:
For in three years of war's alarms I've hurried far too much;
And now I dream of something sure, silent and slow and large; So when the War is over — why, I mean to buy a barge.

And vexed their wives and filled their homes
With faded prints and massive tomes.

*Seven Pillars of Wisdom.
Dedication*

Arabs could be swung on an idea as on a cord; for the unpledged allegiance of their minds made them obedient servants. None of them would escape the bond till success had come, and with it responsibility and duty and engagements. Then the idea was gone and the work ended — in ruins. Without a creed they could be taken to the four corners of the world (but not to heaven) by being shown the riches of earth and the pleasures of it; but if on the road, led in this fashion, they met the prophet of an idea, who had nowhere to lay his head and who depended for his food on charity or birds, then they would all leave their wealth for his inspiration.

Ibid. Chap. 3

There could be no honour in a sure success, but much might be wrested from a sure defeat. Omnipotence and the Infinite were our two worthiest foe-men, indeed the only ones for a full man to meet, they being monsters of his own spirit's making; and the stoutest enemies were always of the household. In fighting Omnipotence, honour was proudly to throw away the poor resources that we had, and dare Him empty-handed.

Revolt in the Desert. Chap. 19

I grew proud of the enemy [the Germans] who had killed my brothers.
They were two thousand miles from home, without hope and without guides, in conditions mad enough to break the bravest nerves. Yet their sections held together in firm rank, sheering through the wrack of Turk and Arab like armoured ships, high-faced and silent.
When attacked they halted, took position, fired to order. There was no haste, no crying, no hesitation. They were glorious.

Revolt in the Desert. Chap. 34

It came upon me freshly how the secret of uniform was to make a crowd solid, dignified, impersonal: to give it the singleness and tautness of an up-standing man. This death's livery which walled its bearers from ordinary life, was sign that they had sold their wills and bodies to the State: and contracted themselves into a service not the less abject for that its beginning was voluntary. Some of them had obeyed the instinct of lawlessness: some were hungry: others thirsted for glamour, for the supposed colour of a military life: but, of them all, those only received satisfaction who had sought to degrade themselves, for to the peace-eye they were below humanity.

Ibid. Chap. 35

In Spain, where the courtly Castilian hidalgo twangs lightly each night

Where the castanets clink on the gay piazzetta, and strains of fandangoes are heard from afar,

There lived, I am told, a bold hussy vamp full of devil and guile.

Cigarette and cigar men were smitten with Carmen; from near and from far men were caught with her smile.

But here's our friend José who seizes her bridle. A wild homicidal glint gleams in his eye.

He's mad and disgusted and cries out, "You've busted the heart that once trusted you. Wed me or die!"

Though Carmen is frightened at how this scene might end, I'm forced to admit she is game to the last.

She says to him "Banish the notion and vanish. Vamos!" which is Spanish for "run away fast."

A scream and a struggle! She reels and she staggers, for Don José's dagger's plunged deep in her breast.

No more will she flirt in her old way, that's certain. So ring down the curtain, poor Carmen's at rest.

Music I Heard with You. Stanza 1

It is morning, Senlin says, and in the morning

When the light drips through the shutters like the dew,

I arise, I face the sunrise,

And do the things my fathers learned to do.

Stars in the purple dusk above the roof-

Pale in a saffron mist and seem to die,
 And I myself on a swiftly tilting planet Stand before a glass and tie my tie.

NOTES

I. Flourish: The stage direction here is obscure. Clarke claims it should read "flarish," thus changing the meaning of the passage to "flarish" (that is, the King's), but most authorities have agreed that it should remain "flourish," supplying the predicate which is to be flourished. There was at this time a custom in the countryside of England to flourish a mop as a signal to the passing vender of berries, signifying that in that particular household there was a consumer-demand for berries, and this may have been meant in this instance. That Shakespeare was cognizant of this custom of flourishing the mop for berries is shown in a similar passage in the second part of King Henry IV, where he has the Third Page enter and say, "Flourish." Cf. also Hamlet, IV, 7:4.

Biography, like big game hunting, is one of the recognized forms of sport, and it is as unfair as only sport can be. High on some far hill-side of politics or history the amateur marks down his distant quarry. Follows an intensely distasteful period of furtive approach to the subject which leads the deer-stalker up gullies and ravines and the biographer through private letters and washing-books. The burns grow deeper and wetter, the letters take a more private and a less publishable turn, until at last our sportsman, well within range, turns to his publisher, who carries the guns, and empties one, two, and (if the public will stand it) three barrels into his unprotesting victim: because it is a cruel truth that the subjects of Lives are rarely themselves alive.

Supers and Supermen

Whispering from its towers the last enchantment of the middle-class, the Foreign Office occupies an eligible central situation between Whitehall and St. James's Park. The grateful taxpayer provides it with an abundance of admirable stationery, and it is perhaps the last place in London where everybody is a gentleman.

Ibid.

Because the sporting England of Queen Victoria could never understand the unathletic France of President Thiers, we have all in our time conjured up delightful visions of legions of little Frenchmen in flat-brimmed silk hats going fox-shooting with packs of poodles. No picture of life in Calais was too ludicrous to be believed in Dover; that

Supers and Supermen

There is no Gibbon but Gibbon, and Gibbon is his prophet. The solemn march of his cadences, the majestic impropriety of his innuendo are without rivals in the respective annals of British eloquence and British indelicacy.

The work of Henry James has always seemed divisible by a simple dynastic arrangement into three reigns: James I, James II, and the Old Pretender.

Leviathan [1923]

The adventurer is within us, and he contests for our favour with the social man we are obliged to be. These two sorts of life are incompatibles; one we hanker after, the other we are obliged to. There is no other conflict so deep and bitter as this, whatever the pious say, for it derives from the very constitutions of human life, which so painfully separate us from all other beings. We, like the eagles, were born to be free. Yet we are obliged, in order to live at all, to make a cage of laws for ourselves and to stand on the perch. We are born as wasteful and unremorseful as tigers; we are obliged to be thrifty, or starve, or freeze. We are born to wander, and cursed to stay and dig.

*Twelve Against the Gods [1929].
Introduction*

He, and the world with him,—for Wilson's adventure was the world's, and one day the world will know it, even the fools—were not the victims of a vulgar trick, unless the dizziness that pulls down climbers from the peak is some cunning of the Alps. We fell there because the height was too great, because he saw all the countries of the world, the bare immensity of the mass of common people which he had worshipped all his life, but never imagined until that day he knew he had them, their lives, and all uncountable, future ages of them in his own two hands. Seeing, a great vertigo leapt on him. Those days have passed more utterly from memory than if a hundred years had gone since then; but a few who lived through them, and stood near where the pedestal of Wilson was standing can remember, vaguely, as if they had read it somewhere, something of the madness, the sheer panic, mixed with exaltation, of the times.

Ibid. Woodrow Wilson

Like Arthur and the legendary Alexander, and many other lesser men, he Five Smooth Stones.

Stanzas 12 and 13

High and miraculous skies bless and astonish my eyes;

All my dead secrets arise, all my dead stories come true.

Here is the Gate to the Sea. Once you unlocked it for me;

Now, since you gave me the key, shall I unlock it for you?

This Is the End

Did Older and Wiser people ever shout and jump with joy in their pyjamas in the moonlight? Did they ever feel just drunk with being young? And were Older and Wiser people's jokes ever funny?

Ibid.

Family jokes, though rightly cursed by strangers, are the bond that keeps most families alive.

ELIZABETH ASQUITH
BIBESCO

I have made a great discovery.

What I love belongs to me. Not the chairs and tables in my house, but the masterpieces of the world.

It is only a question of loving them enough.

[1892—]

If men could still be holy anywhere,

It would be in towers such as these That line the coasts with lamps and warn the ships —

The holy towers of the silences.

Towers of Silence

A man should choose with careful eye
The things to be remembered by.

The Weather Vane

Life and death upon one tether
And running beautiful together.

Crystal Moment

FRANCIS E. FALKENBURY

As I came down to South Street by the soft sea-water,

I saw long ships, their mast-heads ever bowing:

Sweet slender maids in clinging gowns of golden,

Curtseying stately in a fashion olden, Bowing sweetly — each a king's fair daughter —

To me, their millionth, millionth lover,
I, the seventh son of the old sea-rover,
As I came down to South Street by the myriad moving water.

Chambers of Imagery. Stanza 1

Beauty is that Medusa's head Which men go armed to seek and sever.
It is most deadly when most dead,
And dead will stare and sting forever.

Beauty

A poem should not mean
But be.

Ars Poetica

Here, face downward in the sun
To feel how swift, how secretly,
The shadow of the night comes on.

You, Andrew Marvell

There with vast wings across the canceled skies,

There in the sudden blackness, the black pall

Of nothing, nothing, nothing — nothing at all.

The End of the World

The world was always yours: you would not take it.

Speech to a Crowd

Speaking alone for myself it's the steep hill and the Toppling lift of the young men I am Waiting for that as the wave for the thunder of

What's to be next in the world. It's we will be under it!

*"Dover Beach" — A Note to climbing Sucking the green from the ferns by these Berkshire boulders! —

The Philosopher

Death devours all lovely things; Lesbia with her sparrow

 Every bed is narrow.

Passer Mortuus Est. Stanza 1

All I could see from where I stood Was three long mountains and a wood.

Renascence. Line 1

I would I were alive again
 To kiss the fingers of the rain,
 To drink into my eyes the shine
 Of every slanting silver line,
 To catch the freshened, fragrant breeze From drenched and dripping apple-trees.

Ibid. Line 119

I know not how such things can be,
 I only know there came to me
 A fragrance such as never clings To aught save happy living things;
 A sound as of some joyous elf Singing sweet songs to please himself,
 And, through and over everything,
 A sense of glad awakening.

Ibid. Line 143

The world stands out on either side
 No wider than the heart is wide;
 Above the world is stretched the sky, —
 No higher than the soul is high.
 The heart can push the sea and land Farther away on either hand;

The soul can split the sky in two,
 And let the face of God shine through.
Renascence. Line 189

She that had no need of me,
 Is a little lonely child Lost in Hell. Persephone, Take her head upon your knee,
 Say to her: "My dear, my dear,
 It is not so dreadful here."

A Prayer to Persephone

I know I am but summer to your heart,
 And not the full four seasons of the year.

Two Seasons. Sonnet 1

I drank at every vine.
 The last was like the first.
 I came upon no wine
 So wonderful as thirst.

Feast. Stanza 1

I only know that summer sang in me
 A little while, and in me sings no more.

Steadfast in the broken binding
All that once was I!

The Poet and His Book. Stanza 6

Weep him dead and mourn as you may,
Me, I sing as I must:
Blessed be death, that cuts in marble
What would have sunk in dust.

Keen. Stanza 1

Who builds her a house with love for Builds her a house of foam;

And I'd rather be bride to a lad gone

Than widow to one safe home.

Ibid. Stanza 5

Spring rides no horses down the hill,
But comes on foot, a goose girl still.
And all the loveliest things there be Come simply, so it seems to me.
If ever I said, in grief or pride,
I tired of honest things, I lied.

The Goose Girl

I'll keep a little tavern

Below the high hill's crest, Wherein all gray-eyed people May sit them down and rest.

The Little Tavern. Stanza 1

Aye, 'tis a curious fancy —

But all the good I know Was taught me out of two gray eyes
A long time ago.

Ibid. Stanza 4

O world, I cannot hold thee close

Thy winds, thy wide gray skies!
Thy mists, that roll and rise!

Thy woods, this autumn day, that ache and sag
And all but cry with color.

God's World. Stanza 1

Lord, I do fear Thou'st made the world too beautiful this year.

My soul is all but out of me — let fall No burning leaf; prithee, let no bird call.

Ibid. Stanza 2

I will be the gladdest thing under the Afternoon on a Hill

And if I loved you Wednesday,
Well, what is that to you?

I do not love you Thursday —
So much is true.

Thursday. Stanza 1

There's little kind and little fair
Is worth its weight in smoke
To me, that's grown so free from care Since my heart broke!

The Merry Maid. Stanza 2

Love has gone, and left me and the days are all alike.

Eat I must, and sleep I will — and would that night were here!

But ah, to lie awake and hear the slow hours strike!

Would that it were day again, with twilight near!

Ashes of Life. Stanza 1

Life goes on forever like the gnawing of

Ibid. Stanza 3

Thanks be to God, the world is wide,
And I am going far from home!

And I forgot in Camelot
The man I loved in Rome.

Fugitive. Stanza 1

My heart is warm with the friends I

Yet there isn't a train I wouldn't take,
No matter where it's going.

Travel. Stanza 3

I know some poison I could drink;

The Ballad of the Harp-Weaver.

Stanzas 13, 14.

I am not resigned to the shutting away of loving hearts in the hard ground.
So it is, and so it will be, for so it has been, time out of mind:
Into the darkness they go, the wise and the lovely. Crowned With lilies and with laurel they go.

Dirge Without Music. Stanza 1

Death is our master, — but his seat is shaken;
He rides victorious, — but his ranks are thinned.

Not That It Matters

I had a little Sorrow,
Born of a little Sin.

Fatal Interview. IV

Love in the open hand, nothing but that,

Ungemmed, unhidden, wishing not to hurt,

As one should bring you cowslips in a

The Frenchman, like the old Scotch golfer, endeavors to do what there is to be done without superfluous weapons or fancy gestures. He sits down, ties his napkin behind his ears, picks up a knife and fork and goes to work with admirable directness. He dunks his bread in the juice of the snail, he chases fragments of steak and gravy with a piece of crust, he licks his fingers, says, "Ah!" and gets fed.

Much energy has been spent in an effort to determine where the West begins. The definitions of poetry and the luncheon clubs are unsatisfactory: vagueness should not be invoked when a precise answer is possible. The West begins where the average annual rainfall drops below twenty inches. When you reach the line which marks that drop—for convenience, the one hundredth meridian—you have reached the West.

The Plundered Province

Their [the Vermont highlanders'] ancestral religion told them that the world is a battleground whereon mankind is sentenced to defeat—an idea not inappropriate to the granite against which they must make their way. By the granite they have lived on for three centuries, tightening their belts and hanging on, by the sense of what is real. They are the base of the Yankee commonwealth, and America, staring apprehensively through fog that may not lift in this generation, may find their knowledge of hard things more than a little useful.

It is so they die on the plains, the great,

 They sink to the earth like mountains, hairy and silent,
 And their tongues are cut by the hunter.
 Oh, singing tongue!
 Great tongue of bronze and salt and the free grasses, Tongue of America, speaking for the first time,
 Must the hunter have you at last?

Now, face to face, you saw him And lifted the right arm once, as a pilot lifts it, Signalling with the bell,
 In the passage at night, on the river known yet unknown,
 — Perhaps to touch his shoulder, perhaps in pain —
 Then the rain fell on the roof and the twilight darkened
 And they said that in death you looked like a marvelous old, wise child.

have. Women of all people ought to understand this, but they do not, quite.

All poets who, when reading from their own works, experience a choked feeling, are major. For that matter, all poets who read from their own works are major, whether they choke or not.
All women poets, dead or alive, who smoke cigars are major. All poets who have sold a sonnet for one hundred and twenty-five dollars to a magazine with a paid circulation of four hundred thousand are major. A sonnet is composed of fourteen lines; thus the payment in this case is eight dollars and ninety-three cents a line, which constitutes a poet's majority.

[1900— .]

He awakes at morning in a foreign land, he draws his breath in labor in the wool-soft air of Europe: the wool-gray air is all about him like a living substance; it is in his heart, his stomach, and his entrails; it is in the slow and vital movements of the people; it soaks down from the sodden skies into the earth, into the heavy buildings, into the limbs and hearts and brains of living men. . . .

It was there now; it will always be there. They had it in Merry England and they had it in Gay Paree; and they were seldom merry, and they were rarely gay. The wet, woolen air is over Munich; it is over Paris; it is over Rouen and Madame Bovary; it soaks into England; it gets into boiled mutton and the Brussels sprouts; it gets into Hammersmith on Sunday; it broods over Bloomsbury and the private hotels and the British Museum; it soaks into the land of Europe and keeps the grass green.

Of Time and the River. Book VII

Where can you match the mighty music of their names? — The Monongahela, the Colorado, the Rio Grande, the Columbia, the Tennessee, the Hudson (Sweet Thames!); the Kennebec, the Rappahannock, the Delaware, the Penobscot, the Wabash, the Chesapeake, the Swannanoa, the Indian River, the Niagara (Sweet Afton!); the Saint Lawrence, the Susquehanna, the Tombigbee, the Nantahala, the French Broad, the Chattahoochee, the Arizona, and the Potomac (Father Tiber!) — these are a few of their princely names, these are a few of their great, proud, glittering names, fit for the immense and lonely land that they inhabit.

Oh, Tiber! Father Tiber! You'd only be a suckling in that mighty land! And as for you, sweet Thames, flow gently till I end my song: flow gently, gentle Thames, be well-behaved, sweet Thames, speak softly and politely, little Thames, flow gently till I end my song.

It is Europeans, for the most part, who have constructed these great ships, but without America they have no meaning. These ships are alive with the supreme ecstasy of the modern world, which is the voyage to America. There is no other experience that is remotely comparable to it, in its sense of joy, its exultancy, its drunken and magnificent hope which, against reason and knowledge, soars into a heaven of fabulous conviction, which believes in the miracle and sees it invariably achieved.

In this soft, this somewhat languid air, the ship glowed like an immense and brilliant jewel, All of her lights were on, they burned row by row straight across her 900 feet of length, with the small, hard twinkle of cut gems: it was as if the vast, black cliff of her hull, which strangely suggested the glittering night-time cliff of the fabulous city that was her destination, had been sown with diamonds.

Of Time and the River. Book VIII

Out of one darkness the travellers have come to be taken into another, but for a moment one sees their faces, awful and still, all uplifted towards the ship. This is all: their words have vanished, all memory of the movements they made then has also vanished: one remembers only their silence and their still faces lifted in the phantasmal light of lost time; one sees them ever, still and silent, as they slide from darkness on the river of time; one sees them waiting at the ship's great side, all silent and all damned to die, with their grave, white faces lifted in a single supplication to the ship, and towards the silent row of passengers along the deck, who for a moment return their gaze with the same grave and tranquil stare. That silent meeting is a summary of all the meetings of men's lives.

The Georgian poets, a sadly pedestrian rabble, flocked along the roads their fathers had built, pointing out to each other the beauty spots and ostentatiously drinking small-beer in a desperate effort to prove their virility. The winds blew, the floods came: for a moment a few of them showed on the crest of the seventh great wave; then they were rolled under and nothing marks their graves. One only rode the whirlwind: Wilfrid Owen, killed on the Sambre canal, spoke above the barrage and the gas-cloud, saying to us, 'The poetry is in the pity.' When it was all over, it was left to an American, T. S. Eliot, to pick up some of the fragments of civilization, place them end to end, and on that crazy pavement walk precariously through the waste land.

² Compare inscription on the "Printer's Sun-Dial" at the Country Life Press (Double-day, Doran and Company), Garden City, Begging the question.

This is a common logical fallacy, petitio principii; and the first explanation of the phrase is to be found in Aristotle's Topica, VIII, 13, where the five ways of begging the question are set forth. The earliest English work in which the expression is found is The Arte of Logike plainlie set forth in our English Tongue, &c. [1584].

Bitter end.

This phrase is somewhat ambiguous as now used. The older form, "better end," was used to designate a crisis, or a moment of extremity. When in a gale a vessel has paid out all her cable, her cable has run out to the "better end," — the end which is secured within the vessel and little used. Robinson Crusoe, in describing the terrible storm in Yarmouth Roads, says: "We rode with two anchors ahead, and the cables veered out to the better end." CHAUCER, Canterbury Tales, The Squieres Tale, Line 224, says: "They demen gladly to the badder ende," Skeat's glossary giving "worse" as the definition for "badder."

Cockles of the heart.

R. G. Latham [1812-1888], English philologist, wrote that the most probable explanation of the phrase lies (1) in the likeness of the heart to a cockleshell, — the base of the former being compared to the hinge of the latter; (2) in the zoological name for the cockle and its congeners, Cardium (heart). A contemporary explanation [1936] is the comparison of the cockle, or fire chamber, of the furnace with the chambers (ventricles and auricles) of the heart, hence, to warm the cockles of the heart. See Cervantes, page 1039.

N. Y. Authorship uncertain, perhaps the late WALTER GILLISS:

O measure of Time! Thou merest mite Within the endless providence of God:
May thy unerring finger ever point
To those who printed first the written word.

Consistency, thou art a jewel.

A popular saying, like "Be good, and you will be happy," or "Virtue is its own reward," that, like Topsy, just "grewed." From the earliest times it has been the popular tendency to call this or that cardinal virtue, or bright and shining excellence, a jewel, by way of emphasis. For example, Iago says:

"Good name, in man or woman, dear my lord,

Is the immediate jewel of their souls."

Shakespeare elsewhere calls experience a "jewel." Miranda says her modesty is the "jewel" in her dower; and in All's Well that Ends Well, Diana terms her chastity the "jewel" of her house. — R. A. WIGHT

O discretion, thou art a jewel! —
The Skylark, a Collection of Well-chosen Songs [London, 1772]

Dead as Chelsea.

To get Chelsea, to obtain the benefit of that hospital (for old soldiers). "Dead as Chelsea, by God!" an exclamation uttered by a grenadier at Fontenoy, 1745, on having his leg carried away by a cannon-ball. — Dictionary of the Vulgar Tongue, quoted by BRADY in Varieties of Literature [1826]

Dirty work at the crossroads.

Notes and Queries (London) attributes this to WALTER MELVILLE's melodrama The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, or No Wedding Bells for Him.

Don't sell America short.

Modern Version of J. P. MORGAN's saying, "Never be a bear on the United States." See MARK SULLIVAN: Our Times, II, 318.

Doesn't amount to Hannah Cook.

A saying common in Maine and on Cape Cod, Massachusetts, variously explained as a character who once lived on Campobello Island; a corruption of a phrase in Indian dialect; and a comparison with the worthlessness (for navigation) of a cook on board ship.

Don't you remember
The fifth of November,
The Gunpowder treason and Plot?

Ballad, chanted on "Pope Day" in Boston [1774]. Quoted in The History and Antiquities of Boston by SAMUEL GARDNER DRAKE [1798-1875], from TUDOR'S Life of Otis.

Free soil, free men, free speech, Frémont.

Rallying cry of the Republican Party in 1856, when John Charles Frémont [1813-1890], "the Pathfinder," was the party's candidate for the presidency.

Gentle craft.

According to John Brady [died 1814], in Clavis Calendaria [1812], this designation arose from the fact that in an old romance, a prince named Crispin is made to exercise, in honour of his namesake, Saint Crispin, the trade of shoemaking. There is a tradition that King Edward IV, in one of his disguises, once drank with a party of shoemakers, and pledged them. The story is alluded to in the old play of George a-Greene [1599]:

Marry, because you have drank with the King,

And the King hath so graciously pledged you,

You shall no more be called shoemakers;

But you and yours, to the world's end, Shall be called the trade of the gentle craft.

The goose hangs high.

Originally, perhaps, "the goose honks high," — it cries and flies high. Wild geese fly higher when the weather is fine or promises to be fine. Hence, the prospects are bright; everything is favourable. — Century Dictionary

Another explanation is that in some parts of the country a goose is hung high to season, and denotes that a feast of roast goose will soon be ready.

The Great White Way.

Title of a play (1901) by ALBERT BIGELOW PAINE [1861-1937], which was adopted as a name for Broadway and the theatrical district of New York.

Hot afternoons have been in Montana.

Title of a prize-winning poem by ELI SIEGEL, published in The Nation, New York, 1925.

The man on horseback.

Applied to General Georges Ernest Jean Marie Boulanger [1837-1891].

This supposititious epitaph was found among the papers of Mr. Jefferson, and in his handwriting. It was supposed to be one of Dr. Franklin's spirit-stirring inspirations. — H. S. RANDALL: Life of Jefferson, Vol. III, Page 585

Rest and be thankful.

Inscription on a stone seat on the top of one of the Highlands in Scotland. It is the title of one of Wordsworth's poems.

Roland for an Oliver.

These were the two most famous of Charlemagne's paladins, and their exploits are rendered so ridiculously and equally extravagant by the old romancers, that from them arose the saying, to signify matching one incredible lie with another, giving tit for tat, as good as one receives. In King Henry VI, Part I, Act I, Sc. 2, Line 30, SHAKESPEARE says [in 1589]:

England all Olivers and Rowlands bred During the time Edward the Third did reign.

Sister Anne, do you see any one coming?

The anxious cry of Fatima, one of the wives of Bluebeard.

The public be damned.

William H. Vanderbilt [1821-1885], reply to a newspaper reporter. There are various versions of the occasion of this remark. See MELVILLE E. STONE: Fifty Years a Journalist, Page 116, and GUSTAVUS MYERS: History of the Great American Fortunes, Modern Library Giant edition, Page 344.

The woods are full of them.

Alexander Wilson [1766-1813], in the Preface to his American Ornithology [1808], quotes these words and relates the story of a boy who had been gathering flowers. On bringing them to his mother, he said: "Look, my dear ma! What beautiful flowers I have found growing in our place! Why, all the woods are full of them!"

Wisdom of many and the wit of one.

Definition of a proverb which Lord John Russell gave one morning at breakfast at Mardock's, — "One man's wit, and all men's wisdom." — Memoirs of Sir James Mackintosh [1765-1832], Vol. I, Page 473

THE NEW ENGLAND PRIMER¹

In Adam's fall
We sinned all.

My Book and Heart Must never part.

Young Obadiah,
David, Josias, —
All were pious.

Peter denied
His Lord, and cried.

Young Timothy
Learnt sin to fly.

Xerxes did die,
And so must I.

Zaccheus he Did climb the tree
Our Lord to see.

Our days begin with trouble here,
Our life is but a span,
And cruel death is always near,
So frail a thing is man.

Now I lay me down to take my sleep,² I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take.

His wife, with nine small children and one at the breast, following him to Martyrdom of John Rogers, Burned at Smithfield, February 14, 1554³

¹ As early as 1691, Benjamin Harris, of Boston, advertised as in press the second impression of the New England Primer. The oldest copy known to be extant is dated 1737.

² The first record of this prayer is found in the Enchiridion Leonis [A.D. 1160]. In the earliest edition of the Primer, the prayer is given as above, which is copied from the reprint of 1777. In the edition of 1784 it is altered to read, "Now I lay me down to sleep." In the edition of 1814, the second line of the prayer reads, "I pray thee, Lord, my soul to keep."

³ The correct date is Feb. 4, 1555.

JUNIUS

One precedent creates another. They soon accumulate and constitute law. What yesterday was fact, to-day is doctrine.

The Letters of Junius.¹ Dedication to the English Nation

The liberty of the press is the Palladium of all the civil, political, and religious rights of an Englishman.

Ibid.

These are the gloomy companions of a disturbed imagination; the melancholy madness of poetry, without the inspiration.²

Ibid. VII, To Sir William Draper [March 3, 1769]

There are some hereditary strokes of character by which a family may be as clearly distinguished as by the blackest features of the human face.

Ibid. XII, To the Duke of Grafton [May 30, 1769]

I do not give you to posterity as a pattern to imitate, but as an example to deter.

Ibid.

I believe there is yet a spirit of resistance in this country, which will not submit to be oppressed; but I am sure there is a fund of good sense in this country, which cannot be deceived.

Ibid. XVI, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser (H. S. Woodfall) [July 19, 1769]

We owe it to our ancestors to preserve entire those rights, which they have delivered to our care: we owe it to our posterity, not to suffer their dearest inheritance to be destroyed.

The Letters of Junius. XX, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [August 8, 1769]

When the constitution is openly invaded, when the first original right of the people, from which all laws derive their authority, is directly attacked, inferior grievances naturally lose their force, and are suffered to pass by without punishment or observation.

Ibid. XXX, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [October 17, 1769]

There is a moment of difficulty and danger at which flattery and falsehood can no longer deceive, and simplicity itself can no longer be misled.

Ibid. XXXV,¹ To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [December 19, 1769]

They [the Americans] equally detest the pageantry of a King, and the supercilious hypocrisy of a bishop.²

Ibid.

The least considerable man among us has an interest equal to the proudest nobleman, in the laws and constitution of his country, and is equally called upon to make a generous contribution in support of them; — whether it be the heart to conceive, the understanding to direct, or the hand to execute.³

Ibid. XXXVII, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [March 19, 1770]

We lament the mistakes of a good man, and do not begin to detest him until he affects to renounce his principles.

The Letters of Junius. XLI, To Lord Mansfield [November 14, 1770]

The injustice to an individual is sometimes of service to the public. Facts are apt to alarm us more than the most dangerous principles.

Ibid.

An honest man, like the true religion, appeals to the understanding, or modestly confides in the internal evidence of his conscience. The impostor employs force instead of argument, imposes silence where he cannot convince, and propagates his character by the sword.

Ibid.

Private credit is wealth; — public honour is security. — The feather that adorns the royal bird, supports his flight. Strip him of his plumage, and you fix him to the earth.

Ibid. XLII, On the Falkland Islands [January 30, 1771]

If individuals have no virtues, their vices may be of use to us.

Ibid. LIX, To the Printer of the Public Advertiser [October 5, 1771]

The temple of fame is the shortest passage to riches and preferment.

Ibid.

Love not me for comely grace,
For my pleasing eye or face,
Nor for any outward part,
No, nor for a constant heart.

The love of good Allah make you blest.
So I touch my heart as the Easterners
do, —

May the peace of Allah abide with you.

Salaam Alaikum (Peace Be with You)

Listen to the Exhortation of the Dawn!

Look to this Day!

For it is Life, the very Life of Life.

In its brief course lie all the Verities and Realities of your Existence:

The Bliss of Growth,

The Glory of Action,

The Splendor of Beauty.

For Yesterday is but a Dream,

And To-morrow is only a Vision;

But To-day well-lived makes every Yesterday a Dream of Happiness,

And every To-morrow a Vision of Hope.

Look well therefore to this Day!

Such is the Salutation of the Dawn.

The Salutation of the Dawn, from the Sanskrit

The woman was not taken

From Adam's head, you know,

So she must not command him,

'Tis evidently so;

The woman was not taken

From Adam's feet, you see,

So he must not abuse her —

The meaning seems to be.

The woman she was taken

From under Adam's arm,

Which shows he must protect her

From injury and harm.

She will know the scent of the Eden rose, just once beneath the sun!

And whatever else she may win or lose, endure, or do, or dare,

She will never forget the enchantment it gave to the common air;

For the world may give her content or joy, fame, sorrow, or sacrifice,

But the hour that brought the scent of the rose, she lived it in Paradise.

Nothing Like Leather

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed,

Whose deeds, both great and small,
 Are close-knit strands of an unbroken thread,

Where love ennobles all.

The world may sound no trumpet, ring no bells;

The book of life the shining record tells.

*Attributed to Elizabeth Barrett Browning, but not found in her

The little cares that fretted me,

I lost them yesterday,

Among the fields above the sea,

Among the winds at play,

Among the lowing of the herds,

The rustling of the trees,

Among the singing of the birds,

The humming of the bees.

The foolish fears of what might pass

I cast them all away

Among the clover-scented grass

Among the new-mown hay,

Among the hushing of the corn

Where drowsy poppies nod,

Where ill thoughts die and good are born —

Out in the fields with God.

Tuesday's child is full of grace, Wednesday's child is loving and giving, Thursday's child works hard for a living.

Friday's child is full of woe, Saturday's child has far to go,
But the child that is born on the Sabbath-day

Is brave and bonny, and good and gay.
Birthdays (Quoted in Miser Farebrother by B. L. Farjeon, Harper's Weekly, September 17, 1887)

Cut your nails on Monday, cut them for wealth,

Cut them on Tuesday, cut them for health,

Cut them on Wednesday, cut them for news,

Cut them on Thursday, a new pair of Cut them on Friday, cut them for sor-

Cut them on Sunday, cut them for evil,

HIPPOCRATES

[460-377 B. C.]

Translation by WILLIAM HENRY RICH JONES [1817-1885]

I swear by Apollo Physician, by Asclepius, by Health, by Panacea, and by all the gods and goddesses, making them my witnesses, that I will carry out, according to my ability and judgment, this oath and this indenture. To hold my teacher in this art equal to my own parents; to make him partner in my livelihood; when he is in need of money to share mine with him; to consider his family as my own brothers, and to teach them this art, if they want to learn it, without fee or indenture. I will use treatment to help the sick according to my ability and judgment, but never with a view to injury and wrong doing. I will keep pure and holy both my life and my art. In whatsoever houses I enter, I will enter to help the sick, and I will abstain from all intentional wrong-doing and harm. And whatsoever I shall see or hear in the course of my profession in my intercourse with men, if it be what should not be published abroad, I will never divulge, holding such things to be holy secrets. Now if I carry out this oath, and break it not, may I gain forever reputation among all men for my life and for my art; but if I transgress it and forswear myself, may the opposite befall me.

The Physician's Oath

Healing is a matter of time, but it is sometimes also a matter of opportunity.

Precepts. Chap. 1

Sometimes give your services for nothing, calling to mind a previous benefaction or present satisfaction. And if there be an opportunity of serving one who is a stranger in financial straits, give full assistance to all such. For where there is love of man, there is also love of the art. For some patients, though conscious that their condition is perilous, recover their health simply through their contentment with the goodness of the physician. And it is well to superintend the sick to make them well, to care for the healthy to keep them well, but also to care for one's own self, so as to observe what is seemly.

Precepts. Chap. 6

In all abundance there is lack.

Ibid. Chap. 8

If for the sake of a crowded audience you do wish to hold a lecture, your ambition is no laudable one, and at least avoid all citations from the poets, for to quote them argues feeble industry.

Life is short and the art long.¹

Fragment 6

PLATO

[427-347 B. C.]

Translation by BENJAMIN JOWETT.
Oxford University Press

He who is of a calm and happy nature will hardly feel the pressure of age, but to him who is of an opposite disposition youth and age are equally a burden.

The Republic. Book I, 329-D

No physician, in so far as he is a physician, considers his own good in what he prescribes, but the good of his patient; for the true physician is also a ruler having the human body as a subject, and is not a mere money-maker.

Ibid. 342-D

When there is an income-tax, the just man will pay more and the unjust less on the same amount of income.

Ibid. 343-D

Mankind censure injustice, fearing that they may be the victims of it and not because they shrink from committing it.

Ibid. 344-C

¹ The golden olden glory of the days gone
by. — J. W. RILEY: The Days Gone By

The days that are no more.

TENNYSON: The Princess. Tears, Idle Tears

The beginning is the most important part of the work.

The Republic. Book II, 377-B

A fit of laughter which has been indulged to excess almost always produces a violent reaction.

Ibid. Book III, 388-E

Beauty of style and harmony and grace and good rhythm depend on simplicity.

Ibid. 400-D

Musical training is a more potent instrument than any other, because rhythm and harmony find their way into the inward places of the soul.

Ibid. 401-D

Gymnastic as well as music should begin in early years.

Ibid. 403-C

They do certainly give very strange and new-fangled names to diseases.

Ibid. 405-C

The judge should not be young; he should have learned to know evil, not from his own soul, but from late and long observation of the nature of evil in others: knowledge should be his guide, not personal experience.

Ibid. 409-B

Everything that deceives may be said to enchant.

Ibid. 413-C

Under the influence either of poverty or of wealth, workmen and their work are equally liable to degenerate.

Ibid. Book IV, 421-E

Wealth is the parent of luxury and indolence, and poverty of meanness and viciousness, and both of discontent.

Ibid. 422

The direction in which education starts a man will determine his future life.

Ibid. 425-B

What is the prime of life? May it not be defined as a period of about twenty years in a woman's life, and thirty in a man's?

Ibid. Book V, 460-E

Let there be one man who has a city obedient to his will, and he might bring into existence the ideal polity about which the world is so incredulous.

The Republic. Book V, 502-B

Astronomy compels the soul to look upwards and leads us from this world to another.

Ibid. Book VII, 529

I have hardly ever known a mathematician who was capable of reasoning.

Ibid. 531-E

Solon was under a delusion when he said that a man when he grows old may learn many things — for he can no more learn much than he can run much; youth is the time for any extraordinary toil.

Ibid. 536-D

Bodily exercise, when compulsory, does no harm to the body; but knowledge which is acquired under compulsion obtains no hold on the mind.

Ibid. 536-E

Let early education be a sort of amusement; you will then be better able to find out the natural bent.

Ibid. 537

The character of the son begins to develop when he hears his mother complaining that her husband has no place in the government, of which the consequence is that she has no precedence among other women.

Ibid. Book VIII, 549-C

Oligarchy: A government resting on a valuation of property, in which the rich have power and the poor man is deprived of it.

Ibid. 550-C

Democracy, which is a charming form of government, full of variety and disorder, and dispensing a sort of equality to equals and unequals alike.¹

Ibid. 558-C

The people have always some champion whom they set over them and nurse into greatness. . . . This and no other is the root from which a tyrant springs; when he first appears he is a protector.

In the early days of his power, he is full of smiles, and he salutes every one whom he meets.

The Republic. Book VIII, 566-D

When the tyrant has disposed of foreign enemies by conquest or treaty, and there is nothing to fear from them, then he is always stirring up some war or other, in order that the people may require a leader.

Ibid. 566-E

Has he not also another object which is that they may be impoverished by payment of taxes, and thus compelled to devote themselves to their daily wants and therefore less likely to conspire against him?

Ibid. 567

What a poor appearance the tales of poets make when stripped of the colours which music puts upon them, and recited in simple prose.

Ibid. Book X, 601-B

There are three arts which are concerned with all things: one which uses, another which makes, a third which imitates them.

Ibid. 601-D

No human thing is of serious importance.

Ibid.

The soul of man is immortal and imperishable.

Ibid. 608-D

These are the Fates, daughters of Necessity . . . Lachesis singing of the past, Clotho of the present, Atropos of the future.

Ibid. 617-C

You are young, my son, and, as the years go by, time will change and even reverse many of your present opinions. Refrain therefore awhile from setting yourself up as a judge of the highest matters.¹

Laws. 888

¹ I could never divide myself from any man upon the difference of an opinion, or be angry with his judgment for not agreeing with me in that from which perhaps within a few days I should dissent myself. — SIR THOMAS BROWNE: Religio Medici (Everyman ed.), P. 7

And this which you deem of no moment is the very highest of all: that is whether you have a right idea of the gods, whereby you may live your life well or ill.

Laws. 888

Not one of them who took up in his youth with this opinion that there are no gods, ever continued until old age faithful to his conviction.

[Circa 400 B. C.]

Criticism comes easier than craftsmanship.

Quoted by PLINY in Natural History

ARISTOTLE

[384-322 B. C.]

Poverty is the parent of revolution and crime.

Politics.¹ Book II

Even when laws have been written down, they ought not always to remain unaltered.

Ibid.

The law has no power to command obedience except that of habit, which can only be given by time, so that a readiness to change from old to new laws enfeebles the power of the law.

Ibid.

That judges of important causes should hold office for life is not a good thing, for the mind grows old as well as the body.

Ibid.

If liberty and equality, as is thought by some, are chiefly to be found in democracy, they will be best attained when all persons alike share in the government to the utmost.²

Ibid. Book IV

The best political community is formed by citizens of the middle class. Those States are likely to be well administered in which the middle class is large, and larger if possible than both the other classes, or at any rate than either singly; for the addition of the middle class turns the scale and prevents either of the extremes from being dominant.

Politics. Book IV

Inferiors revolt in order that they may be equal, and equals that they may be superior. Such is the state of mind which creates revolutions.

Ibid. Book V

Revolutions break out when opposite parties, the rich and the poor, are equally balanced, and there is little or nothing between them; for, if either party were manifestly superior, the other would not risk an attack upon them.

Ibid.

All admit that in a certain sense the several kinds of character are bestowed by nature. Justice, a tendency to Temperance, Courage, and the other types of character are exhibited from the moment of birth.

Nicomachean Ethics. VI, 13, 1

In practical matters the end is not mere speculative knowledge of what is to be done, but rather the doing of it. It is not enough to know about Virtue, then, but we must endeavour to possess it, and to use it, or to take any other steps that may make us good.

Ibid. X, 9, 1

The generality of men are naturally apt to be swayed by fear rather than by reverence, and to refrain from evil rather because of the punishment that it brings, than because of its own foulness.

Ibid.

What makes men good is held by some to be nature, by others habit or training, by others instruction. As for the goodness that comes by nature, this is plainly not within our control, but is bestowed by some divine agency on certain people who truly deserve to be called fortunate.

Ibid. Fable 6, A Religious Doctor

There was once, in a remote part of the East, a man who was altogether void of knowledge and experience, yet presumed to call himself a physician.

Ibid. Fable 8, The Ignorant Physician

He that plants thorns must never expect to gather roses.³

Ibid.

Honest men esteem and value nothing so much in this world as a real friend. Such a one is as it were another self, to whom we impart our most secret thoughts, who partakes of our joy, and comforts us in our affliction; add to this, that his company is an everlasting pleasure to us.

MARCUS TULLIUS CICERO

[106–43 B. C.]

For as lack of adornment is said to become some women, so this subtle oration, though without embellishment, gives delight.⁴

De Oratore. 78

Thus in the beginning the world was so made that certain signs come before certain events.⁵

De Divinatione. I, 118

He is never less at leisure than when at leisure.⁶

De Officiis. IX, 10

What a time! What a civilization! ⁷

Catiline. I, 1

For how many things, which for our own sake we should never do, do we perform for the sake of our friends.

De Amicitia. 8 XVI

¹ A proverbial expression, which, according to SUETONIUS, was frequently in the mouth of Tiberius Caesar.

² All things are in common among friends.

— DIOGENES LAERTIUS: Diogenes, VI

³ CICERO quotes this in Tusculan Questions, Book 3. The maxim was a favorite one with the Stoic philosophers.

⁷ O tempora! O mores!

⁸ Translated by CYRUS R. EDMONDS.

Nothing can be more disgraceful than to be at war with him with whom you have lived on terms of friendship.

De Amicitia. XXI

He removes the greatest ornament of friendship, who takes away from it respect.

Ibid. XXII

There is no greater bane to friendship than adulation, fawning, and flattery.

Ibid. XXV

Crimes are not to be measured by the issue of events, but from the bad intentions of men.

Paradox III

There is no place more delightful than home.

Epistolae. IV, 8

While the sick man has life there is hope.¹

Ibid. IX, 10

For as I like a young man in whom there is something of the old, so I like an old man in whom there is something of the young; and he who follows this maxim, in body will possibly be an old man, but he will never be an old man in mind.

De Senectute.² XI

Old age is by nature rather talkative.

Ibid. XVI

Old age, especially an honored old age, has so great authority, that this is of more value than all the pleasures of youth.

Ibid. XVII

Intelligence, and reflection, and judgment, reside in old men, and if there had been none of them, no states could exist at all.

Ibid. XIX

The short period of life is long enough for living well and honourably.³

² Translated by CYRUS R. EDMONDS.

³ Life is amply long for him who orders it properly. — SENECA: On the Shortness of Life, I, 4

The harvest of old age is the recollection and abundance of blessings previously secured.

De Senectute. XIX

Nor, in truth, would the honours of illustrious men continue after death, if their own spirits did not make us preserve a longer remembrance of them.

Ibid. XXII

Old age is the consummation of life, just as of a play.

HORACE

[65-8 B. C.]

*Everyman Edition*But if by thee place 'mid the bards I'm given,¹ Attributed to Virgil by CHARISIUS, the Grammarian, and by SÆTONIUS, though modern scholars question the authenticity of all the minor poems.² Quoted by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes in a radio address on his ninetieth birthday [March 8, 1931].³ Virgil wrote a distich, praising Caesar, and Bathyllus claimed the lines. To expose him, Virgil wrote beneath the distich the following incomplete verses, and Caesar asked Bathyllus to finish the lines. He could not, and Virgil then supplied the missing words (italicized below):Hos ego versiculos feci, tulit alter honores; Sic vos non vobis, fertis aratra boves;
Sic vos non vobis, mellificatis apes;
Sic vos non vobis, vellera fertis oves;
Sic vos non vobis, nidificatis aves.

PLINY THE ELDER

[A. D. 23-79]

With some alterations, from translations by JOHN BOSTOCK, M.D. [1773-1846] and HENRY THOMAS RILEY [1816-1878]. Bohn Classical Library

In comparing various authors with one another, I have discovered that some of the gravest and latest writers have transcribed, word for word, from former works, without making acknowledgment.

Natural History. Book I, Dedication, Sect. 22

The world, and whatever that be which we call the heavens, by the vault of which all things are enclosed, we must conceive to be a deity, to be eternal, without bounds, neither created nor subject at any time to destruction. To inquire what is beyond it is no concern of man; nor can the human mind form any conjecture concerning it.

Ibid. Book II, Sect. 1

It is ridiculous to suppose that the great head of things, whatever it be, pays any regard to human affairs.

Ibid. Sect. 20

Everything is soothed by oil, and this is the reason why divers send out small quantities of it from their mouths, because it smooths every part which is rough.²

² Why does pouring oil on the sea make it clear and calm? Is it for that the winds, slipping the smooth oil, have no force, nor cause any waves? — PLUTARCH: Natural Questions, IX Bishop Adain [A. D. 651] gave to a company about to take a journey by sea "some holy oil,

It is far from easy to determine whether she [Nature] has proved to him a kind parent or a merciless step-mother.¹

Natural History. Book VII, Sect. 1

Man alone at the very moment of his birth, cast naked upon the naked earth, does she abandon to cries and lamentations.²

Ibid. Sect. 2

To laugh, if but for an instant only, has never been granted to man before the fortieth day from his birth, and then it is looked upon as a miracle of precocity.³

Ibid.

Man is the only one that knows nothing, that can learn nothing without being taught. He can neither speak nor walk nor eat, and in short he can do nothing at the prompting of nature only, but weep.⁴

saying, 'I know that when you go abroad you will meet with a storm and contrary wind; but do you remember to cast this oil I give you into the sea, and the wind shall cease immediately.' — BEDE: Ecclesiastical History, Book III, Chap. 14

In JARED SPARKS' edition of BENJAMIN FRANKLIN'S Works, Vol. VI, P. 354, there are letters between Franklin, Brownrigg, and Parish on the stilling of waves by means of oil.

No more a mother, but a step-dame rather.

It was the custom among the ancients to place the new-born child upon the ground immediately after its birth.

⁴ No language but a cry. — TENNYSON: In Memoriam, LIV, 5

With man, most of his misfortunes are occasioned by man.¹

Natural History. Book VII, Sect. 5

Indeed, what is there that does not appear marvellous when it comes to our knowledge for the first time? ² How many things, too, are looked upon as quite impossible until they have been actually effected?

Ibid. Sect. 6

The human features and countenance, although composed of but some ten parts or little more, are so fashioned that among so many thousands of men there are no two in existence who cannot be distinguished from one another.³

Ibid. Sect. 8

All men possess in their bodies a poison which acts upon serpents; and the human saliva, it is said, makes them take to flight, as though they had been touched with boiling water. The same substance, it is said, destroys them the moment it enters their throat.⁴

Ibid. Sect. 15

It has been observed that the height of a man from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot is equal to the distance between the tips of the middle fingers of the two hands when extended in a straight line.

Ibid. Sect. 77

When a building is about to fall down, all the mice desert it.⁵

He having enticed one of them from his hiding-place, caught it in one hand, just below the jaw-bone, in such a manner as to oblige the mouth to open, when spitting into it, the effect was like magic: the reptile appeared struck with instant death. — Memoirs, Vol. I, Chap. 59

⁵ This is alluded to by CICERO in his letters to Atticus, and is mentioned by AELIAN (Animated Nature, Book VI, Chap. 41). Compare the modern proverb, "Rats desert a sinking ship."

Bears when first born are shapeless masses of white flesh a little larger than mice, their claws alone being prominent. The mother then licks them gradually into proper shape.¹

Natural History. Book VIII, Sect. 126

It has become quite a common proverb that in wine there is truth.

Ibid. Book XIV, Sect. 141

Cincinnatus was ploughing his four jugera of land upon the Vaticanian Hill, — the same that are still known as the Quintian Meadows, — when the messenger brought him the dictatorship, finding him, the tradition says, stripped to the work.

Ibid. Book XVIII, Sect. 20

The agricultural population, says Cato, produces the bravest men, the most valiant soldiers, and a class of citizens the least given of all to evil designs.

Ibid. Sect. 26

Why is it that we entertain the belief that for every purpose odd numbers are the most effectual? ²

Ibid. Book XXVIII, Sect. 23

It was a custom with Apelles, to which he most tenaciously adhered, never to let any day pass, however busy he might be, without exercising himself by tracing some outline or other, — a practice which has now passed into a proverb.³ It was also a practice with him, when he had completed a work, to exhibit it to the view of the passers-by in his studio, while he himself, con-

The next day, the shoemaker, quite proud at seeing the former error corrected, thanks to his advice, began to criticize the leg; upon which Apelles, full of indignation, popped his head out and reminded him that a shoemaker should give no opinion beyond the shoes,¹ — a piece of advice which has equally passed into a proverbial saying.

EPICETUS

[Circa A. D. 60]

Translation [1865] by THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON [1823-1911], based on that [1758] of ELIZABETH CARTER [1717-1806]

To a reasonable creature, that alone is insupportable which is unreasonable; but everything reasonable may be supported.

Discourses. Chap. 2

When you have shut your doors, and darkened your room, remember never to say that you are alone, for you are not alone; ³ but God is within, and your genius is within, — and what need have they of light to see what you are doing?

Ibid. Chap. 14

No great thing is created suddenly, any more than a bunch of grapes or a fig. If you tell me that you desire a fig, I answer you that there must be time. Let it first blossom, then bear fruit, then ripen.

Ibid. Chap. 15

Any one thing in the creation is sufficient to demonstrate a Providence to an humble and grateful mind.

Ibid. Chap. 16

Were I a nightingale, I would act the part of a nightingale; were I a swan, the part of a swan.

Ibid.

Since it is Reason which shapes and regulates all other things, it ought not itself to be left in disorder.

Ibid. Chap. 17

Practise yourself, for heaven's sake, in little things; and thence proceed to greater.

Discourses. Chap. 18

Why, then, do you walk as if you had swallowed a ramrod?

Ibid. Chap. 21

Difficulties are things that show what men are.

Ibid. Chap. 24

If we are not stupid or insincere when we say that the good or ill of man lies within his own will, and that all beside is nothing to us, why are we still troubled?

Ibid. Chap. 25

In theory there is nothing to hinder our following what we are taught; but in life there are many things to draw us aside.

Ibid. Chap. 26

Appearances to the mind are of four kinds. Things either are what they appear to be; or they neither are, nor appear to be; or they are, and do not appear to be; or they are not, and yet appear to be. Rightly to aim in all these cases is the wise man's task.

Ibid. Chap. 27

The appearance of things to the mind is the standard of every action to man.

That We Ought Not to Be Angry with Mankind. 27

For what constitutes a child? — Ignorance. What constitutes a child? — Want of instruction; for they are our equals so far as their degree of knowledge permits.

That Courage Is Not Inconsistent with Caution. Book II, 1

The materials of action are variable, but the use we make of them should be constant.

How the Semblances of Things Are to Be Combated. 18

Whatever you would make habitual, practise it; and if you would not make a thing habitual, do not practise it, but habituate yourself to something else.

Ibid.

Reckon the days in which you have not been angry. I used to be angry every day; now every other day; then every third and fourth day; and if you miss it so long as thirty days, offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving to God.

Ibid.

Be not hurried away by excitement, but say, "Semblance, wait for me a little. Let me see what you are and what you represent. Let me try you."

Ibid.

There are some things which men confess with ease, and others with difficulty.

Of Inconsistency. 21

Who is there whom bright and agreeable children do not attract to play and creep and prattle with them?

Concerning a Person Whom He Treated with Disregard. 24

Two rules we should always have ready, — that there is nothing good or evil save in the will; and that we are not to lead events, but to follow them.

MARCUS AURELIUS ANTONINUS

[A. D. 121-180]

Translation by MORRIS HICKEY MORGAN [1859-1910]

This Being of mine, whatever it really is, consists of a little flesh, a little breath, and the part which governs.

Meditations. II, 2

The ways of the gods are full of providence.

Ibid. 3

Thou wilt find rest from vain fancies if thou doest every act in life as though it were thy last.¹

Ibid. 5

Find time still to be learning somewhat good, and give up being desultory.

Ibid. 7

No state sorrier than that of the man who keeps up a continual round, and pries into "the secrets of the nether world," as saith the poet, and is curious in conjecture of what is in his neighbour's heart.

Ibid. 13

Though thou be destined to live three thousand years and as many myriads besides, yet remember that no man loseth other life than that which he liveth, nor liveth other than that which he loseth.

Ibid. 14

For a man can lose neither the past nor the future; for how can one take from him that which is not his? So remember these two points: first, that each thing is of like form from everlasting and comes round again in its cycle, and that it signifies not whether a man shall look upon the same things for a hundred years or two hundred, or for an infinity of time; second, that the longest lived and the shortest lived man, when they come to die, lose one and the same thing.

As for life, it is a battle and a sojourning in a strange land; but the fame that comes after is oblivion.

Meditations. II, 17

Waste not the remnant of thy life in those imaginations touching other folk, whereby thou contributest not to the common weal.

Ibid. III, 4

A man should be upright, not be kept upright.

Ibid. 5

Never esteem anything as of advantage to thee that shall make thee break thy word or lose thy self-respect.

Ibid. 7

Let no act be done at haphazard, nor otherwise than according to the finished rules that govern its kind.

Ibid. IV, 2

By a tranquil mind I mean nothing else than a mind well ordered.

Ibid. 3

Think on this doctrine, — that reasoning beings were created for one another's sake; that to be patient is a branch of justice, and that men sin without intending it.

Ibid.

The universe is change; our life is what our thoughts make it.

Ibid.

Nothing can come out of nothing,¹ any more than a thing can go back to nothing.

Ibid. 4

Death, like generation, is a secret of Nature.

Ibid. 5

That which makes the man no worse than he was makes his life no worse: it has no power to harm, without or within.

Ibid. 8

Whatever happens at all happens as it should; thou wilt find this true, if thou shouldst watch narrowly.

Ibid. 10

How much time he gains who does not look to see what his neighbour says or does or thinks, but only at what he does himself, to make it just and holy.

Meditations. IV, 18

Whatever is in any way beautiful hath its source of beauty in itself, and is complete in itself; praise forms no part of it. So it is none the worse nor the better for being praised.

Ibid. 20

All that is harmony for thee, O Universe, is in harmony with me as well. Nothing that comes at the right time for thee is too early or too late for me. Everything is fruit to me that thy seasons bring, O Nature. All things come of thee, have their being in thee, and return to thee.

Ibid. 23

"Let thine occupations be few," saith the sage,¹ "if thou wouldst lead a tranquil life."

Ibid. 24

Love the little trade which thou hast learned, and be content therewith.

Ibid. 31

Remember this, — that there is a proper dignity and proportion to be observed in the performance of every act of life.

Ibid. 32

All is ephemeral, — fame and the famous as well.

Ibid. 35

Observe always that everything is the result of a change, and get used to thinking that there is nothing Nature loves so well as to change existing forms and to make new ones like them.

Ibid. 36

Search men's governing principles, and consider the wise, what they shun and what they cleave to.

Ibid. 38

Time is a sort of river of passing events, and strong is its current; no sooner is a thing brought to sight than it is swept by and another takes its place, and this too will be swept away.

All that happens is as usual and familiar as the rose in spring and the crop in summer.

Meditations. IV, 44

That which comes after ever conforms to that which has gone before.

Ibid. 45

Mark how fleeting and paltry is the estate of man, — yesterday in embryo, to-morrow a mummy or ashes. So for the hair's-breadth of time assigned to thee live rationally, and part with life cheerfully, as drops the ripe olive, extolling the season that bore it and the tree that matured it.

Ibid. 48

Deem not life a thing of consequence. For look at the yawning void of the future, and at that other limitless space, the past.

Ibid. 50

Always take the short cut; and that is the rational one. Therefore say and do everything according to soundest reason.

Ibid. 51

In the morning, when thou art sluggish at rousing thee, let this thought be present; "I am rising to a man's work."

Ibid. V, 1

A man makes no noise over a good deed, but passes on to another as a vine to bear grapes again in season.

Ibid. 6

Nothing happens to anybody which he is not fitted by nature to bear.

Ibid. 18

Live with the gods.

Ibid. 27

Look beneath the surface; let not the several quality of a thing nor its worth escape thee.

Ibid. VI, 3

The controlling Intelligence understands its own nature, and what it does, and whereon it works.

Ibid. 5

Do not think that what is hard for thee to master is impossible for man; but if a thing is possible and proper to man, deem it attainable by thee.

Ibid. 19

If any man can convince me and bring home to me that I do not think or act aright, gladly will I change; for I search after truth, by which man never yet was harmed.

Meditations. VI, 21

What is not good for the swarm is not good for the bee.

Ibid. 54

How many, once lauded in song, are given over to the forgotten; and how many who sung their praises are clean gone long ago!

Ibid. VII, 6

One Universe made up of all that is; and one God in it all, and one principle of Being, and one Law, the Reason, shared by all thinking creatures, and one Truth.

Ibid. 9

Let not thy mind run on what thou lackest as much as on what thou hast already.

Ibid. 27

Just as the sand-dunes, heaped one upon another, hide each the first, so in life the former deeds are quickly hidden by those that follow after.

Ibid. 34

The art of living is more like wrestling than dancing, in so far as it stands ready against the accidental and the unforeseen, and is not apt to fall.

Ibid. 61

Remember this, — that very little is needed to make a happy life.

Ibid. 67

Remember that to change thy mind and to follow him that sets thee right, is to be none the less the free agent that thou wast before.

Ibid. VIII, 16

Look to the essence of a thing, whether it be a point of doctrine, of practice, or of interpretation.

Ibid. 22

Be not careless in deeds, nor confused in words, nor rambling in thought.

Ibid. 51

Think not disdainfully of death, but look on it with favour; for even death is one of the things that Nature wills.

Ibid. IX, 3

A wrong-doer is often a man that has left something undone, not always he that has done something.

Meditations. IX, 5

Blot out vain pomp; check impulse; quench appetite; keep reason under its own control.

Ibid. 7

Things that have a common quality ever quickly seek their kind.

Ibid. 9

All things are the same, — familiar in enterprise, momentary in endurance, coarse in substance. All things now are as they were in the day of those whom we have buried.

Ibid. 14

Everything is in a state of metamorphosis. Thou thyself art in everlasting change and in corruption to correspond; so is the whole universe.

Ibid. 19

Forward, as occasion offers. Never look round to see whether any shall note it. . . . Be satisfied with success in even the smallest matter, and think that even such a result is no trifle.

Ibid. 29

Whatever may befall thee, it was pre-ordained for thee from everlasting.

Ibid. X, 5

"The earth loveth the shower," and "the holy ether knoweth what love is."¹ The Universe, too, loves to create whatsoever is destined to be made.

"Bury me on my face," said Diogenes; and when he was asked why, he replied, "Because in a little while everything will be turned upside down."

Ibid. 6

All things are in common among friends.

Ibid.

Plato having defined man to be a two-legged animal without feathers, Diogenes plucked a cock and brought it into the Academy, and said, "This is Plato's man." On which account this addition was made to the definition, — "With broad flat nails."

Ibid.

A man once asked Diogenes what was the proper time for supper, and he made answer, "If you are a rich man, whenever you please; and if you are a poor man, whenever you can."¹

Ibid.

Diogenes lighted a candle in the daytime, and went round saying, "I am looking for a man."²

Ibid.

When asked what he would take to let a man give him a blow on the head, he said, "A helmet."

⁶ AESCHINES [389–314 B. C.] ascribes to Demosthenes the expression, "The sinews of affairs are cut" (Adv. Ctesiphon, Chap. 53). DIOGENES LAERTIUS, in his Life of Bion, Book IV, Chap. 7, Sect. 3, represents Bion as saying, "Riches were the sinews of business," or, as the phrase may mean, "of the state." Referring perhaps to this maxim of the philosopher Bion, PLUTARCH says in his Life of Cleomenes, "He that first said that money was the sinews of affairs, seems especially in that saying to refer to war" (Modern Library Giant ed., P. 986). Accordingly we find money called expressly "the sinews of war" in LIBANIUS, Oration 46, and by the scholiast on PINDAR, Olymp., I, 4, and in CICERO, Philipp., V, 2, "nervos belli, infinitam pecuniam."

Reflections, or Sentences and Moral Maxims

Our virtues are most frequently but vices disguised.¹

We have all sufficient strength to endure the misfortunes of others.

Maxim 19

Philosophy triumphs easily over past evils and future evils; but present evils triumph over it.²

Maxim 22

We need greater virtues to sustain good than evil fortune.

Maxim 25

Neither the sun nor death can be looked at with a steady eye.

Maxim 26

If we were without faults, we should not take so much pleasure in remarking them in others.

Maxim 31

Interest speaks all sorts of tongues, and plays all sorts of parts, even that of disinterestedness.

Maxim 39

We are never so happy nor so unhappy as we imagine.

There are few people who would not be ashamed of being loved when they love no longer.

Maxim 71

True love is like ghosts, which everybody talks about and few have seen.

Maxim 76

The love of justice is simply, in the majority of men, the fear of suffering injustice.

Maxim 78

Silence is the best resolve for him who distrusts himself.

Maxim 79

Friendship is only a reciprocal conciliation of interests, and an exchange of good offices; it is a species of commerce out of which self-love always expects to gain something.

Maxim 83

Everyone complains of his memory, and no one complains of his judgment.

Maxim 89

A man who is ungrateful is often less to blame than his benefactor.

Maxim 96

The understanding is always the dupe of the heart.

Maxim 102

Nothing is given so profusely as advice.

Maxim 110

The true way to be deceived is to think oneself more knowing than others.

Maxim 127

Usually we praise only to be praised.

Maxim 146

Our repentance is not so much regret for the ill we have done as fear of the ill that may happen to us in consequence.

Maxim 180

Most people judge men only by success or by fortune.

Maxim 212

Hypocrisy is a homage vice pays to virtue.

Maxim 218

Too great haste to repay an obligation is a kind of ingratitude.

Maxim 226

There is great ability in knowing how to conceal one's ability.

Maxim 245

The pleasure of love is in loving. We are happier in the passion we feel than in that we inspire.¹

Maxim 259

We always like those who admire us; we do not always like those whom we admire.

Maxim 294

The gratitude of most men is but a secret desire of receiving greater benefits.²

Maxim 298

Lovers are never tired of each other, though they always speak of themselves.

Maxim 312

We pardon in the degree that we love.

Maxim 330

We hardly find any persons of good sense save those who agree with us.³

Maxim 347

The greatest fault of a penetrating wit is to go beyond the mark.

Maxim 377

We may give advice, but we cannot inspire the conduct.

Maxim 378

The veracity which increases with old age is not far from folly.

Maxim 416

Nothing prevents our being natural so much as the desire to appear so.

Maxim 431

In their first passion women love their lovers, in all the others they love love.⁴

Maxim 471

Quarrels would not last long if the fault was only on one side.

And in this career they let nothing hinder them: neither winter nor summer, snow nor ice, heat nor cold, rain nor wind, hill nor dale, wet nor dry; ditches, mountain-passes, ramparts and walls, fire and water, were all the same to them. Father nor mother, sister nor brother, no, nor the danger to their own bodies, souls, and consciences, nor even loss of life and of heaven itself, or aught else that can be named, will ever stand in their way, for ever they toil and moil at their own strange work, till at last, little by little, in battles, sieges, attacks, campaigns, *Émile, or Education*¹ [1762].

Book I

Medicine is all the fashion in these days, and very naturally. It is the amusement of the idle and unemployed, who do not know what to do with their time in taking care of themselves. If by ill-luck they had happened to be born immortal, they would have been the most miserable of men; a life they could not lose would be of no value to them. Such men must have doctors to threaten and flatter them, to give them the only pleasure they can enjoy, the pleasure of not being dead.

Ibid.

Hygiene is the only useful part of medicine, and hygiene is rather a virtue than a science. Temperance and industry are man's true remedies; work sharpens his appetite and temperance teaches him to control it.

Ibid.

What wisdom can you find that is greater than kindness?

Ibid. Book II

Introduction

Amid the pressure of great events, a general principle gives no help.

Ibid.

To him who looks upon the world rationally, the world in its turn presents a rational aspect. The relation is mutual.

Ibid.

The history of the world is none other than the progress of the consciousness of Freedom.

Ibid.

We may affirm absolutely that nothing great in the world has been accomplished without passion.

Ibid.

It is easier to discover a deficiency in individuals, in states, and in Providence, than to see their real import and value.

Ibid.

Life has a value only when it has something valuable as its object.

Ibid.

Serious occupation is labor that has reference to some want.

Ibid. Part I, Sect. 2, Chap. 1

It is a matter of perfect indifference where a thing originated; the only question is: "Is it true in and for itself?"

Ibid. Part III, Sect. 3, Chap. 2

When liberty is mentioned, we must always be careful to observe whether it is not really the assertion of private interests which is thereby designated.

Ibid. Part IV, Sect. 3, Chap. 2

The Few assume to be the deputies, but they are often only the despoilers of the Many.

A certain amount of care or pain or trouble is necessary for every man at all times. A ship without ballast is unstable and will not go straight.

*Studies in Pessimism.*² On the Sufferings of the World

Suicide thwarts the attainment of the highest moral aim by the fact that, for a real release from this world of misery, it substitutes one that is merely apparent.

Ibid. On Suicide

Hatred comes from the heart; contempt from the head; and neither feeling is quite within our control.

Ibid. Psychological Observations

If a man sets out to hate all the miserable creatures he meets, he will not have much energy left for anything else; whereas he can despise them, one and all, with the greatest ease.

Ibid.

Every man takes the limits of his own field of vision for the limits of the world.

Not to go to the theatre is like making one's toilet without a mirror.

Studies in Pessimism. Psychological Observations

Every parting gives a foretaste of death; every coming together again a foretaste of the resurrection.

Ibid.

There is no absurdity so palpable but that it may be firmly planted in the human head if you only begin to inculcate it before the age of five, by constantly repeating it with an air of great solemnity.

Ibid.

Opinion is like a pendulum and obeys the same law. If it goes past the centre of gravity on one side, it must go a like distance on the other; and it is only after a certain time that it finds the true point at which it can remain at rest.

Ibid.

It is a curious fact that in bad days we can very vividly recall the good time that is now no more; but that in good days we have only a very cold and imperfect memory of the bad.

Ibid.

The fundamental fault of the female character is that it has no sense of justice.

Ibid. On Women

Dissimulation is innate in woman, and almost as much a quality of the stupid as of the clever.

Ibid.

Noise is the most impertinent of all forms of interruption. It is not only an interruption, but also a disruption of thought.

Ibid. On Noise

The most general survey shows us that the two foes of human happiness are pain and boredom.

Essays. Personality, or What a Man Is

A man who has no mental needs, because his intellect is of the narrow and normal amount, is, in the strict sense of the word, what is called a philistine.

Ibid.

Fame and honor are twins; and twins, too, like Castor and Pollux, of whom one was mortal and the other was not. Fame is the undying brother of ephemeral honor.

Essays. Fame

Pride is an established conviction of one's own paramount worth in some particular respect; while vanity is the desire of rousing such a conviction in others. Pride works from within; it is the direct appreciation of oneself. Vanity is the desire to arrive at this appreciation indirectly, from without.

Ibid. Pride

Ignorance is degrading only when found in company with riches.

Ibid. On Books and Reading

Intellect is invisible to the man who has none.

Ibid. Our Relation to Others, Sect. 23

There is no more mistaken path to happiness than worldliness, revelry, high life.

Ibid. Our Relation to Ourselves, Sect. 24

To be alone is the fate of all great minds — a fate deplored at times, but still always chosen as the less grievous of two evils.

Ibid.

Rascals are always sociable, and the chief sign that a man has any nobility in his character is the little pleasure he takes in others' company.

Counsels and Maxims. Chap. 2

Do not shorten the morning by getting up late; look upon it as the quintessence of life, as to a certain extent sacred.

Ibid.

Speak without emphasizing your words. Leave other people to discover what it is that you have said; and as their minds are slow, you can make your escape in time.

Ibid. Chap. 3

ALPHONSE M. L. LAMARTINE
[1790-1869]

What is our life but a succession of preludes to that unknown song whose first solemn note is sounded by Death?

Love is the enchanted dawn of every heart, but what mortal is there over whose first joys and happiness does not break some storm, dispelling with its icy breath his fanciful illusions, and shattering his altar? What soul, thus cruelly wounded, does not at times try to dream away the recollection of such storms in the solitude of country life? And yet, man, it seems, is not able to bear the languid rest on Nature's bosom, and when the trumpet sounds the signal of danger, he hastens to join his comrades, no matter what the cause that calls him to arms. He rushes into the thickest of the fight and amid the uproar of the battle regains confidence in himself and his powers.¹

Ninety-Three. Part I, Book II, Chap. 7

Nothing is more gentle than smoke, nothing more frightful. There is the smoke of peace, and the smoke of villainy. Smoke, the density and colour of smoke, makes all the difference between peace and war, between brotherhood and hatred, between hospitality and the grave, between life and death. Smoke rising through the trees may signify the most charming thing in the world, the hearth; or the most terrible, a conflagration.

Book IV, Chap. 7*

There is a sacred horror about everything grand. It is easy to admire mediocrity and hills; but whatever is too lofty, a genius as well as a mountain, an assembly as well as a masterpiece, seen too near, is appalling. . . . Hence, there is more dismay than admiration.

COUNT LYOF NIKOLAYE- VITCH TOLSTOI

The Frenchman is conceited from supposing himself mentally and physically to be inordinately fascinating both to men and to women. An Englishman is conceited on the ground of being a citizen of the best-constituted state in the world, and also because he as an Englishman always knows what is the correct thing to do, and knows that everything that he, as an Englishman, does do is indisputably the best thing. An Italian is conceited from being excitable and easily forgetting himself and other people. A Russian is conceited precisely because he knows nothing and cares to know nothing, since he does not believe it possible to know anything fully. A conceited German is the worst of them all, and the most hardened of all, and the most repulsive of all; for he imagines that he possesses the truth in a science of his own invention, which is to him absolute truth.

FRIEDRICH WILHELM NIETZSCHE

[1844-1900]

Our destiny exercises its influence over us even when, as yet, we have not learned its nature: it is our future that lays down the law of our to-day.

*Human, All Too Human.*² 7

Much more happiness is to be found in the world than gloomy eyes discover.

Ibid. 49

One must have a good memory to be able to keep the promises one makes.

Ibid. 59

One will rarely err if extreme actions be ascribed to vanity, ordinary actions to habit, and mean actions to fear.

Ibid. 74

How poor the human mind would be without vanity! It resembles a well stocked and ever renewed ware-emporium that attracts buyers of every class: they can find almost everything, have almost everything, provided they bring with them the right kind of money — admiration.

Ibid.

Every man who has declared that some other man is an ass or a scoundrel, gets angry when the other man conclusively shows that the assertion was erroneous.

Ibid. 90

Every tradition grows ever more venerable — the more remote is its origin, the more confused that origin is. The reverence due to it increases from generation to generation. The tradition finally becomes holy and inspires awe.

Human, All Too Human. 96

I teach you the Superman. Man is something that is to be surpassed.

*Thus Spake Zarathustra.*¹ Prologue, Chap. 3

Man is a rope stretched between the animal and the Superman — a rope over an abyss.

Ibid. Chap. 4

I want to teach men the sense of their existence, which is the Superman, the lightning out of the dark cloud man.

Ibid. Chap. 7

No small art is it to sleep: it is necessary for that purpose to keep awake all day.

Ibid. Part I, Chap. 2

This is hardest of all: to close the open hand out of love, and keep modest as a giver.

Ibid. Part II, Chap. 23

Beggars, however, one should entirely do away with! Verily, it annoyeth one to give unto them, and it annoyeth one not to give unto them.²

Ibid. Chap. 25

The sting of conscience teacheth one to sting.

Ibid.

Distrust all in whom the impulse to punish is powerful.

Ibid. Chap. 29

Ah, there are so many things betwixt heaven and earth of which only the poets have dreamed!

Ibid. Chap. 39

Believe me, friend Hollaballoo! The greatest events are not our noisiest, but our stillest hours.

many things.¹

Ibid. Part IV, Chap. 64

We ought to learn from the kine one thing: ruminating.

Ibid. Chap. 68

Then learnedst thou how much harder it is to give properly than to take properly, and that bestowing well

Aphorism 9*

The broad effects which can be obtained by punishment in man and sharpening of the sense of cunning, the mastery of the desires; so it is that punishment tames man, but does not make him "better."

Genealogy of Morals. Third Essay, Aphorism 9

The sick are the greatest danger for the healthy; it is not from the strongest that harm comes to the strong, but from the weakest.

Ibid. Aphorism 14

Ibid. Part II, Page 8

It is often simply from want of the creative spirit that we do not go to the full extent of suffering. And the most terrible reality brings us, with our suffering, the joy of a great discovery, because it merely gives a new and clear form to what we have long been ruminating without suspecting it.

I thought how markedly . . . these works [Richard Wagner's music dramas] participate in that quality of being — albeit marvellously — always incomplete, which is the peculiarity of all the great works of the nineteenth century, with which the greatest writers of that century have stamped their books, but, watching themselves at work as though they were at once author and critic, have derived from this self-contemplation a novel beauty, exterior and superior to the work itself, imposing upon it retrospectively a unity, a greatness which it does not possess.

The Captive. Page 211

The bonds that unite another person to ourself exist only in our mind. Memory as it grows fainter relaxes them, and notwithstanding the illusion by which we would fain be cheated and with which, out of love, friendship, politeness, deference, duty, we cheat other people, we exist alone. Man is the creature that cannot emerge from himself; that knows his fellows only in himself; when he asserts the contrary, he is lying.

The Sweet Cheat Gone. Page 47

We believe that according to our desire we are able to change the things round about us, we believe this because otherwise we can see no favourable solution. We forget the solution that generally comes to pass and is also favourable: we do not succeed in changing things according to our desire, but gradually our desire changes. The situation that we hoped to change because it was intolerable becomes unimportant. We have not managed to surmount the obstacle, as we were absolutely determined to do, but life has taken us round it, led us past it, and then if we turn round to gaze at the remote past, we can barely catch sight of it, so imperceptible has it become.

All interest in disease and death is only another expression of interest in life, as is proven by the humanistic faculty of medicine, that addresses life and its ails always so politely in Latin, and is only a division of the great and pressing concern which, in all sympathy, I now name by its name: the human being, the delicate child of life, man.

The great Jehovah speaks to us
 In Genesis and Exodus; Leviticus and Numbers see, Followed by Deuteronomy.
 Joshua and Judges sway the land,
 Ruth gleans a sheaf with trembling hand,
 Samuel and numerous Kings appear, Whose Chronicles we wondering hear;
 Ezra and Nehemiah now
 Esther, the beauteous mourner, show; Job speaks in sighs, David in Psalms,
 The Proverbs teach to scatter alms.
 Ecclesiastes then comes on And the sweet Song of Solomon.
 Isaiah, Jeremiah then,
 With Lamentations takes his pen.
 Ezekiel, Daniel, Hosea's lyres Swell Joel, Amos, Obadiah's.
 Next Jonah, Micah, Nahum come,
 And lofty Habakkuk finds room.
 While Zephaniah, Haggai call, Rapt Zechariah builds his wall,
 And Malachi with garments rent, Concludes the ancient Testament.

Old Testament. (American Tract Society, 1852)

Matthew and Mark, and Luke and John,
 The Holy Gospels wrote, Describing how the Saviour died —
 His life — and all He taught; Acts prove how God the Apostles owned
 With signs in every place;
 St. Paul, in Romans, teaches us How man is saved by grace;
 The Apostle, in Corinthians, Instructs, exhorts, reproves;
 Galatians shows that faith in Christ

Alone the Father loves.
 Ephesians and Philippians tell What Christians ought to be;
 Colossians bids us live to God
 And for eternity.
 In Thessalonians we are taught
 The Lord will come from Heaven;
 In Timothy and Titus
 A bishop's rule is given.
 Philemon marks a Christian's love,
 Which only Christians know; Hebrews reveals the Gospel Prefigured by the law;
 James teaches without holiness Faith is but vain and dead;
 St. Peter points the narrow way
 In which the saints are led;
 John, in his three Epistles,
 On love delights to dwell;
 St. Jude gives awful warning Of judgment, wrath, and hell;
 The Revelation prophesies
 Of that tremendous day When Christ, and Christ alone, shall be The trembling sinner's stay.

 Matthew, and Thomas who doubted His word, Simon, and Judas who sold his Lord.

² This is derived from a Latin antiphon, said to have been composed by Notker, a monk of St. Gall, in 911, while watching some workmen building a bridge at Martinsbrücke, in peril of their lives. It forms the groundwork of Luther's antiphon De Morte.

³ Through a typographical error, the word "own" was changed to "old" in the first printing of the Revision of 1928.

The iron entered into his soul.

The Psalter. Psalms, CV, 18

God, in whom we live and move and have our being.

Family Prayer. Morning

O Lord, support us all the day long, until the shadows lengthen and the evening comes, and the busy world is hushed, and the fever of life is over, and our work is done. Then in thy mercy grant us a safe lodging, and a holy rest, and peace at the last.¹

Ibid. At Night

O God of peace, who hast taught us that in returning and rest we shall be saved, in quietness and in confidence shall be our strength; By the might of thy Spirit lift us, we pray thee, to thy presence, where we may be still and know that thou art God.

*Ibid. For Quiet Confidence*²

O Heavenly Father, who hast filled the world with beauty; open, we beseech thee, our eyes to behold thy gracious hand in all thy works; that rejoicing in thy whole creation, we may learn to serve thee with gladness.³

*Ibid. For Joy in God's Creation*⁴ that he will know on earth, 841 that I am to be, I would give, 366 that I could see, 915 that I could think of, 702 that I was I am, 869 that I would and cannot be,

that is above fulfilment, 799 that's dusty tame and old, 912 that is human, 965
that is left of the Caesars' gold, 841 that lies on the ocean's floor, 910 that live must die, 89 that makes a man, and, 471 that mankind has done thought gained or been, 381 that may become a man, 85 that men held wise, 146 that once was I, 916 that once you knew, 879 that time could wither, 373 that to heaven and earth relates, 306
that was beautiful, 771 that was exquisite and rare, ignoring, 788
that we cherished, 666 that we have lost, live as much Aloha means I love you, 920 Aloha Oe, so I say, 920 Alone all all alone, 315 and shut the door, once we are, 841 and thou, art there, 403 at night, flying, 841 give me to live with love, 406 how can it be said I am, 42

 I did it. — Boy! 76
 I lie down, 744
 I lingered, on the shore, 418 in solitude we are least, 353 in the midst of crowds, 324 leaving me never, 652
 made up of loveliness, 405 man dwells apart though not, 540 man should not be, 1097 needs must act, 80 never say that you are, 1007 never would leave me, 850 no man can feel himself, 750 on a wide wide sea, 315 shut to him who comes, 444 sing when all, 484 speaks to the heart, 501 strongest man most, 487 than pine in a palace, 545 than when alone, never less, 271, 289 that worn-out word, 425 thou worstest never, 573 travels fastest who travels, 783 upon the other side, step, 603 use sometimes to be, 136 with his friends, 190 with his glory, 364 with my conscience, 681 with noble thoughts, 27 with silence, to be, 688 eyes of my cash-box, 1046 for patriot dream, 737 for situation, 1104 in this living, 834 is love, 834

is night, how, 322
loved her for that she was, 506 most, verb in the world, 1083 mouth in the world, most, 222
- Beautiful necessity, from a, 477 new cases of curved spine, 430 nothing happen more, than death, 534
old rhyme, 108 outward, appear, 1116 over house-tops, moon, 536 palace, the, 171
pale clay, 595
palms of Allah, 952
pea-green boat, in a, 498 Rosalie Lee, was my, 432 seems right by force, 430 that war and all its deeds, 536 the seeds of godlike power, 545 the, the bright, 665 things and wept, they said, 931 upon the mountains, how, 1112 what a deal of scorn looks, 55 what could be more, 921 whole out of commonplace things, 683
wisdom, even in, 960 within, make thee, 442
- Beautifully blue, 322
- Beautifying touch, its, 690
- Beauty, a hint of the old lost, 445
a thing of, 382
a witty, 576
about a home life, 1076 adorned in naked, 152 an attractive, 1036 and emotion in sea, 856 and goodness, connection of, 571 and her chivalry, 352
and mystery of the ships, 436 and the stars were one, 816 and truth are worthy to be sought, 655
as could die, as much, 119 barbarous in, 672 be with me, 834
being the best of all, 668 bereft of, 52
born of murmuring sound, 297 but skin deep, 506
calls and glory shows the way, 186 come near your, 68 courage youth, 832
crieth in an attic, 614 crowned, by mourning, 581 curved is the line of, 444 dead, black chaos comes again, 106 dedicate his, to the sun, 77 dim, at the heart of things, 754 divinely superfluous, 895 double, whenever a swan, 391 draws us with a single hair, 125, 212
dreamed that life was, 508 drunk with a, 801 e'er gave, all that, 244 Elysian, 303
fades away, slowly thy perfect, 619 fashioned well, 1071 fatal gift of, 354
fed my common earth, 832 filling all the land with, 705 fills the air around with, 354 flowing curves of, 444 for ashes, 1112

- Beauty, form of manliest, 274 full-blown flower of glorious, 179 furl'd in the commonplace, 625 garmented in light from her own, 367
 great perils have this, 1069 grew, the conscious stone to, 408
 has no ebb, 790
 hath its source in itself, 1010 hath strange power, 157 hold a plea, shall, 107 home, come with, 834 humbled to the earth, 931 if she unmask her, 90
 I'm not a great star, as a, 845 impassioned for its, 429 in a brow of Egypt, 43 in all things, 385
 in his life, daily, 103 in the heart, 833
 in the, of the lilies, 522 in this plain room, 866 invisible, 849
 is a flower, 840 is a joy forever, thing of, 382 is a pledge, 770 is a short-lived tyranny, 1014 is a silent deceit, 1014 is an ivory mischief, 1014 is eternity, 880 is indescribable, 770 is its own excuse, 409, 441 is its own reward, 918 is not immortal, 836 is pleasure, 769 is that Medusa's head, 914 is the best introduction, 1014 is the gift of God, 1014 is truth, truth beauty, 383 isle of, fare thee well, 388 itself doth of itself persuade, 106 king arrayed in his, 387 led captive, 156
 lies in many eyes, 335 lies, the cynosure, 160 lies unseen, in the rough marble, 445
 like the night, walks in, 356 lingers, lines where, 355 lives though lilies die, 881 makes this vault a feasting presence, 80 making beautiful old rhyme, 108 met some young, 1000 more amiable than, 196 must be truth, 385
 no, that hath not some strangeness, 111
 nor good talk, 786
 of a butterfly's wing, 930 of a human face, with the little, 834 of a thousand stars, clad in
 the, 32
 of an aged face, 868 of growing plants, 1049 of old men is the grey head, 1108 of style and harmony, 973 of surpassing, 979
- Beauty of the good old cause, 298 of the house is order, 953 of the slender red line, 542 of the world, 169
 of things, 895
 old age, ill layer-up of, 68 on the shore, left their, 408 or form we are borrowers, to, 480 perception of, a moral test, 515 perils have this, 1069 poetry as rhythmical creation of, 461
 possessor of, 483 power of, I remember the, 176 principal, 147
 provoketh thieves, 48 pure classic, 930
 put on, 811 rings of, 572
 rules the roast, 984 scandal the doom of, 986 see naught but vanity in, 522 seems right by force of, 430 seen in one autumnal face, 117 shall be, so long as, 1017 share, unashamed his, 931 she walks in, 356 should harbour a heart, 256 slain, with him is, 106 smiling in her tears, 327 soon grows familiar, 194 stands in the admiration, 156 stands looking, when, 1085 still, such seems your, 108 such, as a woman's eye, 41 that is to be, 757
 that underlies, for the possible, 560
 the mate for, 425
 the splendor of, 953
 there is music in the, 145 there's too much, 792 thou art all, 187
 though injurious, 157
 to die for, 409
 to sport with, 337
 truly blent, 54 truth and love are one, 668 waking or asleep, 153 wandering, eternal, 790 what so nameless as, 868 which old Greece or Rome, 442 who walks with, 891 why talk of, 921 will decay, 269
 winds of March with, 56 with thee in, 555
 without grace, 414 without vanity strength without insolence, 351 wrought from within, 645 yet to find, is there, 893 Beauty's chain, hour with, 337 ears, gem that hangs from, 267 ensign is crimson, 80 heavenly ray, 356
 perfect round, 682 self rose visible, 869
 Beaux, where none are, 239
 Beaver hat, on account of his, 498 in Canadian brooks, 451 Becalmed at eve, as ships, 519
- Becalmed by the shores of age, 644
 Beck, they follow the, 756
 Beckoning shadows dire, 157 Beckons me away, a hand which,
 205
 Becks and wreathed smiles, 160 Become what we are capable of becoming, 704 Becomes him ill, nothing, 41 the throned monarch, 46 Becoming mirth, limit of, 41 Bed, all of man's peril comes of, 610
 and board, peace and plenty, 936 and so to, 180, 867
 as you lay in your, 941 at Ware, 200
 bad luck sits by your, 640 be blest that I lie on, 164 born in, we die in, 1043 bravely thou becomest thy, 105 by night, 251
 cottage-chamber, 568 cursed him in, 351
 day-star in the ocean, 159 delicious, 391 died quietly in his, 577 dread grave as little as my, 183
 dreamless, 446
 early to rise, early to, 227 first and worst one is a, 610 from his brimstone, 321 goes to, mellow, 127 gravity out of his, 62 half-hidden in its grassy, 637 hath she for narrow, 823 holy angels guard thy, 199 hue as red as the rosy, 431 I want to go to, 667
 if they seldom die in, 683 in the dark, in, 1023 into the coverlet of a, 1000 is narrow, every, 915 is the boon for me, 817 lies in his, 58 little rudely sculptured, 682 little, to rest my head, 382 made his pendent, 85 mighty large, 200
 no use in my going to, 389 of ancient mould, 848 of death, faith kneeling by his, 31 of death, smooth the, 213 of honour, 200 of squills how blue, 883 on glory's brightest, 386 on my grave as now my, 145 placed in his room, 1068 should be of ivory, my, 822 sits by your, 1066 sleeping mourn upon thy, 632 sober, will go to, 127
 they died in, 610
 to-night, I will not go to, 610 up in my, now, 391
 we laugh in, we cry in, 1043
 welcome to your gory, 286 with the lambe, to, 23 Beds made level, 552
 of raging fire, from, 150

- Beds of roses, make thee, 31 to make bloom, 738
Bedazzled with the sun, 52
Beddes heed, lever have at his, 5 Bedding, tied up the, 1000 Bedecked in her snowy array, 474 Bedfellows, strange, 33, 582
Bedford and Exeter, 67 Be-diamonded be-damned, bedecked, 768
Bedlam, mad as, 496
Bednall-greene, blind beggar's daughter of, 257
Bedstead of a crimson rose, 911
Bedtime, would it were, 63 Bedward, dormitive I take to, 145 Bedwarfed the man, o'ergrown the brute, 759
Bee, a vagrant, 728
bringeth home the, 328 brisk as a, 233 buried in his own juice, 112 busie as a, 23
busy, has no time for sorrow, 282 does not concern the, 584 enclosed in amber, 995 had stung it newly, 163 is on the wing, 345 like the industrious, 910 love in my bosom like a, 27 may work like the, 431 nothing so like a soul as a, 1069 sparrow and, 570
the little busy, 199 weak as a rained-on, 840 where sucks the, 33
would choose to dream in, 431 would know, the curtained, 911 Bees are busy with their gold, 756 his helmet, a hive for, 28 honied words like, 898 human race organized like, 769 humming of the, 955 murmuring of innumerable, 466 rob the Hybla, 84
store up your honey, 982 the government of, 1032
Bee-loud glade, alone in the, 790
Beechen tree, spare the, 328 Beef, I am a great eater of, 54 of England, roast, 229
Beehive's hum, 289
Beelzebub arose early in the
morning, 368
Been and may be again, 298 as things have, they remain, 519 fall from the days that have, 426 forgot in the hatred, 459 here before, I have, 577 more happy thou hadst, 389 that the world had never, 559 what has been has, 177 who that hath ever, 306 Beer and skittles, 551 and spirits, throw all the, 695 bemused in, 112 chronicle small, 101
- Beer, cold small, 226
come my lad and drink some, 239 felony to drink small, 69 idly sipping here my, 605 knocking off the, 909 pints and quarts of Ludlow, 743 poor creature small, 64 small, that questionable superfluity, 417
take you on trust for, 715 Beers, match with destiny for, 778 Beersheba, Dan to, 242, 1099 Beetle balanced bottles, 691 booms adown the glooms, 696
brows, 77
intolerable to a black, 361 that we tread upon, 36 three-man, 64
winds his small horn, 247 Beetle's wing, no thicker than a, 803 Beeves and home-bred kine, 298 broad as ten thousand, 575 Befall a soul, 587
Befell at forty-odd, 392
Before and after, looking, 96 dreams no mortal ever dreamed, 460 fantastic terrors never felt, 460 her on a shutter, borne, 481 not lost but gone, 188, 447 souls gone, 627
that which has gone, 1011 the beginning of years, 633 the better foot, 58
the bird can fly, break, 471 the thing we may, 559
the whole world, 1047
we've fought the Bear, 562 you could say Jack Robinson, 540
Beg, Homer himself must, 123
I give, they, 20
or borrow or get a man's own, 185
Began best can't end the worst, 490
Begetter, to the onlie, 107 Beggar don't know nor do, 782 he's an absent-minded, 782 maid, loved the, 78 maid shall be my queen, 465 may crawl at his side, 449 on horseback, 124, 1041 slightly alcoholic, 898 that is dumb may challenge double pity, 21 with bruised feet, 708 would enfold himself, 786 Beggars and vagabonds, best of all, 1045
art of supporting, 976
at your gate, are there no, 462 entirely do away with, 1079 in the streets mimicked, 398 mounted run their horse to death, 69, 124
must be no choosers, 131 should be no choosers, 14 Beggar's daughter, blind, 257
Beggared all description, 104
- Beggarly account of empty boxes, 80 elements, weak and, 1121 Scotchman, 233
Beggary in the love, 104
Begging bread, nor his seed, 1104 the question, 944
Begin, finish what I, 444 way that boys, 481
Beginning and end of political education, 635 and the end, 1123
bad, bad ending, 968
every day is a fresh, 682 good end good, 14
hard, 12
is the most important, 973 late, choosing and, 154 mean and end to all things, 506 never ending, still, 176 no great love in the, 34 of a feast, 63
of a fray, 17
of a new month or year, 1089 of his journey, 970 of Knowledge, love is ever, 378 of my end, I see the, 43 of our end, the true, 43 of years, before the, 633 who has made a, 985 Beginnings and endings of undertakings, 798
and new shoots, new, 924 are, where our, 966 favourable to bold, 982 friendships from, 979
God of Fair, 778
Begone dull care, 170
Begot, by whom, 217
how nourished how, 45 in the ventricle of memory, 41 of nothing but vain fantasy, 77
Begotten of a summer dream, 407 Beguile light of light, 40 the thing I am, 101
the time look like the time, 84 Beguiled by one, 103
Begun, between things ended and, 537 for, wonder what I was, 948 Behaviour, check to loose, 197 during good, 945 of silk-sack clouds, 672 upon his good, 360
which is intrinsically corrupt, 917 Behind, spare not nor look, 417 the western bars, 668 Behold a smile of God, 539 and fear, 129
bath power to say, 42 in the bloom of apples, 445 the upright man, 1104
we live through all things, 596 Beholds her image in her eyes reflected, 555
Beholder, lights the heart of the,
933
Beholders, strike awe into the,
101 Beholding myself all rosy red, 1086

I will to live and die, in this, 1022 in a beneficent power, 651 in falsehood, 1081
in the senses, 1081 in transmigration of souls, 798 lightened by the, 922 my most ethereal, 767
my sure my very firm, 894 points of, 335
ripened into faith, 302 sad past all, 607 too great for our, 503 within the prospect of, 84
- Beliefs agonized hopes, tremulous, 798
all kinds of old dead, 1075 forsaken, 548 swallow more, than man can digest, 741
- Believe a man repents, will not, 470 have heard and do in part, 89 her, though I know she lies, I, 109 it because it is impossible, 1012 it or not, 943
oft repeating they, 190
some make themselves believe that they, 1028
what varies every day, who can, 174
yet they, me who await, 546
- Believed, who never doubted never half, 469
- Believers, speak long enough he will get, 705 take your necessary precautions, 1126
- Believes his own watch, each, 210
- Believing as I do that man, 449 heart hath gone, 507 souls, God gives to, 69
- Bell and his book, his, 351 and the sexton tolled the, 392 as a sullen, 64
book and candle, 1034
chimed in the Roman Catholic, 566 chimed out the Episcopalian, 566 church-going, 264
doth toll no passing, 349 good old Dutch church, 566 in a cowslip's, I lie, 33 in rapture rang the Temperance, 566 invites me, 86
merry as a marriage, 352 prompter's hand is on his, 644 prophet's camel, 881 rang out the Unitarian, 566 rang out the Universalist, 566 Roland spoke, the great, 620 shouted the Methodist, 566 signalling with the, 929 silence that dreadful, 101 slow falling to the prompter's, 481 softly, ring the, 665 sound as a, 39
swung to and fro, 705
tocsin of the soul, the dinner, 360 tolling from some gray old steeple, 554
twilight and evening, 472
- Bells and fire pistols, ring, 1089 and Fudges and their historians, respective merits of
the, 399
creed of the, 566
have knolled to church, 49 hear the mellow wedding, 460 I hear, the port is near, 536 jangled out of tune, 94 music of those village, 266 musically wells from the, 459 of heaven, all the, 634 of Shandon that sound so grand, 423 of the Holy City, 443 of the kirk, 709
of the past, 644
pealing at every step, 903 play uppe O Boston, 540 rang mad with glee, all the, 600 ring happy, 469 ring no, 955 ring out wild, 469
sound of all, 323
- Belle, where none are beaux 'tis vain to be a, 239
Aurora, thy wife the, 492

I have been, 355
it is twice, 46
kings may be, 287
never is, but always to be, 207 nor it is, 928
paper-credit, 210
rest in the land of the, 658 thought that morning cloud was, 375
where they that love are, 503 with ease of body and peace of mind, 200
with milk and honey, 518 with some new joys, 178
Blew cold on my desolate heart, 418 great guns, 274
you hither, what wind, 65 Blight upon the tree, 820 Blind, all the discomforts that accompany my being, 183 always, and often tippy, 406 and ignorant in all, 114 and naked ignorance, 470 and now I see, once was, 639 bard, be that, 317 be to her faults a-little, 189 beggar's daughter, 257 believe old Homer, 167 beside, he begged for certain instructions, we but teach, 85 Mary, image of, 391

 old sins, 892
- Bloody war is made, likes o' that that, 845 work, then do, 502
- Bloom and the passion is past, 792 comes over the earth, 392 drives full on thy, 285
 I find some misty purple, 845 is hung with, 742
 is shed, seize the flower its, 287 lips he has pressed in their, 450 of apples, 445 of young desire, 243 of youth, in the, 979 rooting to wondrous, 848 sight of vernal, 151 that kill the, 303
 the fire-escapes, 929
 will, another year, 385
- Blooms, crimson flower of battle, 522 next year's, 569
 with statues, the world, 613
- Bloomed and died, the lilacs, 437 lilacs last in the door-yard, 536 up into love again, 654
- Blooming alone, left, 335 fresh and gay, lovely, 276 lyre, when 'Omer 'is, 784
- Bloomsbury and the British Museum, 932
- Blossom then bear fruit, let it, 1007 and June and rapture pass away, 836 as the rose, 1111 bright with autumn dew, 372 in, last spring, 621 in the dust, 141
 love's perfect, 556 of health, from the, 362 that hangs on the bough, 33 the, time, 655
 to-morrow, 73
- Blossoms, a myriad lovely, 697 all around me sighing, 375 borders of the beautiful, 432 have the mightiest power, 516 of my sin, cut off in the, 91 stay, if last year's, 569
 to-morrow, 73
 wet with weeping, 570
- Blossom-bald, then, 681
- Blossom-burdened bough, 777
- Blossomed a few short hours, 446 the lovely stars, 435
- Blossoming, a million buds but stay their, 668 apple-tree, under a, 699
- Blot, art to, 214
 creation's, 246
 in thy scutcheon, 1041 known what they discreetly, 146 not one line he could wish to, 239 on his name, no, 327
 where is the, 493
- Blotted it out forever, 242 paper, that ever, 46
- Blow ■ shepherd's reed, just to, 406 adore the hand that gives the, 190 and swallow at the same moment, 978

- Blow, bless the hand that gave
 the, 179
 bold I can meet his, 293 buds forgot to, 642 bugle blow, 466 death loves a signal, 202 forbear the bitter, 904 full many a thoughtless, 718 give for blow in the foray, 800 hand that gives the, 190 himself, puff and, 635 in the teeth of a wrong, 833 kindness tempered every, 626 liberty is in every, 286 might be the be-all, 85 on the head, 1015
 on whom I please, 49
 perhaps may turn his, 293 rain-drop makes some floweret, 504 remember thy swashing, 77 the horrid deed in every eye, 85 the trumpet to arms, 271 thou winter wind, 50 to strike the, 873
 what wood a cudgel's of by
 the, 142
 wind! come wrack, 88
 winds and crack your cheeks, 98 with a silver, 855
 word and a, 79, 179
 Blows and buffets of the world, 86 and knocks, apostolic, 142 deal out murderous, 870 guarding his heart from, 905 man up like a bladder, 62 of circumstance, 468 of sound, to heal the, 451 skeptick, 622
 Blowth where it listeth, 1118 Blown through the Conchimari-an horns, 432
 with restless violence, 36 Blud my able-bodied relations has, shed every drop of, 606 Bludgeonings of chance, 692
 Bludso's ghost went up alone, 605 Blue above and blue below, 350 all the time a-feelin', 730 Alsatian mountains, by the, 582 and gold, clad in, 288 and purple hollows, 710 and their hands are, 498 are my hands, 1080 bide by the buff and, 286 bonnets over the border, 588 colour appointed by the Deity, 532 comes to earth, 701 coming into the, 385
 dark indigo, 845 darkly deeply beautifully, 322 doubted truth in, 939
 een, saw ye the lass wi' the, 388 ethereal sky, 194 eyes blue, kept their, 903 eyes of unholy, 335 faded coat of, 579
 for hopes and red for fears, 664 gentle cousin, 385
 get those eyes so, 559
 Blue heavens above us bent, 462 heaven's height, 701 heaven's own, 372 in eyes as awful as in stockings, 430
 in here and there a bird, 839 is but a mist, 838 is the quaker-maid, 806 jays chatter tcha tcha, 912 Juniata, waters of the, 406 meagre hag, 158
 my prospects all look, 622 of day, beneath the, 743 of halcyon seas, 760 Presbyterian true, 142 ran the flash across, 493 roses red and violets, 24 rushing of the Rhône, 353 sky bends over all, 315 something borrowed something, 956 speedwell's darling, 469 stars in the green firmament, 433 summer skies are darkly, 418 the fresh the ever free sea, 350 trip slip for an eight cent fare, 583 under the laurel the, 571

 Blue-fringed lids, 316
 Blueness abundant, 493
 Blue-print devices, are only the,
 939 Bluest of things grey, 632
 Blue-stocking, sagacious, 399
 Bluid is thicker than water, 310 Blunder free us, frae monie a, 285 life is a, 692
 notes and names each, 493 worse than a crime, 1060 you find in men this, 275 youth is a, 420
 Blunders about a meaning, 213 are often made, 1068 better even of their, 1080 wise, make our, 858
 Blunderbuss against religion, 233
 Blundering kind of melody, 174 Blunting the fine point of seldom pleasure, 107
 Blush, beautiful as woman's, 404 of maiden shame, 372 shame! where is thy, 95 that flies at seventeen, 776 to find it fame, do good and, 214 to give it in, 327
 unseen, born to, 245
 upon thy breast, that so the, 586
 Blushes at the name, 555 bear away those, 39
 man that, not quite a brute, 202
 Blushed as he gave in the oath, 242 before, we never, 168
 the conscious water, 165 Blushed, young men that, 1003 Blushful Hippocrene, 383 Blushing apparitions, 39 honours, bears his, 73 is the colour of virtue, 188.
 1015 like the morn, 154
 Blustering band, they march a.

 has its fortunes, 646
 he made them a, 499
 he that publishes a, 1039 his teaching, beyond the, 764 honestly come by, 530
 I read in an old, 766
 I'll drown my, 33
 in breeches, Macaulay is a, 313

Book in gold clasps, 77 in sour misfortune's, 80 in the dingy binding, 842 is a book, 351
 is closed and prayers are said, 691 is good which puts me in a working mood, 410 is like a hat or coat, 571 is lucky or unlucky, 646 is not a continent, 913 is the best of friends, a good, 478 is the precious life-blood, a, 163
 it's like a, 777
 it was, an excellent, 935 let my temptation be a, 698 life is a torn, 594 lift this little, 916 like the same, 886
 look not at his picture but his, 119 loved by those too simple, 398 make a great, 313 man better than a, 753 man knows style of, 826 many editions of a, 238 Mohammed's truth in a holy, 458
 most wondrous, bright candle, 393
 no, but has something good, 1009, 1039
 no frigate like a, 585 no get him a' in a, 886 no moral or immoral, 723 not read, ever new, 330 note it in a, 1111

 now become your, 756
 O for a, 654
 of Common Prayer, I shall want my, 557
 of fate, heaven hides the, 207 of female logic, 482 of gold, writing in a, 346 of human life, time has torn leaves from the, 439 of knowledge fair, 151
 of life, the, 955
 of life, which is the, 1123 of memory, 68
 of nature short of leaves, 391 of secrecy, nature's infinite, 104 of songs and sonnets, 34 of toil is read, 446 of verses, a, 1018
 on the trail of the, 709 only read perhaps by me, 297 or friend, with a religious, 114 originated in publisher's suggestion, 826
 part of him found in a, 426 poor copy of a, 773 published, after my first, 752 question of the best, 753 read from a sense of duty, 234, 629 reads but one, 139
 reading a borrowed, 228 right good from a, 430 security in an old, 530 so fairly bound, 79

Book such as all English people might peruse, 292 that is not a year old, never read, 414
 that's borrowed is lost, 816 that's not too new, 845 the better, liked the, 253 then shut the, 556
 this is no, camerado, 538 thou art the, 134
 to meet an antique, 584 unread a flower unblown, 568 what everyone says in a whole, 1081
 what is even a wise, 905 what to put first in a, 1047 when a nobleman writes a, 237 which can maintain its value, 825 who reads an American, 314 words printed in a, 1102 worth reading is worth buying, 532
 you hold, the little, 703 Booke, for a jollie goode, 655 Books a bloodless substitute for life, 704
 a university, 381

- Bough, Apollo's laurel, 32 blossom that hangs on the, 33 blossom-burdened, 777 old forsaken, 450
reddening on the, 960 sang upon the, 621 touch not a single, 328, 404 underneath the, 1018
- Boughs are daily rifled, 391 bearing, 60
does glide, soul into the, 169 hide God, 719
of love and hate, 790
of the may, 673
the shuddering, 668
under the shade of melancholy, 49
what soft incense hangs upon, 383
which shake against the cold, 107
- Bought in the market, knowledge is, 519
now cheaply, 288
- Bouillabaisse a noble dish, 481
- Boulder's shade, long in the, 806
- Bound by strong roots, 619 heaven not reached at a single, 521 in shallows and miseries, 83 in those icy chains, 127 in to saucy doubts, 87
short and narrow, 450
- Bounds be set, wider shall thy, 761 breakers of ordered, 757 dances in his crystal, 158 increase, her shining, 747 keep within, 1038
of earth and sky, in the, 545 of freakish youth, 265 of freedom wider yet, 462 of law and duty, 320 of modesty, 80
of place and time, 243
of possibility, within the,
1037
- Boundaries, morality knows nothing of, 581
which divide life from death, 461
- Boundary between God's patience and His wrath, 395
- Bounding bug dance a jig, 691 within limits of its race, 553
- Boundless and bare, colossal wreck, 367
better, boundless worse, is, 462 contiguity of shade, 264 deep, drew from out the, 472 his wealth, 307
in faith, 479
ineffable prairie, 590 seas, 'twixt two, 337 sky, 372 universe is life, 618 universe, that in a, 462
- Bounteous fare, had such, 737 field of wheat, 362
- Bounties all may share, 447 and supreme, shadowy, 673 of an hour, 201
- Bountiful colored my morning rose, 586
- Bounty fed, those his former, 176 he may show to the few, 185 heaven's, 403
large was his, 245
no winter in his, 105 of earth, fed by the, 417 receives part of its value, 234
- Bouquets while I'm living, 855
- Bourgeois artist, the, 871 tradition of the Victorian, 925
- Bourgeoisie, definition of, 1072 face to face with the, 1072 in the god-damn, 883
- Bourn no traveller returns, 93
- Bout, many a winding, 160
- Bow before thine altar love, 248 better to, than break, 13 cannot always stand bent, 1038 had flown off, 855
I hear him draw his, 638 in the cloud, do set my, 1097 many strings to your, 15

- Bow, moon like to a silver, 42 never to the, 570 none that hath bent his, 958 of burning gold, 282 or cursory salutation, 234 the cord is, as unto the, 436 themselves when he did sing, mountain-tops, 73
 thy head in gentle spite, 555 to that whose course is run, 242 too tensely strung, 988 two strings to his, 15 unbend the, 1061
 was made in England, 738 you're bucketing, 862
 Bowe he bar and arwes brighte and kene, 6 Bows, you are the, 879
 Bowed, at her feet he, 1099 by the weight of centuries, 708 Bowels, diseases of the, 969 have molten, 826
 of compassion, 1123
 of the earth, 121
 of the harmless earth, 61 of the land, 72
 Bower, born in a, 388
 by Bendemeer's stream, 337 flower in heaven's high, 281 led her to the nuptial, 154 of roses, 337
 orange flower perfumes the, 310 over me, formed a, 1056 Bowers are bare of bay, 743 of bliss, 205
 summer stands, pale in her, 565 Bowery hollows crowned with summer, 463 Bowl brimming over, 599 capacious salad, 703 eternal Saki from that, 1018 fill high the, 359
 golden, be broken, 1110 mingles with my friendly, 213 of brass, a bright, 934 of summer-time, 982 onion atoms lurk within the, 313
 put it in a crystal, 846 so free, whither in your, 347 they call the sky, 1019 Bowstring is to the shaft, what
 the, 888
 Bow-wow strain, the big, 312 Bow-wows, gone to the demni-
 tion, 494
 Box, breathes from yonder, 212 brought a light and smallish, 700 twelve good men into a, 331 want with a, 823
 where sweets compacted lie, 135 Boxes, alabaster, 577
 beggarly account of empty, 80 Boy a dog, give a, 873 and be a farmer's, 950 and youth, 'twixt, 307 barefoot, with cheek of tan, 442 better build schoolrooms for
 the, 512
 called Wolf Wolf, 962
 Chatterton the marvelous, 297 Boy fell dead, smiling the, 487 get money, 118 have not a woman's gift, 52
 I wouldn't give much for the, 699 in love with the janitor's, 938 just ceased to be a, 1072 lad of mettle a good, 61 little, that died, 580 love is a, by poets styled, 142 no could wait, my leetla, 813 oh would I were a, again, 454 of heavenly-birth, 681
 — oh, where was he, 370 parlous, 71 playing on the sea-shore, 184 steals from his morning play, 699 stood on the burning deck, 370 than when I was a, 390 that shoots so trim, 255 that was half-past three, 715 the noblest work of God, 571 there a-whistling, unless there's a, 619
 when I was a, 809
 when I was a beggarly, 528 whose voice shall rise, 896 with a spelling-book, 714 with the heart of a king, 1100 you hear that, laughing, 452 Boys are laid, lightfoot, 743 begin, way that, 481 beware of it prepare for it, 531 bright, mention, when, 907 claret the liquor for, 237 come home, till the, 824 fear, with bugs, 52 flying kites, 677
 go wooing in my, 257 got any, the marshal said, 510 grown tall, men are, 953 handsome were the, 936 keep kicking my dawg, 956 learn to spell by reiteration, 430 like little wanton, 73 made of snips and snails, 322 that met him out'n Denver, 698 three merry, are we, 127 throughout eternity, 819 throw stones at frogs, 1006 to learn, what is necessary for, 1014 would gather there, young, 501 Boy's will is the wind's will, 436 Boyhood past in Spain, 629 visions of, 621
 Boyhood's years, tears of, 336
 Boy-scouts practising again, 896
 Bozzy, come to me, my dear, 237
 Brach or lym, 99
 Bradford, governor of Plymouth, 541 Braes, among thy green, 286 we twa hae run about the, 286 Brag of came and saw and overcame, 105
 one went to, 165
 Brags, made his, 349
 Braggart with my tongue, 88 Brahmin caste, comes of the, 453 sings, hymn the, 410 Braid, blowing the ringlet from
 the, 465
 Braids of lilies, twisted, 158 Brain and heart alike depart, 578 as ear-wax, not so much, 75 book and volume of my, 92 books the children of the, 191 burn from my, 827 children of an idle, 77 coinage of your, 95
 dry as the remainder biscuit, 49 feed my, 827
 first it warms the, 814 folded in my, 789 has corridors, 585 haunts and obsesses my, 1065 heat-oppressed, 85 him with his lady's fan, 61 in his daft old, 816 inherit your father's cracked, 818 is in a muddle, 792 like madness in the, 315 may devise laws, 44 memory warder of the, 85 mint of phrases in his, 40 more brawn than, 982 of a walk-ecstatic dog, 858 of feathers, 215
 paper bullets of the, 39 school-masters puzzle their, 253 shallow draughts intoxicate
 the, 210
 should possess a poet's, 30 tires the, 735
 too finely wrought, 262 vex the, with researches, 280 would swim, poor little, 648 written troubles of the, 88 Brains better for living on their own fat, 530
 could not move, 290
 cudgel thy, no more about it, 96 enough to make a fool of himself, 704
 exudations of a man's, 241 new eras in their, 732 of men, care draws in the, 82 quicker than their, 873 steal away their, 101 unhappy, for drinking, 101 when the, were out, 87 Brain's old ghostly house, within
 the, 914
 Brakemen walk along the rooftops, 926
 Bramble-dew, eyes of gold and,
 703
 Brambles were always catching, 883
 Branch a bird a child a rose, a, 807
 cut is the, 32
 from the gardens above, 271 Branches, giant, tossed, 370 of arithmetic, 598 of learning, 45
 of the pencil-tree, 701 superfluous, 60
 Branch-charmed, oaks, 384
 Brand in the dark ashes, hides a, 373 of the dog is upon him, 776 Brandy, a hero must drink, 237 and water, sipped, 289

- Brandy, nothing extenuate for the, 417
- Branksome Hall, custom of, 306
- Brass, a bright bowl of, 934 cast in, 956 events are, 531 evil manners live in, 74 like cymbals, polished, 934 nor stone nor earth, 107 sounding, 1120
- Brass-bound man, robust and, 784
- Brat, Polack's, joylessly torments a cat, 841
- Bravado, met the Sun's, 861
- Brave, a day to fire the, 219 and bonny and good and gay, 956 and strong, remembering you, 825 and the great lie there in state, 540 days of old, 400 deserve the lovely, the, 559 deserves the fair, none but the, 176 endeavor to do thy duty, 686 easy to be, 961 faith, but that, 507 forlornly, 428
fortune helps the, 980 friends of old all, 470 heat, life's, 604
home of the, 332
how sleep the, 247
I would be, 880
man chooses, 525
man dies, how a, 886 men and bold, 951 men before Agamemnon, 358 of all the earth, 764
that are no more, 267
to fight aloud is very, 584 to satirize the, 927 toll for the, 267
went down, the, 690
who rush to glory, 328
your storm, 638
- Brave-hearted O wise man, O, 857
- Bravely, acting, a desperate part, 533 become thy bed, 105
fleshed thy maiden sword, 63
- Braver to keep brave thing hid, 117
- Bravery, all her, 157 never goes out of fashion, 484 of his grief, 97
- Bravest are the tenderest, the, 565
- Braw brass collar, 285
- Brawlers of the auction mart, 722
- Brawling judgments unashamed, delivers, 470 woman in a wide house, 1108
- Brawn than brain, more, 982
- Brawny or rough, no matter how, 589
- Brayed with minstrelsy, 81
- Brazen throat of war, 155
- Breach endure not yet a, 118 imminent deadly, 100 more honoured in the, 91 once more unto the, 66
- Bread, a loaf of, 1018 and butter, it's my, 937 and butter of mine, no, 1036 and butter, quarrel with my, 192 and butter, smell of, 357 and butter, went on cutting, 481 and salt, eaten your, 776 and the barley, 694
and the gospel is good fare, 188 and wine, believe in your, 892 and wine, dark hands for, 935 and work for all, there's, 432 ask them for, 815 better is half a loaf than no, 15 broken it for your daily, 631 crammed with distressful, 67 crust of, and liberty, 214 daily, 850
die for beauty than live for, 409 do not waste, 1090 ears produce loaves of, 1056 eaten in secret, 1107 half-penny worth of, 62 he dunks his, 923
he is, 21
He took the, and brake it, 118 heart of the home savor of the repass, 1090
home-made miracles of, 887 Homer begged his, 123 honor, 1090
I broke with you, 904
I like good, 955
if his son ask, 1114
in one hand stone the other, 978 in sorrow ate his, 439, 1057 is buttered, which side my, 17 is the staff of life, 188, 191 its wondrous, 823 labour for our, 890 like eating new, 525 living corn made, 834 looked to government for, 261 man doth not live by only, 1099 nor his seed begging, 1104 of banishment, eating the bitter, 59
of idleness, 1109
of life, I am the, 1118 of life, not daily bread but
the, 380
pudding, 795
Royal slice of, 876
savor is of other's, 1021 should be so dear, that, 392 sir, if you please, a piece of, 555 spoiled the, 556 sweat of the brow, respect, 1090 sympathy's sustaining, 595 that bringeth strength, 682 they fling to their dogs tonight, 559
upon the waters, cast thy, 1110 wholesomeness of oaten, 122 with one fish-ball, don't give, 555
- Breadlines, heard of, 935
- Bread-sauce, time-honored, 666
- Breadth of heaven betwixt you, 428 of my nail, taller by the, 191
- Break before the bird, shell must, 471 best you get is an even, 868 better to bow than, 13 into foam of flowers, 630 it to our hope, 89 of day, eyes the, 37 of day, until the, 660 of the wave, 362
on the lips while meeting, 431 the hearts of kith and kin, 844 their eggs at the smaller end, 191
- Breakers, the Euxine's dangerous, 360 wanton with thy, 355
- Breakfast, contentment that comes with, 930 on a lion's lip, 67 scheme for her own, 203 with what appetite you have, 73
- Breakfast-table, neatly arranged and well-provisioned, 422
- Breakfast-tables garnished by newspapers, 798
- Breaking flood, murmur of the, 679 waves dashed high, 370 while the tired waves vainly, 519
- Break-o'-day in a boozing ken, 710
- Breast, arm the obdured, 150 at rest on the quiet earth's, 523 baby at my, 105
bind the motto to thy, 1058 cross on her white, 212 earth's half-shielded, 586 encloseth my poor heart, thy, 71 eternal in the human, 207 fair as thine ideal, 354 feeble woman's, 303 forward, marched, 494 get a hairy, 833
heart within your, 928 hold me to your deep, 619 knock the, 157
love's ripening, 385 marble of her snowy, 145 master-passion in the, 208 monuments upon my, 374 no, shall know save mine, 892 of her gown, 421
of the old nurse death, 693 of the waters, 712
on her white, 212
reddened all his, 681 round its, the rolling clouds, 251 see the mark on his red, 444 so peacefully within her, 848 soft hand and softer, 385 soothe the savage, 193 straying to find the, 548 tamer of the human, 243 that gives the rose, 575
the living fires, wake in our, 451 thine ideal, 354

- Breast, thinking of it on her, 683 told but to her mutual, 328 toss him to my, 136 truth hath a quiet, 59
two hands upon the, 567 was in some quiet, 687 where learning lies, 217 where roses could not live, 808 with dauntless, 245
- Breasts are orbs of heavenly frame, 27
beat their manly, 761 must suckle slaves, such, 359 oppose gallant, 985 that heave, 703
the keen air, 249
within our, this jewel lies, 226
- Breast-high amid the corn, 390
- Breast-knot gay, scarlet, 573
- Breastplate of faith and love, 1121
what stronger, 69
- Breath, a sweeter woman ne'er drew, 540 able to take his, 490
all incense, 353
and die, hold my, 905 and finer spirit, 295 attunes the spheres, with one, 514
bated, 45
blew back, when, 585 boldest held his, the, 328 by the gate of, 631 call back the fleeting, 244 can make them, 250
divine, by, 473
down and out of, 63
eulogy's blandest, 541 extend a mother's, 213 Faith hath a fleeting, 761 for the whole tune before you start, 745
grey from thy, 631
hot and cold with the same, 962 hurricane's sultry, 554 in labor, draws his, 932 in our mouth, 780
is a ware, 742
is never shaken, whose, 888 lack of, want of words, 157 last moment of his, 252 life of mortal, 436 life that breathes with human, 462 lightly draws its, 295 little flesh a little, 1009 most breathes, where, 108 of decay, 575
of eternal morning, 583 of flowers sweeter in the air, 111 of God, his life a, 506 of heaven, 264 of ice, blooms o'er, 642 of kindness, 567 of kings, princes are, 284
of life, the, 154
of life, the most immediate, 1057 of men, she takes away the, 429 of morn, sweet is the, 152 of the multitude, not the musty, 750
- Breath of the wind, mist from
the, 838
of twilight, when the, 801 one mighty, 337
one more unfortunate weary of, 392
places of my, 896 regular as infant's, 317 rich perfume of her, 421 rides on the posting winds, 105 say beneath my, 938
shapen by my, 756
skies were purple and, was praise, 395 smells wooingly, heaven's, 85 summer's, 659 summer's ripening, 78
thou art, a, 36
to cool your porridge, 1026, 1039 to cool his pottage, 1004 to the latest, 209
twilight hour of, 796
we are to utter sweet, 43 we waste our, 924
what chisel could cut, 57 wit is the only, 923 with tempestuous, 629
with their short, 729 with uninforming, 868 with at the north-wind's, 370
- Breaths, we live in thoughts not, 506
- Breathe not his name, 334. thoughts that, 244
were life as though to, 464
- Breathed a word, that ever, 516 the long long night, 473
- Breathers of this world, 108
- Breathes from yonder box, 212 must suffer, who, 190
there the man, 307
upon a bank of violets, 53 with human breath, life that, 462
- Breathing, closer is He than, 467 household laws, 298 of strength, but as a, 1025 of the common wind, 297 rose, friendship is the, 453 time of day with me, 97 time, peace only a, 258 we watched her, 390
what is it to cease, 880
- Breathless with adoration, 297
- Bred at Edinburgh, 228 at Oxford or Cambridge was not enough, 170
in a book, dainties that are, 41 in the bone, 17, 977
where is faucy, 45
- Breach where honour's lodged, 143
- Breeches are so queer, 450 cost but a crown, 101, 256 Macaulay is like a book in, 313 upon his backside, 241 were blue, coat was red, 321 women wear the, 122
wouldn't hurt, 738
- Breed a habit, use doth, 34 artists are a rare, 792 of men, this happy, 59 of noble bloods, 81
- Breed of their horses and dogs, 184 the past again, only, 472 Breeds by a composture, 81 Breeding, another man's want of, 999 care in my, 199
due to gentle, 965 test of, 720
to show your, 279
- Breeze, as if upon the, 847 battle and the, 327
drops in the pool when the, 516
every passing, 342
free as the, 305
is on the sea, the, 310 of the morning, 813 send me a little garden, 905 summer, waves the bush, 309 the freshened fragrant, 915 without a, without a tide, 315
- Breezes blow, hot, 445
- Breezy hill that skirts the down, 269
- Breffny, little waves of, 820
- Brekeke-kesh koash koash, 972
- Brent, your bonny brow was, 286
- Brer Fox he lay low, 688
- Brethren, all mankind are my, 271 born, likenesses in, 967 great twin, 400
to dwell together in unity, 1106
- Brevity is the soul of wit, 92 its body, 316
of life, 1051
use of, 995
- Brews, as he, 118
- Bribe, boatman takes no, 983 too poor for a, 246
- Bric-a-brac, falls heavily among
the, 900
- Brick, straw to make, 1098
- Bricks are alive this day, 69 by chance or fortune, 1005 sold him gilded, 853 triumphal arch build of, 796
- Brickbats, inability to dodge, 818
- Brick-dust man, the, 229
- Bridal chamber, come to the, 362 of the earth and sky, 135
- Bride, foeman's, 306
hail the, 624
half of the world a, 735 I saw the young, 474
in her rich adornin', 685 made the world his, 910 society my glittering, 302 to a lad gone down, 916 wife dearer than the, 239
- Brides, as the lion woos his, 248 of Enderby, play up the, 540
- Bride-bed to have decked, 97
- Bridegroom, fresh as a, 61
hail the, 624
is half of the world, 735
- Bridge across a hundred years, 510
don't cross the, 440 grave a covered, 440 habit builds the, 676
he lives near the, 246

- Bridge, Horatius kept the, 400 in wait, under the, 926 is a sad song, 934 of asses, 977
 of blue, 439
 of Sighs, on the, 353

 could not make dull, 545 crises, 697 despatch is the soul of, 222 dinner lubricates, 275 end of this day's, 84 every man mind his own, 1035 everybody's, is nobody's, 139 fit for the, 188 goes off a man's hands when he stays by it, 182 I have laid aside, 139 in great waters, 1105 is business, 867 is other people's money, 1075 is to be good and happy to-day, 314 man diligent in, 1108 man, the tired, 919 mind your own, 1037
 never blush to tell, 219 no, carried on without dissimulation, 222 no feeling of his, 96 nobody's, 139
 of life, the great, 641 of one who studies philosophy, 1008 of the citizens, 1054

 Climbing sorrow, down thou, 98
 Climbs as rarely falls, who never, 443
 Clime, cold in blood, cold in, 355 crusaders from some infernal, 451 deeds done in their, 355 in every, adored, 216 in every age and, 206 in some brighter, 273
 in the eastern, 153 linger in our northern, 308 our tongue is known in every, 394 to clime, from, 840
 to make a happy fireside, 286 Climes beyond the western main, 250
 Cloudless, and starry skies, 356 humours turn with, 209
 in all, we pitch our tents, 771
 Cling, the greenest mosses, 441 Clink of cups, 771
 of the ice in the pitcher, 698 Clip an angel's wings, 383 his morning nap, thought to, 510
 Clipper rolled in a great swell, 833
 Clique that styles itself, 426
 Cliques, the worst, 721 Cloak be threadbare, though your, 690
 camlet, with gold buttons, 180 dropped your dusty, 652 martial, around him, 364 not alone my inky, 89 take thy old, about thee, 256 that covers my bright array, 1085 when you sleep in your, 545 Cloaked from head to foot, 468 Clock collected in the tower, 743 condition of being turned into
 a, 564
 in the steeple, 600 indicates the moment, 535 is always slow, 845 like the finger of a, 265 long hour by Shrewsbury, 63 Clock, my grandfather's, 601 on time with the borough, 939 or bell, no slave of, 878 stands the church, 893 strikes two, when the, 644 the varnished, 251
 ticks on, the old, 909 was in the tower, before a, 681 worn out with eating time, 178
 Clocks, cannot make two, agree, 739
 what need of, 801 Clock-peddler the schoolmaster the senator, 1070
 Clockwork joints of supple gold, 632 Clod a piece of orange peel, 590 from which we grow the demigod, 732
 of ailments, feverish selfish little, 720
 one with the heavy, 880 push away the, 648 to become a kneaded, 36
 Clog of his body, 147
 Cloistered virtue, fugitive and, 163
 Close against the sky, 390 and sharp on heart and brain, 662 at home, beauty wrought lies, 442 but untouched, 903
 have mournful, 809
 music at the, 59 of day, at, 1027
 of life, at the, 966 of one sad day, 705
 of the day, at the, 269 of the envoy, 671
 one stands up, 165
 our souls sit, 177
 the shutters fast, 265
 the wall up with our English dead, 66
 up his eyes and draw the curtain, 69
 we press too, 428
 yet lived she at its, 473
 Close-buttoned to the chin, 266 Closed lips hurt no one, 1001 Close-knit strands, 955 Closeness, all dedicated to, 32 of family ties in Scotland, 751 of the place, 984
 Close-shorn sheep, 138 Closet, do very well in a, 222 of her mind, in a, 883
 Closing of an eye, yet the sweet, 480 Cloth, cut my coat after my, 13 to us, meat and drink and, 1026
 Cloths, heavens' embroidered, 790 Clothe a man with rags, 1108 my naked villany, 71 Clo'es an' good styla an' playnta cash, 814
 Clothes, brushers of noblemen's, 113 came in, since, 498
 cargoes of meat drink and, 950 distinguished men and clothes, 629
 fond to shew our, 199

- Clothes for myself and wife, 181 good smell of old, 804 let us wear theirs and they our, 124 liquefaction of her, 134 nothing to wear but, 729 old, are not venerable, 380 on a hickory limb, hang your, 957 require new, 514
 through tattered, 99 thrown on with a pitchfork, 192 walked away with their, 419 wantonness in, 133
 when he put on his, 254 Clothed and in his right mind, 1116 Clothing resumed its, 889 the palpable and familiar, 318 silkworm wore the very, 199 wolf in sheep's, 962
 Clotho of the present, 974
 Cloud, a fast-flying, 362 a silence, out of the, 681 a wisp of, 795 and clod, in, 877
 and foam, 588
 ascending seems a soul, 688 at each wandering, 722 before the skies, like a, 339 brightest day hath a, 69 by day, 1098
 choose a firm, 209 comes over the sunlit arch, 839 do set my bow in the, 1097 engenders not a storm, every, 70 I thought that morning, 375 in shape of a camel, 94 inner half of every, 837 is on thy brow, 446
 is scattered, when the, 368 lies around us like a, 480 lightning out of the dark, 1079 like a man's hand, 1101 nature is a mutable, 411 of tears, 664 of witnesses, 1122 on a, I saw a child, 281 or sun, as comes to me or, 423 out of the sea, 1101 riding high, white, 924 sable, 157
 sits in a foggy, 87 sky what a scowl of, 493 so fades a summer, 273 spot and vein that runs through the body, 196 sun will pierce the thickest, 490 that's dragonish, 105 the flying, 588
 through a fleecy, 160
 when skies are clear expect the, 509 will turn to rain, mist and, 438 with silver lining, 157 Clouds about, turn my, 837 across the sky, ceaseless, 536 and changing skies, 372 and stars and birds, of, 841 and the only, 1071
- Clouds are blowing, look when the, 667 are marching slow, 710 as they pass, 771
 blue-massing, 894 castles in the, 224 dropping from the, 224 have dropped their garnered fullness, 349 he that regardeth the, 1110 heavily in, brings the day, 194 hide them, 168
 hooded like friars, 433
 I saw two, at morning, 375 in eternal shadow lie, 373 look black the glass is low, 276 looks in the, 82 lovely behavior of silk-sack, 672 never king dropped out of the, 130 no more through rolling, 351 of crying witnesses, 170 of glory, trailing, 301 of opal and amethyst, 522 on water, colours on, 1084 pack away, 129 peaks most wrapt in, 352 play i' the plighted, 158 robe of, throne of rocks, 357 rolling, are spread, 251 sees God in, 207 shining, through dark, 824 sit in the, and mock us, 64 so cool and gray, 638 soft, along the horizon rolled, 418 soon dimmed the ether blue, 382 spots and, in the sun, 124 sun breaks through darkest, 52 suns scorch and dark, lower, 404 that gather round the setting sun, 302 thy, dispel all other, 364 travels in, 170
 which seem pavilions of the sun, 425 will always lour, fear not, 284 would break, never doubted, 494 Cloud-born squadrons, I see the, 586 Cloud-calligraphers, the gulls, the, 804 Cloud-capped towers, 33 Clouded eyes miss, my, 669 sky, from out you, 418
 Clouding cares, 574
 Cloudless hours, none but the, 597 Cloudy collar and a shirt that isn't white, 754 seas, tossed upon, 864 symbols, 384
 Clouded brogues, 106
 Cloven clay, clothed in the, 631 Clover, how to live in, 976 or the snow, in the, 552 to him is aristocracy, 584
 underneath the, 872
 Clover-scented grass, among the, 955
- Clown, meat and drink to me to see a, 51 the stupid and the, 661 Cloy the hungry edge of appetite, 59
 Cloyless sauce, sharpen with, 104
 Club, an assembly, 232 Clubs, luncheon, 926
 typical of strife, 266
 Clueless we go, 922
 Clutch, claw'd me in his, 96 or with sudden, 924
 the golden keys, 468 thee, come let me, 85
 Coach and six, 945 calm Johnny who upset the, 425 come my, 96
 is forced to cheer, 862 not too much to keep a, 182 on the launch, 862
 Coach-house, a double, 321
 Coachman, prouder with her, 650 Coal and salt, mines for, 363 cars down from Scranton, 926 his eyeball, like a, 248 hissing hot from hell, envy's a, 506 is a portable climate, 413 Coals, all eyes else dead, 57 blows the, 971 fallen into the, 960 far innumerable burning, 874 of fire on his head, 1108, 1119 of fire, with, 889
 to Newcastle, carrying, 984 Coarse, familiar but not, 233 or fine, all work, 437 Coast, along the stormy, 410 buried on this, 1092 from east to western, 954 of bliss, gain the, 393 of Cariboo, 622
 of France, and o'er its lee the, 424 stern and rock-bound, 370

as sages say, not a dream so, 507 at one stride comes the, 315 backward in the, 32 between us and the, 923 blue depths, 322
but through, no time so, 501 clouds lower, suns may scorch and, 404
cottage, the soul's, 146 deeds of men, 350 deep emerald that Rossetti wrought, 680
economy of Heaven is, 325 ever-during, surrounds me, 151 every hour of light and, a miracle, 537
eye glances, are where thy, 460 eye in woman, 353 for us i' the, 491 fountain, choke the, 364 go to sleep in the, 323 God's ways seem, 442
heart of mine, so shall this, 432 horse, 420
illumine, what in me is, 148 infinite, 758
irrecoverably, 156
leap into the, 1024 most brightly for the, 911 out of that, 936
pines knew, 847 Plutonian shadows, 568 rigged with curses, 159 shining nowhere but in the, 170 streets, in thy, 612 sun to me is, 156
swearing to keep it, 850
the night is, and I am far, 403
'twill soon be, 408
vistas of the reboant Norns, 432 was the night, 258
ways that are, 644
we are for the, 105
what lieth, 643
what looks, in the distance, 626 when I face the, 682 with excessive bright, 151 with stormy riot, 910
Dark-blue hunter, night the, 801 Darkeneth counsel by words, 1102 Darker grows the night, as, 252 grows the valley, 575
- Darkest clouds, as sun breaks through, 52
day, the, 267
Darkies have to part, time when,
567 Darkling plain, as on a, 546 Darkly blue, summer skies are, 418 deeply beautifully blue, 322 dreaming, 590
see through a glass, 1120 Darkness, a distant voice in the, 437
a knock at the door a voice in
the, 437
again and a silence, then, 437 amid later, 396
among the gusty trees, 864 and silence reign, when awful, 498 and the cold, in the, 702 and wandered through the, 746 another of, on the confines, 378 as they slide from, 933 be, and thine my, 823 be over me, 423
born, in silent, 30 Cimmerian, 327
cleaving the, 855
come not in, come not in light, 386 dawn on our, 342
distinguishable as light from, 247 distrust the, 621 door of, 1019
down, never comes, 891 encompass the tomb, 343 falls from the wings of night, 434 feel a way in, 936 gathers over all, when the, 452 God gives light in, 69 goes and bird and rose, 642 house in the, 750
in the school of, 682 instruments of, tell us truths, 84 is half withdrawn, 633 jaws of, devour it, 42 land of, 1102
leaves the world to, 244 let us weep in our, 431 like a dream, following, 674 lost for aye in the, 538 night, and light day, 154 night and storm and, 353 of night and the winter's snow, 282 of the land, ring out the, 469 oh so sore afraid of, 822 out of one, 933 peering, deep into that, 460 pestilence that walketh in, 1105 pray in the, 386
prince of, 99, 164
raven down of, 158 round me falling, 850 shall not walk in, 1118 shares the, 915
snow nor rain nor heat nor, 969 sorrows and, 343 struggling, through, 596 that one day out of, 597
- Darkness, they go, into the, 917 through a brief, 440 through, up to God, 468 to the happy morn, yields, 672 universal, buries all, 216 unsearchable, 669
we feel is green, 773 which may be felt, 1098 which permits them to see nothing, 995
who would answer, in the, 939 Dark-running wave, 652
Darksome statesman, 170 Darling, an old man's, 17 and my wife, my, 576 of my heart, she is the, 189 of my manhood, 463
of nature, 1029
of our crew, 274
plains, substantiate with his, 810
sin, his, 316
that mashed Romeo, 755 the dear little dimpled, 604 the Frenchman's, 266
the poet's, 298
Darlings, wealthy curled, 100 Darning ragged hose, passed night away, 557 Dart, death shook his, 155 every look a, 193 feather on the fatal, 145, 351 laughter winged his, 626 like the poisoning of a, 167 shook a dreadful, 150 stricken with a, 145, 964 time shall throw a, at thee, 120
Darts, breaking the bundle of, 1002 to its delight, soul that, 556 wards off the, 453
Darwin, Abraham of scientific men, 543
Darwinian man though well-behaved, 624
Darwinism had a champion in Huxley, 930
Dash between the two, 574 maturest counsels, 149
o'er the surface skims with a, 675 Dashing of waves on the sandy bar, 565
Dateless oblivion and divine repose, 610
Dates of wars and deaths of kings, 621
which made me, 832 Daughter am I in my mother's house, 778
blind beggar's, 257
dear, O, her mother said, 501 is my daughter all her life, 567 left-lonesome, 817
let them all to my, 855 lieth at the point of death, 1116 Light god's eldest, 147 made love to his, 996 O my, 670
of a hundred ears, 462 of Bednall-green, 257 of earth and water, 366 of earth, never a, 954 of his voice, sole, 155

- Daughter of Jove, relentless power, 243 of the dawn, 220
of the voice of God, 299 one fair, and no more, 92 still harping on my, 92 than lovely mother, 983 that was all to him, 784 went to bathe in style, 375 yes my darling, 957
- Daughters ever since, her, 490 fairest of her, 152
horseleech hath two, 1109 many, have done virtuously, 1109 may be corner stones, 1106 of earth, words are the, 232 of my father's house, 55 of necessity, 974
of the game, 75
so curses all Eve's, 35 stepmother of ministers', 654 sterile be, 937
words are men's, 204, 232
- Daughter's daughter cries, 1092 heart, preaching down a, 464
- Daughters' minds, trust not your, 100
- Daunce, merie may ye, 6
- Dauntless in war, 307 mind ride in triumph over all mischance, 70
- Dauphiness at Versailles, 260
- David and Josias, 947 Garrick, here lies, 252 his little lad, 719
his ten thousands, 1100 in slaying Goliath, assisted, 1056 not only hating, 173 prevailed over the Philistine, 1100 wrote the Psalms, 755
- David's psalms had ne'er been sung, 1052
- Davil, sea, dat ole, 902
- Davy Crockett, all knew, 686
- Daw, no wiser than a, 68
- Daws to peck at, 100
- Dawg around, quit kicking my, 956
- Dawn, breaks brightest into, 967 comes up like thunder, 782 conscious of the secret, 773
creation's, 355
daughter of the, 220 exhortation of the, 953 face of the live new, 633 golden exhalations of the, 318 in the sky, 813 is breaking, grey, 396 is my brother, 810 is overcast, the, 194 light-giving, 960
may-time and the cheerful, 299 no, no dusk no noon, 391 of ampler life, 760 of day, two towers of sail at, 519 of light, 364
of music poetry and art, 411 of the morning after, 791 on our darkness, 342
on the other, 810
parting is with, 771 sacred wine of, 764
salutation of the, 953
- Dawn saw his campfires, 847 the eternal, 702
the wind that sighs before the, 604 unspeakable, in happy old age, 1069 watching in the twilight, 918 whitened and the east was clear, 659 with silver-sandaled feet, 723
- Dawns, the diamond, 572
- Dawn's early, can you see by the, 921
- Dawn-encircled sea, 889
- Dawning, bird of, 89 is the night for you, 625 of her thigh, 134 tongue and pen aid the, 503 what makes his, glow, 416
- Day a happy one to a fellow-creature, 313 a perfect picnic, 691 advantages that occur every, 228 advent of each dangerous, 825 after the fair, 13 afterwards, 583
again, would that it were, 916 alternate night and, 1018 and equal night, equal, 561 and had his, 925 and in my, the sun doth, 514 and night, more sure than, 317 and the light need thee so, 644 and the way we met, 633 another blue, 381
are scarce descried, at dawn of, 519 arriving in, in night to all, 536 as it fell upon a, 120 as one shall see in a summer's, 42 as she lay on that, 288 at night, praise, 136
at the close of the, 269 be drunk the business of the, 177 be she fairer than the, 132 before yesterday, the, 892 better, the better deed, 116 beyond the night across the, 465 big with the fate of Cato, 194 blabbing and remorseful, 69 boils at last, 485 break of, 37
break, until the, 1110 breaks not, it is my heart, 117 breathing time of, with me, 97 bright, is done, 105 brought back my night, 162 brought too long a, 390 burden and heat of the, 1115 by algebra tell what hour of, 141 by day, chronicle of, 33 by day, I shall find how, 405 by the fire at close of, 1027 by water fire or air, that, 577 can prostrate, 965 cap by night a stocking all the, 253 cares that infest the, 434 cast not the, 633 chest of drawers by, 251 clean-shirt, 233 close the drama with the, 203
- Day, close the eye of, 161 comes on, 886
cometh night, goeth, 643 compare as, with night, 555 compare thee to a summer's, 107 continual dropping in a rainy, 1108 count that, lost, 950 darkest, the, 267
dawns to which we are awake, only that, 515 deficiencies of the present, 232 denies to gaudy, 356 deserved, what hath this, 57 dies like the dolphin, parting, 354 dog and you've had your, 712 dog will have his, 97 drink oblivion of a, 574 dye before his, 255 entertains the harmless, 114 erased the lesson done, the, 537 ere the dawning of the, 738 even and morn, 154
every dog has his, 1035 every, is a fresh beginning, 682 every, should be passed as if it were our last, 989 eye of, 161, 273
faster and more fast, 484 fills his blue urn with fire, 409 five hours in a, 234 for ever and a, 51 for toil an hour for sport, 410 fretting all the, 889 gather honey all the, 199 gaudy blabbing and remorseful, 69 God's interminable, 504 goes by like a shadow, 567 good-bye sweet, 619 great avenging, 218 great the important, 194 grow milder when 'tis, 967 gwine to run all, 568 has begun, 801
has ever failed me, no, 845 hast thou forgotten this, 396 he that outlives this, 67 heat of the long, and wish, 546 her suffering ended with the, 473 her washing ended with the, 557 hoping for the perfect, 477 how troublesome is, 348
I asked of echo t' other, 511
I dearly love but one, 189
I hate the, 26
I have had the, 880
I stand outside, every, 793
I've lived, this, 984
I've lost a, 201
idle singer of an empty, 608 in a hot, 64
in clouds brings on the, 194 in every scene by, 393 in golden letters should be set, 57 in its hotness, 547
in June, what so rare as a, 525 in melting purple dying, 375 in the country, 587 in the light of fuller, 523 in thy courts, 1105 infinite, excludes the night, 199

Day, into the light of common, 301 is a perpetual morning, 514 is always coming, 763 is at the morn, 485 is aye fair, 291
 is dim, only my, 761 is done and darkness falls, 434 is dying in the west, 656 is long, merry as the, 38 is out and the labor done, 430 is over, now the, 605 is past and gone, 370 is too near, 643
 jocund, stands tiptoe, 79 joint labourer with the, 89 July's, short as December, 56 kings upon their coronation, 174 knell of parting, 244 known a better, 306 laugh to the summer's, 371 life confined within the space of a, 1004
 life is but a, 384
 life is but a sultry, 1066 little rain foretells a pleasant, 507 live-long, the, 81
 loitering, lose this, 1058 long, on all things all, 470 long, support us all the, 1128 longer than a wonder lasts, a, 70 look to this, 953 lord it but a, 687
 love o' life's young, 389 maddest merriest, 463 made black by morning storms, 325
 makes up the commonplace, 682 marked with a white stone, 1039 may bring forth, what a, 1108 merry heart goes all the, 56 more work in a, 345
 morning shows the, 156
 most splendid, I was thinking
 the, 537
 must follow as the night the, 91 ne'er dawns again, this, 1021 next, never so good, 989 night is mother of the, 441 no proper time of, 391
 nor looks to see the breaking, 444 not to me returns, 151
 now's the, now's the hour, 286 of adversity, 1108, 1109 of Armageddon, in the day of, 778 of crisis and of ultimate hope, 347 of death, ere the first, 355 of deliverance, 268 of empires, 622
 of grief and glory, 759 of judgment, vulgarize the, 417 of nothingness, first dark, 355 of prosperity, in the, 1109, 1124 of small nations, 622 of small things, 26
 of spring and spring day, 710

Day of thy power, in the.
 1105 of woe the watchful night, 322 old blue flower of, 801 on any particular, 935 on any reckoning, 847
 one of the great lost days, 796 open as, and the hearts, 435 our eternal, 893
 our little systems have their, 467 painted this perfect, 761 parting, linger and play on its summit, 339
 pollutes the, 368
 posteriors of this, 41 precincts of the cheerful, 245 promise of your early, 342 rain it raineth every, 56 ran a hundred years to a, 452 right must win the, 503 rival in the light of, 303
 Rome was not built in a, 15, 1042 sailed away for a year and a, 498 seated one, at the organ, 564 seek all, ere you find them, 44 seen us walking every, 167 serene, rarely is a, 942 shall be beautiful, 802 shall clasp him, 900 shall not be up, the, 58 shining hills of, 442 short or never so long, 17 sir critic good, 508 smiled up across the tide, 772 so calm so cool, 135
 so shuts the eye of, 273 star arise in your hearts, 1123 state and inclination of the, 60 sufficient unto the, 1114 summer's, hath a, 165 sun shall not smite thee by, 1106 sunbeam in a winter's, 223 superfluous burden loads the, 162
 sweet Phosphor bring the, 134 take thou in charge this, 400 that comes betwixt a Saturday and Monday, 189
 that comes by gift of chance, 983 that is dead, grace of a, 465 that maketh all things clear, 643 that shines, think every, 985 that surely dawning, 954 that unforgettable, 627
 the bricks are alive at this, 69
 the dying, pause, 848
 the, is gone, 385
 the most useless, 1056
 the order of the, 941 they pass every, 1085 they read no more, that, 346 thou wilt bless the, 501 through the long polar, 552 through the Lord's word named, 3 thunder in a fair frosty, 172 time and hour runs through the roughest, 84
 to be lost, every, 238

Day to day, from, 88 to fire the brave, 219 to keep awake all, 1079 to-morrow will be a new, 1040 to-morrow will be another, 732 to night pass life pleasantly, 491 to search for God, took a, 758 too solemn for, 386 toward dying, crawled another, 889 travails of the painefull, 26 trust some later, 983 turned to his rest, 368 uncertain glory of an April, 33 unto day, uttereth speech, 1103 unto the perfect, 1106 varies every, 174
 very rainy, 1108
 we pluck, one, 848
 wealthy gallant always gains
 the, 1022
 well-spent brings happy sleep, 1023 were here, would God, 632 what thou hast done by, 136 when I must die, 577
 when like the rising, 416 when skies are fair, 567 when you shall depart, 930 which the Lord hath made, 1106 who won the success of a, 533 will carry the, 1034
 will not cannot last for aye, this bright, 516 will not look the same by, 428 wish for your last, 995 with me to stay, came a, 668 without all hope of, 156 wrong side of thirty if she be a, 192 yield, to night, 68
 you do not write, 896
 you finished it, 878
 you shall seek all, 44 Days, a few prosaic, 585 afternoon of her best, 72 among the dead, 321
 among the peaceful harvest, 561 and hours, do with all the, 454
 are all alike, 916
 are as grass, his, 1105 are done, my fighting, 901 are hastening on, lo the, 477 are in the yellow leaf, 358 are phantom days, 847 are still and bright, 418 are swifter than a shuttle, 1102 are told, 1022
 are trances, all my, 460 are young and careless-hearted, 840
 as thy, so thy strength, 1099 be as a marriage bed, all thy, 135 begin with trouble here, 947 by dreams, measure, 774 called the feast of Crispian, 67 count on two, 966 dead-letter, 323 dividing lover and lover, 633 dull and hoary, 170 eke out the measure of my,
 1076

Days fill so much, winter, 669 find it after many, 1110 flight of future, 150 for all the frittered, 881 forty, and forty nights, 1097 friend of my better, 363 full of sweet, and roses, 135 giants in those, 1097 golden olden glory of the, 973 grow dark, if the, 662 halcyon, 68, 972
 hand in hand in the golden, 395 happy mixtures of happy, 357 have been so wondrous free, 201 have crackled, 749
 have grown to months, 707 heavenly, one of those, 296 hypocritic, 410
 I meet him, greet him the, 673 immelodious, 735
 in bad, we can vividly recall, 1064
 in good, we have imperfect memory, 1064
 in her right hand, length of, 1106 in the week, of all the, 189 in these Christian, 345 joyfulness prolongeth his, 1125 light doth trample on my, 170 light of other, 336 like the good old, no, 453 live laborious, 159 long as twenty, are now, 297 looked on better, 49 loved three whole, 163
 may come the days may go, 638 measure of my, 1104 melancholy, are come, 372 men in these degenerate, 218 my, are dull and hoary, 170 o' auld lang syne, 286 of a man are counted, 766 of art, elder, 436
 of childhood, in my, 325 of few, and full of trouble, 1102 of his pilgrimage, 499 of indigestion, 860 of joy, to remember, 1020 of labor, through, 952 of langsyne, 390
 of long-haired poets, 661 of my distracting grief, 248 of my youth, in the, 718 of necessity, prepare for the, 962 of old, in the brave, 400 of old Rameses, 953 of old, which I heard in, 446 of our years are threescore, 1105 of palmy prosperity, 374 of thy youth, in the, 1110 of yore, sad and happy, 703 of your life, live all the, 192 on evil, though fallen, 153 on the earth are as a shadow, 1101 one of those heavenly, 296 our deeds, our, 572 pain of lonely, 596
 past our dancing, 77

Days perfect, if ever come, 525 prepare, for all your, 708 pride of former, 334 red-letter, 323
 rye-bread, dull and damp, 476 salad, when I was green, 104 see those halcyon, 972 seen better, 357
 shuts up the story of our, 22 some, must be dark and dreary, 434 supported by precedents, 999 sweet childish, 297 tale of her, 954
 teach us to number our, 1105 than dreamless nights, idle, 823 that are gone by, 973
 that are no more, 466, 973 that have been, from, 426 that keep us still apart, 793 that make us happy, 832 that need borrow, 165 that saw us young, bless the, 522
 the ancient of, 1113 the errant, 871
 the great of older, 579 the whole forty, 815 thirty, hath November, 18 those were happy, 197
 though fall'n on evil, 153 though shortening, 335 through endless summer, 584 to lengthen our, 336 to loose good, 25
 town-meeting, 404
 trample on my, 170
 two carefree, 670
 unquiet, he lived in, 445 we have seen better, 49, 81 weaving the web of, 631 were circles, 933 when birds come back, 584 when the ball of our vision, 576 with God he passed the, 201 with toil winding up, 67 who creeps his, 905 world of happy, 71
 world was made in six, 1060 Day's autumn, 799 business, end of this, 84 garish eye, 161
 life, death of each, 86 long toil is past, 392
 march nearer home, 306 occupations, pause in the, 434 sorrow of each, growing, 607 tramp is over, 873
 work and his night's work, 630 work, done a good, 228 work was done, soon as your,
 600
 Daybreak everywhere, it is, 439 Daylight and air, and, 744 can see a church by, 38 finish, must in death your, 492 in the mind, 197
 sick, this night is but the, 47 sweet, found the common, 687 that we may rejoice like the lark, 431
 we burn, 34, 178

Daysies, swiche as men callen, in our toun, 4
 Day-star arise in your hearts, 1123 so sinks the, 159
 Daze the world, 402
 Dazzle the vision feminine, 401 Dazzling fence of rhetoric, 158 immortality, 366
 Dazzlingly in full dress, 358
 De mortuis nil nisi bonum, 1013
 Deacon, I was junior, 782 swear, enough to make a, 527 Dead a thousand years, 881 and all the rest are, 437 and dumb and done, 823 and gone, he is, 256
 and the seas give up their, 375 and turned to clay, 97 are always pop'lar, 796 as a doornail, 66, 495
 as Chelsea, 944
 as mutton, 497 away, hopeless lays his, 444 being, with him is beauty slain, 106 bivouac of the, 541 close the wall with English, 66 coals, 57
 converse with the mighty, 224 could find out, if only the, 594 cup to the, already, 554 day that is, grace of a, 465 days among the, 321 death is to the, 638 deathless hour, 577 democracy of the, 602 disembodied spirits of the, 373 do the meanest thing after he's, 687
 don't die, 884
 evil become lost and, 536 for a ducat, 95
 for we bore our, 845 game sport, 803
 has a dear one, 676 have consciousness of our presence, 350
 he is not, 366
 he is not, but departed, 591 heart's, are never buried, 910 hosts of the mighty, 641 how fares it with the happy, 468 how living are the, 697
 if I were, you'd sometimes say, 556
 I'm king of the, 448
 in look so woe-begone, 63 in the streets, truth never fell, 476 Indians only good ones, 594 is at rest when the, 1125 is it possible, 643
 it seems that the, are there, 554
 it's for a long time, 1062 knocking when I'm, 855 language impart to a, 607 languages, 358
 litigate over me when I'm, 605 living dog better than a, 1109 man cannot bite, 999
 Man's Chest, 524

- Dead, many of mine old acquaintance are, 65 marks our English, 778 men, down among the, 941 men grin by the wall, 864 men in the loam, sows, 712 men rise up never, 632 men, who wait for, 15 men's bones, full of, 1116 most deadly when most, 914 mourning for our, 1089 my dearest, when I am, 587 nature seems, 85
 no pageant train when I am, 374 not, but gone before, 188, 289 not to speak evil of the, 1013 nothing to the, 586
 now behold him, 756
 of midnight, 273
 of night, 63 old lion is, 276
 on the face of the, 569 on the field of battle, 706 on the field of honour, 1092 only the, who do not return, 1059 out of reach your, 696 over mounds of the, 576 over the rich, 894
 past bury its dead, 433 past clear of all regret, keep the, 960 Petra in her hill-tomb, 443 pity tenderness and charity when we're, 520 pleasure of not being, 1054 poets in their misery, 297 posture that we give the, 279 profiteering in the, 908 remembered footsteps, 807 rest for the, 605 rest her soul, she's, 97 reverence of the, 132 risen from the, 699 rises from, ceremonies the Christ, 609 say I'm sick, I'm, 212
 Sea, one social, 716
 Sea's shore, 352
 secrets arise, 913
 sepulchres of mighty, 386 she is not, 817
 sheeted, did squeal, 89 should still be near, desire the, 468 sleeping but never, 524 some hundred years, 657 the breathers of this world are, 108 the law hath not been, 36 the noble living and the noble, 300 the unreplying, 602
 the world has no power, over the, 1051 there are no, 618
 these heroic happy, 921 this earth that bears thee, 63 this man is, 925
 those immortal, who live again, 520 though the house of it seems, 597 thought it happier to be, 409 to bewail the, 959
- Dead together, wish we were, 631 understand that you are, 896 vast and middle of the night, 90 volcanoes only, on, 690 wake the, 886
 we become the lumber of the world, 185 weep not for the silent, 290 when a man is, 330
 when but for those our mighty, 288 when honour dies the man is, 442 when I am, let fire destroy the world, 1093 when I am, no pageant train, 374 when it is said, word is, 585 when the living might exceed the, 145 which he slew at his death, 1099 who fed the guns, 892 who go, are from the, 683 who hath bent him o'er the, 355 will not say that he is, 696 will stare and sting, 914 would I were now, 391
 you are the, 929
 you never shall return, 1018 Dead-letter days, 323
 Deadlock, holy, 909
 Deadly breach, imminent, 100 fair so coldly sweet, 355 Dead-sure thing, a, 639
 Deadwood and Lost Mule Flat, 929 Deaf adder, like the, 1104 are dumb are blind, 'tis we are, 604 neither good nor bad to the, 1049 none so, that will not hear, 17, 136, 187 world does not hear, 706 Deal damnation round the land, 216 in giving a great, 1050 of nothing, infinite, 44 of sack, intolerable, 62 of scorn, what a, 55 of skumble-skamble stuff, 62 square, 734
 Deals, piled-up, 873
 Dealing, common sense and plain, 412 Dealings, he was faultless in his, 406 whose hard, 45
 Dean, cushion and soft, 210 Deans, dowagers for, 466 prudes for proctors dowagers for, 466
 Dear a price, too, 229 and true industrious friend, here is a, 60 as the light of these sad eyes, 244 as the ruddy drops, 82, 244 beauteous death, 170
 charmer away, 205
 common flower, 525 creations, so will these, 551
- Dear dead women, 486
 five hundred friends, 265 for his whistle, paid, 227 for my possessing, too, 108 glad faces long away, 619 guest and ghost, 439 hut our home, 226
 makes the remembrance, 53 man to all the country, 250 my, better half, 27
 near and true, 467
 none less, than thine and my good Marcius, 76 old friend to me, 678 old-fashioned poses, where are the, 569 our very dearest, 642 pay a great deal too, 56 sixpence all too, 101
 so, I love him, 155
 son of memory, 161
 the merry cries, 619
 the people coming home, 619 the spot, matters not how, 432 the thanks, 619 to God, worthy patriots, 162 to home and memory, 734 to me as are the ruddy drops, 82 to me as life and light, 286 to them that love her, 747 to this heart, how, 348 where did you come from baby, 559 wisdom is never, 479 work good-night, 458
 you will be, how, 895
 Dears, the lovely, 284
 Dearer than his horse, something, 464 Dearest enemy, nearest and, 117 thing he owed, 84
 through every season, 393
 Dearly let or let alone, 135
 Dearnness only gives value, 271 Dearth, but a lack and, 597 of woman's tears, was, 447 Death a cordial old and rare, 664 a delightful journey, 520 a door that leads to light, 603 a hideous show, 547
 a necessary end, 82
 a state of rest, 350 after life, 24 aims with fouler spite, 134 all in the valley of, 467 anchor of a love is, 676 and Chance and time, triumphing over, 161 and failure and fame forever, 737 and General Putnam, 816 and his brother sleep, 368 and life, bane and antidote, 195 and life in ceaseless, 447 and night, hands of the sisters, 536 and pain, they fear, 995 and sleep, twins, 219 and taxes, 228
 and that vast forever, 523 and the Roman populace, 438 and the stars, night sleep, 537 and the sultan, 767

Death and time bring on the prime, 693
armed with new terror, 331 at midnight goes a-dancing, 1078 at the point of, 80, 1051 be called unhappy, no one till his, 430
be careful of the rest, 793 be good, whether, 632 be not proud, 118 be thou faithful unto, 1123 begun, birth is nothing but, 202 between us, 480
birth and, 985
borders upon our birth, 121 breaks every bond, 1051 broke the vital chain, 231 brother to sleep, 30 but a tavern, 833
but an eternal sleep, 972 but life, and see not, 575 by beauty made amends, 798 by inches, give him, 76
by slanderous tongues, done to, 40
calls ye, 141
came with friendly care, 316 cannot slay, 736 captain of all these men of, 172 chooses his own time, 596 clear, will make, 634 closes a man's reputation, 196 cold not daunte, 257 come lovely and soothing, 536 come to the bridal chamber, 362 comes at last, 592, 792 comes to all, 1027
comes to set thee free, 1063 comes, when, 670
cometh, soon or late, 400 content to have from, 746 continue after, 981 could not stop for, 584 covenant with, 424
creation's, 328
cruel as, 224
cruel, is always near, 947 danger of violent, 132
dear beauteous, 170 defend to the, 1053 delicately takes the best, 793 deprive him of, 738
devise, he did my, 136 devours all lovely things, 915 died there a natural, 838 disregard for, 930
divorce or, 624
doors that lead to, 144 drawing near her, 147 draws near, when, 967 dread of something after, 93 dull cold ear of, 244 early, to favourites, 354 éclat of, 584
eclipsed the gayety of nations, 233 effect of, on the world, 670 eleven thousand persons suffered, 191 eloquent just and mightie, 22 end of a journey, 520 ending in, at last, 608 epitaph after your, 93 ere thou hast slain another, 120

Death, faithful unto, 1123 fatal asterisk of, 438 fell sergeant, 97
final taunt of, 924
first day of, 355
first solemn note is sounded by, 1064
for an example of noble courage, 1125
for thee was glorified, 823 for who is he, 584 forgotten, were, 933 four fingers from, 1013
gallop Pegasus to, 214 gates of glory and of, 789 gave all that we possess, 651 give me liberty or give me, 270 gives a foretaste of, 1064 glimped the awful face of, 1091 gone to her, 392 grants us yet a little time, 664 gray, sets me free, 774 grim, 129
guilty of his own, 96 had left it almost fair, 681 had the majority long since, 145 happy people not afraid of, 788 has broached him to, 274 has carved me, when, 892 has choked a great man's voice, 429
has ever truly longed for, 462 has its own way, 1067 has shaken out, 375 hath a thousand doors, 128, 129 hath no more dominion, 1119 hath not touched it at all, 597 hath so many doors, 131 hath ten thousand several doors, 127
he taketh all away, 554 heaven gives to its favourites early, 354
heavy page of, 938
herald after my, 74
his ladder to the skies, 26 his Maker and the angel, 317 how wonderful is, 368 hymn to his own, 58
I would fain die a dry, 32 in battle, prize of, 527 in France, walked with, 904 in itself is nothing, 178 in life, found, 319 in life, oh, 466
in life or after, 970
in love with easeful, 383 in strange contradiction to life, 709 in that sleep of, 93 in the afternoon, 930 in the alabaster arms of, 646 in the hour of, 561
in the midst of life, 1128 in the pot, 1101 in victory, swallow up, 1111 into the world, brought, 148 intrenched, 202
is a common friend or foe, 511 is a great disguiser, 37 is a secret of nature, 1010 is a sleep, 631
is a state of nothingness, 970

Death is a thing which makes men weep, 361
is an eternal sleep, 1060 is at the bottom of the cup, 629 is beautiful, 528
is better, sleep is good but, 1066 is birth, end of, 597 is but an open door, 843 is but one more to-morrow, 579 is but the long cool night, 1066 is certain to all, 65 is life, perhaps, 972 is life's high meed, 385 is love's friend, 690 is master, 678
is most in apprehension, 988 is never at a loss for occasions, 1092 is new, life's old, 493 is no civil, 594
is no foe-man, 896
is no punishment, 164 is not the worst evil, 965 is only a beautiful adventure, 534 is only a horizon, 653 is our master, 917 is prancing, 1078
is slumber, 366 is strict in his arrest, 97 is strong, stronger than, 612 is such waste of me, 798 is the ugly fact, 588 is the veil, 367
just and mightie, 22
just, kind umpire of men's miseries, 68
kneeling by his bed of, 31 laid low in, 327 laugh myself to, 33 lays his icy hand, 141 lead him to, 185
let it not be a, 1084
lieth at the point of, 1116 life achieved by others', 58 life is ever lord of, 444 life perfected by, 428 life well used brings happy, 1023 like a friend unseen, 808 long mysterious exodus of, 436 looks gigantically down, 459 love is strong as, 1110 love thee better after, 429 loves a mining shark, 661 loves a shining mark, 134, 202 lurks in every flower, 342 makes equal the high and low, 11 makes his arrest, when, 833 may bring our friend, 587 means, know what, 595 meetest for, 46
men equal in presence of, 986 men fear, 109
most in apprehension, 36 my name is, 659
name is admiral, 764 name that sat on him was, 1123 nativity chance or, 35
no, for such as he, 595 no kind of, 887
no other herald after my, 74 nor change, there is no, 368

Death nor life, neither, 1119 not, but love, 428 not divided in, 1100 nothing happen more beautiful than, 534
 nothing our own but, 59 O amiable lovely, 58 of a dear friend, the, 43 of Charles I., 1078 of cold, catch your, 501 of each day's life, 86 of friends, feel for the, 1043 of his saints, 1105
 of kings, and tell sad stories of the, 60
 of one who is young, 887 of some of her, through, the, 832 of the flowers, after the, 952 of the righteous, 1099 of the saints of the Lord, 1105 old men's prayers for, 967 on his pale horse, 155, 639 on the reef of Norman's Woe, 433 or dreamful ease, dark, 463 or honour or of love's sweet smart, of, 911
 outrage worse than, 316 paleness of, 362
 paradise to what we fear of, 36
 pause for, 491
 pigeon that has been starved to, 458
 plague us to, 1052 prayers for, 967
 prepare as though for, 907 provides Anglo-Saxons amusement, 919
 quiet us in, so noble, 157 reads the title clear, 492 reaper whose name is, 433 remembered after, 928 remembered kisses after, 466 rendezvous with, 904 rides a camel, 544 rides on every breeze, 342 ruling passion strong in, 209 sail on the sea of, 832 sallied forth, 840 seems but a covered way, 443 sends a radiogram, 854 sense of, most in apprehension, 36 shades of, 150 shadow of, 1102 shall be no more, 118 shook his dart, 155
 should sing, 't is strange that, 58 silence deep as, 328 silent halls of, 371
 simplest of human rights to choose, 754 slavery or, when to choose, 195 sleep before, 1004 sleep is a, 145
 slue not him, 26 smooth the bed of, 213 sole equality on earth, 506 sooner or later delicate, 536 sorrows of, compassed me, 1103 speak me fair in, 47 strikes down the innocent, 495

Death, struck sharp on, 429 studied in his, 84 succeeded life so softly, 175 sure-enwinding arms of cool-enfoldng, 536
 sweats to, Falstaff, 61 swerved from, 773 takes toll of beauty, 832 that cuts in marble, 916 that makes life live, 491 the blessing men fly from, 553 the discourse of everybody, 182 the fear of, 988
 the great adventure, 881 the healer, scorn thou not, 964 the jaws of, 56, 467
 the lover of life, 692
 the nature of his, 969
 the old nurse, 693
 the punishment for murder, 479 the sable smoke, 354
 the serenity of, 602
 the stern sculptor, 595
 the valley of the shadow of, 1103 there is no, 435, 618
 there is not room for, 516 they said that in, 929
 they were not divided, in, 520 things that nature wills, 1011 think not disdainfully of, 1011 this is the taste of, 958 thou hast all seasons, 370 thy sting, O, 736 till, us do part, 1128
 't is not all of, to die, 306 to die a more painful, 1084 to life, from, 31 to those who mourn, 371 to us play to you, 167 to what we fear of, 36 tragedies finished by a, 359 triumphant, 155
 true face of, 796
 tryst with, 767
 turn ice in the grasp of, 554 twitching my ear, 982 unexpected, the best sort, 1003 vacancies by, are few, 274 valiant taste but once of, 82 vasty hall of, 546 victory or, resolved on, 1060 wages of sin is, 1119 wait, nor be afraid, 489 way to dusty, 88
 ways and words of, 692
 we must stoop to, 19 went out to, 867
 what should I know of, 295 what ugly sights of, 71 where is thy sting, 1120
 which happened in his berth, 392 which he slew at his, 1099 whispers of heavenly, 537 who puts, sweet is, 470 whose portal we call, 436 will overtake you, 1126 will seize the doctor, 106 will soon be past, 396 with anxious strife, 326 with rust, eaten to, 64 would easily reconciles itself to his, 422

Death, worse things waiting than.
 631
 worst friend and enemy is but, 894
 Deaths, cowards die many times before their, 82 glorious in thy just defence, 194 happen at ebb tide, 713 I could endure, all, 155 many, have place in men, 826 more than one must die, 722 of kings and dates of wars, 621 thousand dreadful, 728 unknown to fame, 219 ye died I have watched, 776 Death's a debt, 278
 ace, he trumped, 639 boatman, 983
 brink, Shelley to, 879
 call, why should I fear, 534 counterfeit, sleep, 86 dark encounter, for, 508 door, brought to, 525 dream kingdom, 899 familiar tale, 554 fearful forehead, 658 iron guard, through, 937 pale flag, 80
 road we all must go, 983
 Death-bed of fame, from the, 327 Death-complete to die, a life-complete in, 682
 Deathless chains, 432 deed or word, 879 fame, to give her features, 561 lines, for all your, 868 page, traced on the, 516 Deathly slumber, seal thy sense in, 822
 Death-wave o'er, sailed long since the, 568
 Death-winter, so after the, 560 Death-wound of Dundee, 758
 Debatable land, 651
 Debate of commonwealth affairs, 66
 Rupert of, 419, 425
 Debauchee of dew, 584
 Deborah danced, 901
 Debt, a double, to pay, 251 a national, is a national blessing, 341
 by no means run in, 136 death is a, 278
 depends on borrowing and, 1076
 don't allow us to be in their, 509
 due in May or in December, 698
 every one that was in, 1100 expedient of going into, 715 if a man owe a, 958
 infinite, 1057

 594 and unaccountable desire, 806 and wish, beat with, 444 as we glide through a quiet, 350 as youthful poets, 160
 awaken'd, who from a, 1021 awaking, from a troubled, 396 beautiful for patriot, 737 beyond the shadow of a, 382 by day, those who, 461 come true, making the, 873 consecration and the poet's, 299 deeper, one, 592
 delicious, when a, 675 dim blue hills of, 717 dreamed a, that could not be, 558 feeling in his, 1021 fickle as a changeful, 308 from deed, 693 gone like a beautiful, 392 grandeur is a, 265
 has power to poison sleep, 368 hath possessed, 891
 heart not able to report my, 43 her face stirred with her, 360 holy things fade like a, 523
 I have had a, 43
 I saw as in a, 423
 I took a rampin', 878
 in cleaving to the, 650 of, a sight to, 315

 of a waking man, 1014
 of happiness, 953
 of heaven, she did but, 175 of home, the, 337
 of life, he hath awakened from the, 366 of loveliness descending, saw a, 559 of peace, deep, 346 of sleeping innocence, 645 of things that were, 352 old men's, 173
 one man with a, 676
 one with twilight's, 801 or dust, 851
 or grave apart, keep a, 428 our suffering life the, 480 past the wit of man to say what, 43 problem flowered from a, 823 record of a fevered, 685 scraps of, 757
 short as any, 42
 silently as a, 266
 so climbs my, 889
 sonnambulist of a vanished, 1067 sprite begotten of summer, 407 still mounts the, 851 sweet thoughts in a, 368 that I forget, 632
 that is dying, 676
 the glory and the, 301 to sleep perchance to, 93 we thought was lost, every, 557 when one awaketh, 1105
 when the long trick's over, 832 which was not all a dream, 356 with the first, 701 within a dream, is but a, 459 Dreams, and all my nightly, 460 and slumbers light, 308 and visions, distraught with, 439 are best, 844
 are ever contrary, 116 awake, from pleasant, 348 be thine, sweetest, 642 blissful, of long ago, 638 blowing loudly in, 967 books are each a world, 301 come in, to me, 869 depart and the vision falls, 521 direction of his, 515 dreamer of, 952
 dreamer of, born out of my, 608 emptied of all my, 882 feed on, 963
 full of ghastly, 71
 glimpses of forgotten, 462 ground not upon, 116 gone to smoke, 766
 green dusk for, 823
 had never known, 696
- Dreams, have only my, 790 help us incarnate, 860
 I have spread my, 790
 I see thee ever in my, 417 lies down to pleasant, 372 like a dog he hunts in, 464 like the atmosphere of, 447 no mortal ever dreamed before, 460 not the England of our, 782 not with, shall a nation be moulded, 634 of avarice beyond the, 237 of childhood, 497
 of doing good, 430 of love and truth, 665 of men, 726
 of my infinite, 761
 of thee, I arise from, 368 of those who wake, 995 old men shall dream, 173 saddle your, 872 season of our lonely, 843 she grows not older, in, 675 songs she heard in her, 432 such stuff as, are made on, 33 that count with men, 952 that fooled me, 533
 that wave before the half-shut eye, 224 their own, deceive 'em, 190 to sell, if there were, 406 tread on my, 790 true I talk of, 77
 what, may come, 93
 winged, 256
 yet in my, 423
 Dream's confusion, end my, 856
 Dream-beguiled, their paths are, 756 Dreamed a dream that could not be, 558 before, dreams no mortal ever, 460 that life was beauty, 508 Dreamer awake, where shall the, 618 beautiful, 568 dream no more, said, 558 of dreams, 952
 of dreams born out of my, 608 who's making the dream, 873 Dreamers of dreams, 676 of the impossible, 491
 Dreamer's wine, drunken with the, 871
 Dreamful eyes my spirit lies, with, 552 Dream-house anyway, it's just a, 920
 Dreaming darkly of a Dun, 590 dreams no mortal ever dreamed, 460 eyes of wonder, 598 past the size of, 105 upon Salmon's height, sun-shine, 556 Dreamland, the ventures of, 579 you hail from, 730
 Dreamless bed, 446
 rest is mine, when, 681 sleep, 612
 Dream-like trade of blood and guile, 316 Dream-shadows go, where the, 717
- Dreamt I dwelt in marble halls, 386 of in your philosophy, 92 Dreamy air, russet year inhaled the, 551 eyes, they tell sweet lies, 336
 Dear-nighted December, 383 Dreary and cold with a chill, 815 dumps, these, 77
 never-ending tale, 718
 once upon a midnight, 460 to be somebody, 584 winter, oh the long and, 436 Dregs of life, from the, 178 of strife, bitter, 608 Drenched and dripping apple-trees, 915 sands, 587
 Drenching, because of which, 815 Dress and manners in England, 720 be plain in, 221
 by yellow candle-light, 702 changed for sake of leg, 701 daring in full, 358 fair undress, best, 224 felt through this fleshly, 170 his century wore, in the, 584 I'm growing careless of my, 509 let the world go dine and, 406 little checkered, 696 music sports and theatres, 1049 of thoughts, style is the, 222 sweet disorder in the, 133 though in another, 438 to, to call, 736 Dresses for breakfast and dinners and balls, 561 for winter spring summer and fall, 561 to dance in and flirt in and talk in, 561 to sit in and stand in and walk in, 561 Dressed in all his trim, 108 in good temper when well, 495 Dress-suit city, 859
 Drest in little brief authority, 36 still to be neat still to be, 119 world you are beautifully, 553 small beer, felony to, 69 strong, is raging, 1107 takes the man, 659

 that quenches thirst, 1042 the best of wine, king can, 504 the poppies of Cathay, and, 444
 they eat they, 153
 till they nod and wink, 20 to me only with thine eyes, 119 to the general joy of the table, 87 to the lass, 279 to-day down all sorrow, 127 victuals and, 972
 what to read and say and eat and, and wear, 398
 what ye shall eat or, 1114 why should every creature, but I, 167
 wild anarchy of, 120 with him that wears a hood, 20 with me and drink as I, 223 with you eat with you, 44 ye to her that each loves best, 51

False-refined weakness, 491
Falstaff sweats to death, 61 Falter not for sin, 454 to, would be sin, 503
When the sun, 584
Faltering feet embraced, 448 Falters, insanity of noble minds that never, 438 Fame, above all Roman, 214 and honor are twins, 1064 and love of truth, desire of, 471 and pelf, cares for naught but, 719 and unspotted, 1036
been raised, by, 31 best of, rival's praise, 337 blush to find it, 214 church to God not to, 210 damned to, 223
damned to everlasting, 208 death-bed of, 327 demands prolonged reverbera-
tion, 529
denied to men of genius, 1077 does not record, 879 elates thee, while, 334 family of, 316
fed with, 335 fool to, nor yet a, 213 for a pot of ale, 66 from the field of his, 364 gives immortal, 203 grant an honest, 216 great heir of, 161
has this great drawback, 1049 hath created something of nothing, 147
I care for, only, 588
I slight, nor, 216
I won a noble, 620
if not double-faced is double-mouthed, 157
is a food, 650
- Fame is nothing but an empty name, 288 is ephemeral, 1010
is everlasting, its, 982 is good, so will avoid making more speeches, 182 is in the song, 757
is no plant, 159 is not bought and sold, 604 is on Torres Vedras, 765 is the scentless sunflower, 453 is the spur, 159
is the thirst of youth, 353 is the undying brother, 1064 is what some wane writes on ye'er tombstone, 796 lifts it to eternal, 772 lives in, 76
man who never knew taste of, 426
most infamous are fond of, 262
no one shall work for, 779 no sure test of merit, 376 noise of worldly, 1021 nor yet a fool to, 213 nothing can cover his high, 131 of any work of science, 426 of friend or foe, fair, 696 of the admiral falls, 737 on lesser ruins built, 167 over his living head, 366 posthumous, 614 raise his country's, 1027 so false as common, 185 sorrow or sacrifice, 954 surest road to, 432 talks about the where and when, 405
temple of, 950
that comes after life, 1010 that I should chuse, sort of, 292
the breath of power, 728 the pious fool, outlives in, 193 then was cheap, 178
to give her features deathless, 561 too fond of, 1007
too mighty such monopoly of, 124 trust to common, 416 unknown to, 219
unknown to fortune and to, 245 was noised throughout all the country, 1099
well known to, 951
what rage for, 272
will still be coy, 385 Fame's eternal bead-roll, 25 eternal camping ground, 541 illusive light, 572 ladder, ascended, 431 thunders wake, 690
Famed rock, this is, 647 they shall be, 67
Fame-wreathed crown, no, 659 Familiar, angels may be, 556 as his garter, 66
as household words, 67
as the rose in spring, 1011 be thou, but not vulgar, 90 beauty soon grows, 194 but not coarse, 233
clothing the palpable and, 318
- Familiar creature, good wine is a, 102 faces, the old, 325
feet, to part, 596 friend, mine own, 1104, 1128 grown, never yet, 736 names, 438
now as heart-beats, 866 with her face, 208
with his hoary locks, 393 word, how fondly each, 405 Familiarity breeds contempt, 34, 961 with Bible, too early, 739 Familiarly talks of roaring lions, 57 Families, accidents occur in best regulated, 496
but two, in the world, 1040 God setteth the solitary in, 1104 like a comet, 558
most ancient, 124
of doubtful origin, 343 Family, children of one, 198, 486 discussion, most effective way to close, 582
father of a, 1009
great and wide-spread, 942 just as in a, 130
may be distinguished, 949 of fame, all the, 316 party tribe or clan, 952 relationship only one aspect of
life, 740
should be merged, 422 thread you can't ascend, 510 world like a great, 184 Family-trees that remember, 928
Famine food and fire, including, 907 is in thy cheeks, 80 philanthropists in time of, 417 seven years of, 1098
they that die by, 187 thirst, bereavement, 596 would depopulate the world, 602 Famous by my pen, 164
by my sword, 164
Camarlazaman is, 437 found myself, 361
high top-hat, 857
orators repair, thence to the, 156 to all ages, 162
victory, it was a, 322
Famoused for fight, 107
Fan, brain him with his lady's,
61
Fanatic faith wedded fast, 337 Fanatiques predict end of the world, 181
Fancied that Deity ever vindic-tively made in his image, 461
Fancies fugitive, stray thoughts, 492
men's more giddy, 54 that might be, 493 thick-coming, 88
Fancy bred, where is, 45 bright-eyed, 244 busy, 395
by hopeless, feigned, 466 chuckle, make one's, 172

- Fancy deemed was only truth my, 455
draws, give a glimpse and, 240 exalted ideas of, 972 food of sweet and bitter, 51 free, keep your, 742 free, maiden meditation, 42 free, with, 716 from a flower-bell, 488 given, were it to my, 274 his imperial, 290 homebound, 401
in every way, I'll suit my, 920 its drapery, 318 like the finger of a clock, 265 most excellent, 97 motives of more, 53 not expressed in, 91 of men, please the, 1049 painted her, all my, 362 reason virtue, 225
roam, let the, 384
styles of active mendicancy, 645
'tis a curious, 916 wavering, 500
whispers of, 232 working spells, aggressive, 650 young man's, 464
- Fancy's child, Shakespeare, 160 course, impediments in, 53 flight restrain, 776 meteor ray, misled by, 285 rays the hills adorning, 285 strangest child, 893
- Fane that stands, marvelous, 541
- Fanes, Paestum's ancient, 653
quiver in the air, 403
- Fangs invade the golden stores, 543
- Fanny Kelly's divine plain face, 325
- Fanny's way, pretty, 201
- Fantasies, no figures nor no, 82 thousand, begin to throng, 157 to me, seem, 651
- Fantastic, alike, if too new or old, 211 as a woman's mood, 308 fickle fierce and vain, 308 summer's heat, 59 terrors never felt before, 460 toe, light, 160
tricks, plays such, 36
tripped the light, 761
- Fantastical, not in fashion is, 125
- Fantasy, nor lure thy, 823 nothing but vain, 77
- Fantasy's hot fire, 307
- Far amid the melancholy main, 225 and brilliant course to run, 362 and few are the lands, 498 and the near unite, 271 as angels' ken, 148
as my coin would stretch, so, 60 as the solar walk, 207 away, my soul to-day is, 552 away, owes its charm to the, 426 back through creeks and inlets, 519 beneath the tainted foam, 375
- Far beyond the village church, not, 517
corner of thy heart, in some, 582 cry to Lochow, 310 down beneath the wild commotion, 480
far ahead is all her seamen know, 519
far beneath the noise of tempests, 480
far better rest, 498 far better thing that I do, 498 far the mountain peak, 697 from home, and I am, 403 from mortal cares, 345 from the lips we love, 335 from the madding crowd, 245 he seems so near yet so, 469 illusive dream, a, 573 in the stillness a cat, 692 innumerable burning coals, 874 less sweet to live, 335 more than the witnesses said, 599 off his coming shone, 153 on the wild raging sea, 389 out of reach, the sky, 536 press not a falling man too, 73 retreat, withdraw to, 878 stretched greatness, 22 till near and, ray on ray, 493 when seen from, 458
- Farce is done, the, 1024 played by kings and republics, 1029
- Fardels bear, who would, 93
- Fare, bounteous, 737 brown bread and the Gospel is good, 188
thee well and if forever, 356 thee well isle of beauty, 388 when you receive a, 583 ye well brother Watkins, 512 you well old house, 678 you 'd not pay any, 954
- Fared worse, further and, 16
- Farewel my boke and my devotion, 4
- Farewell, a long farewell, 73
agonize them in, 775 and looks around to say, 481 bade the world, 327 content, 102
forever and forever, 84 goes out sighing, 75 hope fear remorse, 151
I am called, 577
I only feel — farewell, 351 if ever fondest prayer, 351 in this one cry, 619 journey to that promised land, 817 Leicester Square, 836 rewards and fairies, 128 should be but for one night, 707 the neighing steed, 102 the plumed troop, 102
the tranquil mind, 102 then O Luck of Edenhall, 433 to all my greatness, 73 to earth, final long, 713 to every fear, I'll bid, 199 to hope, bid, 703
to Lochaber, 204
- Farewell, wave their hands for a mute, 540
yet not, 596
- Farewells, many, as be stars in heaven, 75
should be sudden, 357
- Far-fatiguing trade, 247
- Far-flashed to Cape St. Vincent, 765
- Far-heard whisper, 315
- Far-hidden heart of the mountains, 572
- Farm, moderate-sized, 959
of the world, 321
well-situated well-cultivated, 374 well tilled, barn well filled, 275
- Farms away, twenty, 871
- Farmer covetous of his dollar, 413
I have fed like a, 193
Johnson shouldered his gun, 755 understands, every, 282 works the soil, 661
- Farmers are founders of civilization, 340
embattled, 409
- Farmer's boy, and be a, 950 daughter hath soft brown hair, 590 land, on a, 677
wintry hoard, 441
- Farmyard bird, I love that, 758
- Far-off divine event, one, 469 land, plucked in a, 598 shore, spies a, 70 things, old unhappy, 298 touch of greatness, some, 470
- Far-seeing places, high, 879
- Farther off from heaven, 390
- Farthing candle, do not care a, 324 candle to the sun, 203
- Farthings, Latin word for three, 41
- Fascinate, blandishments will not,
274
- Fascinating, inordinately, 1076
- Fascination of a name, 266 youth full of grace force, 535
- Fashion, bravery never goes out of, 484
fantastical that is not in, 125 fight, the hard, 648 glass of, 93 high Roman, 105
it is a comely, 540 made of such good, 948 medicine is all the, 1054 never go out of, 942 of his hat, his faith the, 38 of these times, 48
of this world passeth away, 1120
olden, in a, 914 out of the world as out of, 193 so immediate so contingent a, 1087
the world's new, 40
to abuse, the, 624
wears out more apparel, 39
- Fashions, in words as, 211 intellectual and literary, 829 old, please me best, 52
- Fashion's brightest arts, 251

- Fashionable and momentary things, 895 prattle of the world, 656 to blame America, 871
 topics, 254
- Fashioned so slenderly, 392 us holler, providence, 526
- Fashioneth their hearts alike, 1103
- Fast and the world goes by, 718 as he can, fine and as, 406 bind fast find, 12
 by a brook, 269 go out so, 935 hold, that which is good, 1121 rising from affluence, 615 run at least twice as, 598 spare, 160
 they stumble that run, 78 till he is well, 577 too late who goes too, 989
- Fasts, surfeits sooner kill than, 163
- Fast-anchored isle, 264
- Fasten him as a nail, 1111
- Fast-fitting meteor, 362
- Fast-flying cloud, 362
- Fasting for a good man's love, 50
- Fat and greasy citizens, 48 better for living on their own, 530 black bucks, 857 contentions, 162 dividends, incarnation of, 364 eef she don'ta be, 813 fair and forty, 311 feed, the ancient grudge, 44
 I am resolved to grow, 178 is in the fire, 12 laugh and be, 127 men about me that are, 81 men heading a riot, 343 more, than hard besseems, 225 must stand upon his bottom, 171 of other's works, 121 of the years, to lap the, 831 oily man of God, 225 one of them is, and grows old, 61 oxen, who drives, 238 shall be in the fire, 1042 souls from sleep, keep, 912 things, feast of, 1111 waxed, and kicked, 1099 weed on Lethe wharf, 91 with the lean, take the, 497
- Fatal and perfidious bark, 159 as it is cowardly, 543 asterisk of death, 438
 bellman the owl, 86 circumference, 602 fall, hurry to that, 966 gift of beauty, the, 354 good neighbour is sometimes, 430 shadows that walk by us, 126
- Fate affright your quiet, 725 and jeers at, 867
 and time and change good-bye, 790 await no gifts have conquered, 546 binding nature fast in, 216
- Fate by the throat, take, 595 cannot harm me, 177, 313 coughed and called it, 808 cowards mock the patriot's, 555 cries out, my, 91 customary, of new truths, 564 deplored at times, 1064 determines or indicates his, 514 did, begin, 631 eagle's, and mine are one, 145 fears his, too much, 164 fixed, freewill foreknowledge, 150 forbids to heal, ills which, 983 forced by, 177
 foulness of their, 892 gave his sad lucidity, 546 gave me whate'er else denied, 528 grappling with direst, 536 had granted to behold his lord, 220 hanging breathless on thy, 435 harries us, 924 has predestined, 1061 has written a tragedy, 844 he either fears his, too much, 164 heart for any, 433 heart for every, 357 heaven hides the book of, 207 hour of, 602
 I am the master of my, 470 inward, 360
 iron hand of, 778 is a fiddler life's a dance, 692 laughs at probabilities, 426 lord of my unchallenged, 579 makes our relatives, 1056 master of his, 470 master of my, 579
 no armour against, 141
 no one is so accursed by, 434 of a nation, 437
 of all extremes, 209 of all great minds, 1064 of borrowed books, 673 of empires changed by a bottle of Johannesberg, 279 of Rome, big with the, 194 of the architect, 1057 or caprice may lead his feet, 707 or the gods may give, what, 775 proud captain of thine own, 470 seemed to wind him up, 178 she is, 1089 sits on these dark battlements, 290 stamp of, 218 take a bond of, 87 things of the future to, 418 to-day, whatever be thy, 509 torrent of his, 230 true as, 116
 turns on its, 566
 unchallenged, 579
 why should they know their, 243 wilfully misunderstand me, 837 will give me life, 777 will more strongly than, 1089 wisest man ask no more of, 528
- Fate, with a heart for any, 357, 433 with appointed strength, 870
- Fates a jest, owe the, 784 and destinies, 45
 anger at the, 493
 are not quite obdurate, 528, 835 impose, what, 70 men are masters of their, 81 moulding her mighty, 806 these are the, 974
- Fate's saddest jokes, one of, 528
- Fated all to part, 557 always to disagree, 796
- Fateful lightning, He hath loosed the, 522
- Father Abraham, we are coming, 475 Abram, 45
 all the world and one's, 1045 and I went to camp, 283 and mother, honour thy, 963 and my friend, my, 180 and thy mother, honour thy, 1098 antic the law, 60
 be kind to thy, 548 bred, brood of folly without, 160 calls me William, 699
 dear father come home with me now, 600 deigns to touch, if the, 753 eternal strong to save, 566 feeds his flocks, 248 forty-one, gave her, 957 gave a name, when the, 658 greatness of name in the, 120 has written for thee, thy, 437 have a turnip than his, 238 hoarding went to hell, 70 home feet first, brought my, 577
 I like the lad who when his, 510
 I scarcely dare to pray, 591 in every O my, 474 in thy gracious keeping, 402 lies, full fathom five thy, 32 looked him down, kindly the, 658 make a gentleman of you, why did not your, 344 more than schoolmasters, 138 of a disease, whatsoever was the, 138 of a family, 1009 of all in every age, 216 of lies, nuts to the, 337 of the man, the child is, 297 of waters goes unvexed to the sea, 456 of Waters, the matchless, 929 on her face, so dwell the, 471 religion of my, 1061 should have had, the praise, 873 Son and Holy Ghost, 183 struck when son swore, 125 thy will not mine be done, 423 to that thought, wish was, 65 unto many sons, happy thing to be, 70 was a gentleman, 344 was Knott before him, 948

Father William, you are old, 320, 598 wise, knows his own child, 45 wise son maketh a glad, 1107 Fathers, ashes of his, 400 bought for us, 779 came trusting in God, 553 died, die as my, 631 have eaten sour grapes, 1113 inherited from our, 1075 learned to do, the things my, 904 passed to fight, your, 765 sins of the, 46, 968
 where are thy, 1113
 worshipped stocks, our, 162 Father's blood, show the, 967 business, I must be about my, 1117 fondest care, 326 fortunes and his places, 128 granfer's father's father's name, 811 house, chimney in my, 69 house, daughters of my, 55 house, many mansions in my, 1118 joy mother's pride, 309 printing-office, Spain in my, 629 trade, my, 344
 Fathers' age, our, 983
 God, our, 445
 God to Thee author of liberty, 447
 Fathered, so, and so husbanded, 82
 Fatherhood, special providence for, 491
 Father-in-law, fine thing to be, 288 Fatherland no fear be thine, 1073
 the very idea of, 500
 to die, for, 983
 Fatherless, judge for the, 1123 Fathom five, thy father lies, 32 line could never touch ground, 61 Fathoms many, and down in, 622
 Fathomless universe, praised be the, 536 Fatigue give oneself bodily, 402 of judging for themselves, 278 Fattenin' hogs aint in luck, 688 Fattest hog in Epicurus' sty, 249
 Fatuity, officialized, 891
 Fatuous ineffectual yesterdays, 693 Faubourg St. Germain, portières of, 532 Fault, when the sheep are in the, 277 Fault at all, who hath no, 470 common to all singers, 984 condemn the, and not the actor, 36 every man has his, 81 excusing of a, makes it worse, 58 eye on thine own, 566 found in a, 138 grows two thereby, 135
 I see, hide the, 216 in its flow, never a, 651 is not in our stars, 81

Fault, it has no kind of, 623 just hint a, 213
 man's own, 236 of a penetrating wit, 1044 of Christianity, 1016 of the Dutch in matters of commerce, 293 of women, most shocking, 1063 on one side, 1044
 only is that he has none, 380 or doubt, never caught at, 429 perhaps it was Lord Byron's, 685 political, 1060
 proudly clung to their first, 484 seeming monstrous, 50 talk and find, 1034
 the fundamental, 1064 their stars were more in, 189 who hath, he is all, 470 Faults, all his, observed, 83 are locked securely, all his, 883 be blind to her, 189 cleanse thou me from secret, 1103 England with all her, 262 England with all thy, 264 greatest of, 380
 if we were without, 1043 lie gently on him, 74 loves him better for his, 253 men moulded out of, 37 of criticism, 680
 of fools, wise men avoid the, 998 of individuals, failings and, 998 of man, bear with all the, 121 one loves him better for all his, 253 tells my, 217
 thou hast no, 187
 to be conscious of no, 380 to scan, careless their, 250 world of vile ill-favoured, 34 Fault-finding critic, regarded his, 508
 Faultily faultless, 469 Faultless body, 220 in his dealings, he was, 406 monster, 164
 piece to see, thinks a, 164, 210
 Faulty we are, why not, 486
 Faust, Goethe completed, 438
 Faustine, no more, 632
 Fauts to tell, ill I like my, 284 Favour, contests for our, 908 in old Virginny, never found, 630 must come to this, 97 nothing is, without whose, 920 of the gods was equal, 969 refused a, 966 smaller injustice as a, 402 we entreat, one, 738
 well bestowed, 198
 with less offence, asked a, 999 Favours are denied, when, 226 call, nor for her, 216 given, pleased with, 226 hangs on princes', 73
 I've felt all her, 240 lively sense of future, 200 sweet and precious, 287
 we get, we are certain to pay for the, 509

Favourable, heavens look with aspect more, 56 Favoured land, somewhere in this, 770 Favourite has no friend, 243 sin, his, 321
 subject myself, 272
 Favourites early death, heaven gives its, 354 Favouritism in public and private life, 727 Fawn at his feet, 592 fickle and restless as a, 1066
 Fawne and crouch, 26
 Fawning and flattery, adulation, 981 thrift may follow, 94
 Fayre and fetisly, spake ful, 5 Fear above, all, 452 act of, 90
 among fears, 789 and amazement, 129
 and bloodshed, 300
 and danger of violent death, continual, 132 and retreat, courage consists in, 1051 and sorrow, pine with, 25 arming me from, 516
 as love casts out, 470
 at my heart, 315
 be thine, no, 1073
 bid farewell to every, 199 boys with bugs, 52 cannot be without hope, 1048 cold exhaustion hunger, 754 courage is better than, 625 death, men, 109
 doubteth Thee, in that, 559 each bush an officer, 71 exempt from, 69
 from hope and, set free, 632 full of, 952
 get rid of, 380
 God honour the king, 1122 has no need of, 891
 I was sick with, 938
 in that, doubteth thee, 559 in the night, imagining some, 43 is a rot, 924 is affront, 204
 is as bad as falling, the, 105 is increased with tales, 109 is most accurs'd passion, 68 is sharp-sighted, 1035 itself, thing we have to fear is, 876 little care we little we, 481 mask for, 994
 may force a man, 12 mean actions be ascribed to, 1079 met without a, 628
 no hope could have no, 610 no, in love, 1123
 none has merited my, 897 not and be just, 73 not guilt, those who, 262 not to touch the best, 21 o' hell's a hangman's whip, 285 of death has even bygone, 651 of death is more to be dreaded, 988

- Fear of divine powers keeps men in obedience, 126 of having to repay, for, 1049 of kings, 46
of little men, 573
of the children's lacking, 894 of the lack of shelter, food, 894 perfect love casteth out, 1123 rather than by reverence, swayed by, 975 remember that small, 822 reproach or, 442 rule by love than, 473 shame coward, 447
so hate casts out, 470 strange and speechless, 699 strange that men should, 82
that lurks in most men's eyes, 894 that reigns with the tyrant, 435 the increase of, 1080 the lightest heart, 447 they call courage, 817 thy nature, yet do I, 84 to be we know not what, 178 to die, cowards may, 22 to fall yet fain would climb, 22 to him who is in, 967 to live alone, 365 to lose, 138
to the wind, throw, 972 unaccustomed to, 951
undraped without a single, 956
- Fears and disquietudes, in the midst of, 985 and distastes, 109 and interest, 237
and saucy doubts, 87 blue for hopes and red for, 664 do make us traitors, 87 faith triumphant o'er our, 435 gamut of human, 824 his fate too much, 164 humanity with all its, 435 humble cares and delicate, 297 I cannot quite repress, 682 more, than wars or women have, 73 no, to beat away, 303 of all the years, 612 our hopes belied our, 390 past regrets and future, 1018 prosperity is not without many, 109 shall cease, all thy, 1063 that I may cease to be, 384 that make a death, 164
the foolish, 955

we need a bank, to pay their, 951
- Feeble, if virtue, were, 159 industry, to quote them argues, 971 most forcible, 65 not enough to help the, 80 temper, man of such, 81 wrong because of weakness, 430
- Feed clothe and house the world, 754 fat the ancient grudge, 44
He that doth the ravens, 48 just to drive a flock to, 406 on hope, to, 25
on prayers, 28
- Feeds and breeds by a composition, 81 himself his neighbor and me, 525
- Feel another's woe, teach me to, 216 but can't define, what I, 268 it most, those who, 367 like one who treads alone, 336 like, what did it, 748 mine to, amid the city's jar, 546 no comfortable, in any member, 391 no time to, 401
that I am happier than I know, 154

Feel the sun, can not, 501 those who would make us, 262

 Fiercer by despair, 149
 there is not a, hell, 382 Fiery floods, to bathe in, 36 pain, throbs of, 231 rod, reached a, 658
 soul working its way, 173 Fife and drum, follow the, 765 ear-piercing, 102
 needle-note of a, 925 sound the clarion fill the, 310 squealing of the wry-necked, 45 Fifteen, maiden of bashful, 279 men on a dead man's chest, 704 minutes of hell, 678 Fifth act, may show in some, 472 of November, remember the, 945 stone shall not fail you, 913 year in succession, for the, 922 Fifty above more than fifty below, dread, 839
 north and forty west, 784

Fifty, of elder years than, 879 times as fair, were it, 432 Fifty-four forty or fight, 427 Fig a fig, call a, 976 for care and a fig for woe, 11 for him who frets, 772 for your great captain, a, 1037 Figs, in name of the prophet, 332 out of thistles, 471
 Figger wants padd'n, yer, 774
 Fight, absolution of a faithful, 556 again, those that fly may, 143 and conquer again and again, 243 another day, live to, 143, 254 another such, I were undone, 1002 begins within himself, 488 but when her ladyship is by, 57 cleanly then, 924
 coward in the, 505
 did Ye smite, in what, 748 dog that keeps out of the, 610 famous for, 107 fifty-four forty or, 427 for freedom, 1075 for love, as men may do, 42 for such a land, dare to, 307 for the religion of God, 1126 fringy edges of the, 519 good at a, 334
 he fought was good, 806 how goes the, 400
 I give up the, 484
 I have fought a good, 1122 I'll rise and, again, 256 it out on this line, 549 of all, last great, 778 on, merry men, 256
 perish in the, 447
 rushes into the thickest of the, 1065
 the good fight, 1122
 the last in, 218
 they too have had a, 865 to the last gasp, 48, 68
 we don't want to, 562
 well hast thou fought the better, 153
 ye till I die, 447
 Fights and runs away, 143, 254 historical, 623 Fighter, am I no a bonny, 705 fits a dull, 63
 twenty years a, 786
 Fighters, free lovers, free, 1085 Fightin' tu, you're up to, 527 Fighting, bellyful of, 105 lovely, along the whole line, 604 men, I'd have no, 432 races don't die out, 683 rusty for want of, 142 still destroying and still, 176 Fighting's the game, wherever,
 683
 Fig-leaves, they sewed, together, 1097
 Fig-tree, under his, 1113
 623 for the time of scorn, 103 in company, makes no, 239 mean and small, 572

Figure, no great, were he not rich, 197 of nobody in sodden khaki, 825 of the giant mass, baby, 75 of the house, 64
 that men love, 857
 the thing we like, we, 401 Figures as fallacious as facts, 313 facts and, 495
 on a dial, 506
 thou hast no, 82
 Filches from me my good name, 102
 File, single in an endless, 410 Files, burial in the, 780 of time, foremost, 464
 Filial duty, sense of, 273
 Filibuster, high calling of a, 906 Fill a pit as well as better, 63 drank their, 732
 every beaker up my men, 404
 I, this cup to one, 405
 the nights, solemn marches, 522
 the seats of justice, 386 them full of refreshment, 435 to-night with hearts as light, 431
 Filled me with fantastic terrors, 460
 with love, your eyes were, 521 Filler now for cross-word puzzle, 882
 Fillet, under her solemn, 410 Filling all the land with beauty, 705
 Fillip with a three-man beetle, 64 Fills, he bounds connects, he, 207 the world with terror, power that, 434
 Filthy Jersey, nothing there but, 919 lucre, not greedy of, 1121 Fins or pinion, 572
 Final goal of ill, 468 hope is flat despair, 149 issue, light of the, 976 long farewell to earth, 713 ruin fiercely drives, 202 Finance, heroes of, 1076
 Financial throe volcanic, 733 Finches are merry, 758
 Find and not to yield, to, 464 how day by day, I shall, 405 I'll never never, 567
 one face, God grant you, 523 or what it can not, creates, 438 seek and ye shall, 1114 the Orient's marvels here, 442 the peaceful skies, or early, 474 Finde, fast binde fast, 12
 Findeth, he that seeketh, 1114 Finds the down pillow hard, 106 till all that it foresees it, 438 tongues in trees, 48 too late that men betray, 253 Fine a point, not to put too, 497 and as fast as he can, as, 406 arts once divorcing themselves, 279 by defect, 209
 copy of a good book cheap, 773 feathers make fine birds, 961 fellows, some are, 574

- Fine frenzy rolling, poet's eye in
a, 43
glossy surface, 253
he may be just as, 925 house a master and a task for life, 415
how exquisitely, 207 manners need the support of fine manners in others, 413 passage particularly, 235 prosperity, befall that, 585 puss-gentleman, 263
so exacting so strange so, 767 thing to be father-in-law, 288 too, a point to your wit, 1043 Finely touched, spirits are not, 35
Fineness which a hymn affords, 136 Finer form or lovelier face, 308 than the staple of his argument, 41
Finery, dressed out in all her, 253 Finger and thumb, 'twixt, 61 freed from his ambitious, 72 in every pie, 1035, 1040 more goodness in her little, 192 of a clock, like the, 265 of God has planted, 435 on the place, struck his, 546 pipe for fortune's, 94 pointed to the lips of Julia, 133 points to heaven, whose silent, 302 ring encompasseth thy, 71 slow and moving, 103 thou'lt cut thy, 977 wearing it on his little, 1083 whoso touched his, 948 writes and having writ, 1019 Fingers, decay's effacing, 355 dirty, 395
four, from death, 1013
he licks his, 923
of brass, 804 of the rain, kiss the, 915 on one hand, 534
rude, with forced, 159
scrawled words with careless, 845 tapped the pane, gentle, 794 ten, gripped by, 710 than toes, rather have, 791 through reverent, 785 touched him, God's, 469 wandered idly, and my, 564 weary and worn, with, 391 were made before forks, 192 within two, of death, 1013 Fingers' end, at his, 125 ends, at my, 13, 54
Finis comes, when, 649
Finish the work we are in, strive to, 457
what I begin, 444
Finished by such a she, 57 from the beginning, master's work, 611
my course, I have, 1122 Finitude, man's terror at his own, 770
Finney had a turnip, 953 Finnigin, off ag'in on ag'in gone ag'in, 805
Fire, a chilly man's, 524 alive, keeping the seeds of, 373 and blow, sit at my, 374 Fire and fever, beyond the, 736 and through water, through, 1104 and water, would run through, 34 answers fire, 67
at close of day, by the, 1027 bastion fringed with, 468 beginning of knowledge as, is
of light, 378
best of servants but what a master, 378
blaze up in combined, 378 books that you may carry to
the, 238
burn and cauldron bubble, 87 burn low, every, 653 burned, while I was musing, 1104 burnt child dreads the, 15 cannot burn nor water drown it, 1067
careful with, 677
clean hearth a clear, 323 coals of, on his head, 1108, 1119 cold performs the effect of, 150 come holy, 671
compact of, 106 day fills his blue urn with, 409 doubt thou the stars are, 92 fantasy's hot, 307 fat is in the, 12 fat-shall be in the, 1042 fierce electric, 806 for winter's cold, 894 fretted with golden, 92 fringed with, 468
from beds of raging, 150 from the sun, moon snatches her, 81
frying-pan into the, 16, 1034 glass of liquid, 290 glow like sparks of, 134 hold still, in His hottest, 1071 I built her many a, 843 if I can, excluding the, 1029 in each eye, 212
in his bosom, 1106
in his hand, who can hold a, 59 is dying in the grate, 574 is the test of gold, 991 kneel when you light a, 794 like green, 923 lips still touched with, 938 little, kindleth, 1122 little, quickly trodden out, 70 melt in her own, 95
most tolerable third party, 515 motion of a hidden, 306 my cat, stay by the, 917 never from Hell's, 867 nodding by the, 790 not long life by the, 758 now stir the, 265
O for a muse of, 66
O love O, 462
of life, 326
of spring, 1018
of thine, some, 648
one, burns out another's, 77 other irons in the, 971 outlives the parent spark, 366 pillar of, by night, 1098 Fire, pistol misses, 255 purge off the baser, 149 ruthless, 586 shirt of, martyr in his, 587 sitting by a sea-coal, 64 snatches from the sun, 81 source of motion, 1032 spark of that celestial, 268 sparkle the right Promethean, 41 stood against my, 99 that once was singing gold, 883 that warms cold, 1042 those who favor, 839 three removes as bad as a, 227 to burn together, in perpetual, 773 to the Thames, 246
to warm, to light, 686 touch the sacred, 816 treads upon, 196 turn from any, 776
two irons in the, 129 uneffectual, 'gins to pale his, 92 we cannot kindle when we will
the, 546
what, was near, 30
when ready Gridley, 638 with white, laden, 366 without some smoke, no, 16, 23 worshiped, 166
you may sit by my, 374
y-reke in our ashen olde, 6 Fires, a remnant of their, 1050 are dead on hearths and altars, 507 burning, keep the home, 824 kindles false, 304
live their wonted, 245 of passion, to light the, 440 religion veils her sacred, 215 that pass, forest, 827 that scorch, mark of, 444 the tops of the eastern pines, 59 to warm it, kindle, 568 truth lend her noblest, 351 wake in our breast the living, 451
Fire-coals, on the lagging, 879 Fired another Troy, 176 the Ephesian dome, 193 Fire-escapes, maketh bloom the,
929
Fireflies gleam in the damp, 841
Firefly lamp, by a, 334
Fire-hearts sowed our furrows, 428 Firelit homes, clean beds and wives, 891
Firelogs throwing on, hearth, freely the, 983
Fireside happiness, 289 howsoe'er defended, no, 435 is a great opiate, 346 king by your own, 1033
near one's own, 1083
to make a happy, 286
Fireworks, somersaults and, 937 Firm endeavor, with, 638 hands to grasp, 803 nerves shall never tremble, 87 of Grin and Barrett, 733 restraint, praise the, 933 thy purpose, 201
to us, seems so, 900

- Firmament, fall to earth from, 59 no fellow in the, 82 now glowed the, 152 o'erhanging, 92
 of the earth, 433
 on high, the spacious, 194 pitiless sapphire, 666 showeth his handiwork, 1103 stars in earth's, 433
 the sun in the, 340
 Firmer habit than before, 271 Firmness in the right, 291, 457 of purpose, 1017
 Firm-set earth, thou sure and, 85
 First, all at once and nothing, 453 and best, our, 445
 and last of all the songs, 855 and the last, 1123
 be not the, by whom the new are tried, 211
 dark day of nothingness, 355 day even and morn, 154
 he met her, know how, 481 he who, shortened the labor, 379
 he wrought, 5
 human principle, 65
 I had thee, 632
 in banquets but last in fight, 218 in everything, one cannot be, 961 in the hearts of his countrymen, 281
 in war first in peace, 281 invented sleep, bless man who, 510 joys of our heart, 390 last love, my, 463 magnitude, liar of the, 193 of the new party, 478 on the scroll of Fame, 512 step which costs, 1053 sweet sleep, 368
 thing he weighed, 345 thing, let's kill all the lawyers, 69 time, does a thing for the, 589 to breast the swelling tide, 603 to fade away, 590 to go, which of us, 603 to welcome, 352
 true gentleman, 115
 who came away, 358
 wife had given him, 235
 First-born's breath, feels her, 362
 First-class fightin' man, 781
 Firstling of the infant year, 141 Fir-trees dark and high, 390 Fish all is, that cometh to net, 15 and I was a, 734 bought a little, 846 cat would eat, 14 crier, a Jew, 855
 dinners will make a man spring, 164
 flesh nor good red herring, 1039 game, swims up stream, 733 I caught, biggest, 698
 in troubled waters, 188 Jonah in the belly of the, 1113 kettle of, 623
 leap like little, 908 never lost a little, 698 no, ye're buying, 310
- Fish nor flesh, 13
 not with this melancholy bait, 44 only the game, 733 pleasantest angling is to see
 the, 39
 poets are like stinking, 320 sensible, swims down, 865 sold for more than an ox, 1003 spouts music, 922 still left, plenty of, 733 that swim or swish, 843 that talks, 823
 this, will bite, 39 to fry, other, 1026, 1041 what cat's averse to, 243 with the worm, man may, 96 Fishes, all the worse for the, 454 little, talk like whales, 255, 649 live in the sea, how do the, 106 men lived like, 170 men first produced in, 1005 that tiddle in the deep, 168 the two small, 694
 Fish-ball, one, 555
 Fisher's chorus-note, 288 life, gallant, 140
 Fishermen on the beach, 99 three, Wynken Blynken and Nod, 872
 Fishified, how art thou, 79 Fishing, may the east wind never blow when he goes a, 139 Fish-like smell, very ancient and, 32
 Fish-shaped Paumanok, 827 Fist instead of a stick, 141 Fit and qualify men to be ministers, 170
 audience though few, 153 for every change and chance, 620 for the gods, a dish, 82 for treasons stratagems and spoils, 47 historic pride, share her, 952 instruments, 212
 it with some better time, 57 punishment, the crime, 624
 's upon me now, the, 131 survive, only the, 844 to catch it, 236 to hold a candle, 221 Fits, 't was sad by, 248
 Fitful fever, after life's, 86
 Fitness of things, eternal, 229 Fitted him to a T, 238
 in arts, well, 41
 Fitter being sane than mad, 490 Fittest place man can die, 511 survival of the, 448 Fitting of self, rest is the, 501 season is best, 959 word He speeds, still the, 441 Five acts the just measure of a play, 180
 before the age of, 1064 hundred friends, 265 hundred leads to five hundred thousand, 636
 reasons we should drink, 184 small leaves had failed to take, 541 thousand a year, on, 482 you're late, 862
- Fives did fit her shoe, 132
 Five-cent cigar, a good, 714
 Five-star final in the raw, 934
 Five-thirty from Paddington, 892 Five-words-long, jewels, 466 Fixed fate free will, 150
 like a plant, 208 star, name to every, 40 Flag, carry the, 394 death's pale, 80
 despairing fondness for, 813 floats o'er the water, 670 goes by, as the, 715 has braved a thousand years, 327 has come back to Tennessee, 569 here comes the, 664
 is companionship and country itself, 481 is full of stars, 710 is known in every sea, 394 is passing by, 767 nail to the mast her holy, 450 o' my land, 813 of all that float, senior, 764 of breezes free, 715 of England, sure to find this, 1061 of England, the meteor, 328 of our union forever, 405 of the free heart's hope, 382 one land one heart, one, 452 spare your country's, 443 stepped out for the, 824 the embodiment of history, 725 there is a national, 480 to haul down the American, 390 unfurled, seemed to see our, 442 with its stripes untarnished, 821
 yellow quarantine, 925 Flags, nothing but, 641 were furred, battle, 464 Flagon, out of an English, 827 Flagstones, hawthorns heave cold, 905
 Flail, with a silver, 888
 Flakes were folding it gently, 527 Flame, adding fuel to the, 157 adore before the, 928 burnt child craves the, 912 cannot quench the, 356 cleanly burial of the, 671 from virtue flow, pure, 1021 God's breath upon the, 1071 if you nurse a, 328 is out, since the, 882 like wine, like, 889 love's devoted, 336 love's holy, 322
 mingled with, 570 nor public, nor private, 215 of freedom, 654
 of the maple tree, 882 spark of immortal, 890 strikes out, 725 swept the land like, 779 tells in notes of, 309 that kindled the, 857 that lit the battle's wreck, 370 the gold, like, 629
 where is the sea the, cried, 658

- Flame, the higher the, 717 vanishes the, 354 vital spark of heavenly, 216 without heat rainbow without color, 551
 words so full of subtle, 129
- Flames, like thin, 577 lives in the midst of, 196 through their paly, 67
 war arrayed in, 66
- Flaming fatal climax, 891
 youth, 95
- Flanders fields, though poppies grow in, 821 lost in, 936
 no such place as, 698 received our yoke, 146 swore terribly in, 241
- Flanged and battering tail, 888
- Flannel, piece of scarlet, 498
- Flannels of the poor, short and simple, 911
- Flannelled fools, with the, 780
- Flare the windy lights of autumn, 673
- Flash across, blue ran the, 493 born in the, 736 is still the same, its, 404 of color beneath the sky, 767 of intelligence, 479 of lightning, mirth is like a, 197 of the lightning, 362
 of unforeseen remembrance, 807
- Flashes in the world of thought, 542 of merriment, 97
 of silence, occasional, 313
- Flashing and golden car, 891 brine, oh give me the, 502
- Flat and unprofitable, 90 as pancakes, 116
 burglary as ever was committed, 40
 despair, our final hope is, 149 I drop him, 878
 sea sunk, in the, 158 steam-heated, with no ventilation, 801
- Flathouse roof, linger on the, 938
- Flatter Neptune for his trident, 76
- Flattered, being then most, 82 to tears this aged man, 383 whom all the world hath, 22
- Flatterers besieged, by, 213 from friends, distinguish, 180 he hates, 82
- Flatteries, outlandish, compliments and lies, 156 without winking, damn treacherous, 522
- Flattering friends, wooed by, 335 painter, a, 252 tale, hope tells a, 395 unction to your soul, 95 word, with a, 722
- Flattery and falsehood, 949 and obsequiousness, 272 be sure the salve of, 699 imitation is the sincerest, 333 is the food of fools, 190 love of, 198
 more taken in by, 1049
- Flattery never lost on poet's ear, 307 soothe cold ear of death, 244 to name a coward, 295
- Flaunting extravagant quean, 279
- Flavor of an old pair of sox, 714 of mild decay, general, 452 that aristocratic, 607
- Flaw in a donkey's will, 453 it has no kind of, 623 or stain, with no, 924
 which is hidden, 995
- Flaws! what faults! what, 649
- Flax, smoking, 1112
- Flea does all the harm he can, 118 has smaller fleas, 190 in his ear, 127, 1025 spring like a, 164
 that's a valiant, 67
 who had a goodly, 1058
- Fleas, Argos has the curse of, 674 free from bugs and, 972 good for a dog, 687 great, have little, 190 little fleas have lesser, 190 riseth with, 137
 that on him prey, 190 that tease, 811
- Fled Him, I, 748
 I waked she, 162
 like a passing thought, 285 whose lights are, 336
- Fledge of green, April's, 933
- Flee from the rees, 4 when no man pursueth, 1108
- Fleece, put on your, 982 was white as snow, 362
- Fleeces, heavens are out in, 576 of descending snows, 218 trailed its ravelled, 722
- Fleeing to ocean after its life, 501
- Flees on feathered foot, 702
- Fleet, all in the Downs the, 205 is a glance of the mind, 264 O little, 459
 of fishing boats, a, 934 of stars is anchored, 881 so long as we took care of our, 197 that such sweet things should be, 632
- Fleets are useless things, 805 of iron framed, 475 ten thousand, 354
- Fleeth the tyme, 7
- Fleeting as bubbles, gay and, 431 as 't is fair, 343
 guest, please the, 718 is the estate of man, 1011 shibboleths, 652
 show, this world is all a, 336 sweet little soul, 1009
- Flesh and blood can't bear it, 221 and blood, merely, 900 and blood, strong as, 301 and the devil, the world the, 1127 character of all, 1087
 collop of thy own, 14 come out of the, 977 cut her off from thy, 1125 fair and unpolluted, 97, 468
- Flesh fowl or red herring, 606 going the way of all, 128 has dwindled, where, 936 his virgin sword, 220 how art thou fishified, 79 in the soul in the clod, God in the, 486
 is grass, all, 1112 is heir to, the shocks that, 93 is weak, but the, 1116 little breath little, 1009 may suffer, how much the, 596 nor good red herring, 13 of mine, would God this, 630 of my flesh, 1097
 of thy flesh, 1033 shall ye not eat, of their, 1098 strange, 166
 take off my, 313
 that this too solid, would melt, 89
 the spirit strives with, 670 the way of all, 128, 493 this wandering, 832 thorn in the, 1121 tinder to your lecheries, 903 weariness of the, 1110
 what a change of, 129 will not out of the, 17
- Fleshe a pound, your owne, 256
- Flesh-disguise, arrayed in some new, 833
- Fleshed thy maiden sword, 63
- Flesh-pots of Egypt, return to our, 1035
 when we sat by the, 1098
- Flexible, important principles may be, 457
- Flexure, necessity not for, 75
- Flies, close mouth catches no, 1036
 in amber, 111
 molasses catches, 700 of estate and sunneshine, 135 on me, there ain't no, 699 preyed on half-starved, 262 summer will have its, 412
 the higher pitch, 68
- Flight, attained by sudden, 436 brighten as they take their, 202 confused alarms of struggle and, 546
 ended is the, 1091
 in his wild airy, 157 into the wordless, thy free, 537 love is conquered only by, 1051 O time in your, 595 of a bird, 590
 of a joke, 590
 of future days, 150
 of years, unmeasured by the, 306 put old cares to, 619 put them all to, 952 selfsame, the selfsame way, 44 the freedom of my soul, 1051 thy certain, 372 time's all-devastating, 1057
- Flights, poetic, 332
- Flim-flam stories, mere, 1036
- Fling away ambition, 73 but a stone the giant dies, 223 it back upon an earlier time, 417 its ancient splendors, 477

- Flings it a bone, 592 Flint, everlasting, 79
 the firmest, 26
 weariness can snore upon the, 106 Flirtation depraves the appetite, 551 that significant word, 222 Flirtations with the moon, 933
 Flo was fond of Ebenezer, 813 Float along the moonlit floor, 418 between earth and heaven, glories, 425 double swan and shadow, 298 Floating bulwark of our island, 248 hair, 600
 Floats above the wrecks of time, 640 Flock, Christ's chosen, 305 for every lamb for every, 453 however watched, no, 435 just to drive a, to feed, 406 of geese, charged upon a, 952 of sheep that leisurely pass by, 300 of sheep, to have kept a, 141 of thoughts, Oh, 907 pilgrim, 403
 shun the polluted, 897
 tainted wether of the, 46 Flocks in ferny glens are feeding, 516 my father feeds his, 248 of them come, 621
 Flogging in schools, 236 Flood and field, accidents by, 100 bridge that arched the, 409 far murmur of the breaking, 679 gently swelling, 240 half our sailors swallow'd in the, 71 is behind, 676
 leap into this angry, 81 not properly born till, 497 of mortal ills prevailing, 1023 pass the, 858 seems motionless as ice, yon, 298 taken at the, 83
 the matchless the great, 929 the melancholy, 71
 Floods, bathe in fiery, 36 great, flown from simple sources, 53 of love and light, 452 of other being, sweet, 670 passions are likened best to, 21 that are deepest, 258 which are deepest, 864
 Flooding in the main, comes silent, 519 Floor, all that lies on the ocean's, 910 curled up on the, 644 float along the moonlit, 418 forest's ferny, 822 from the, can rise alone, 348 his shadow on the, 410
 I have been given the, 558 modest front of this small, 165 nicely sanded, 251 of heaven is thick inlaid, 47 reorganized upon the, 900 scratching at the, 754 Floor, seems to have the, 661 shadow lies floating on the, 460 slimed Hell's worn, 836 stone from the chancel, 737 stood ninety years on the, 601 unswept, leave the, 757 wrought its ghost upon the, 460 Floors, along the forest, 757 footsteps on old, 807 Florence or Venice not Milan, of, 926 ungrateful, 354
 Florist's triumph, modern, 569
 Florus, no mind to be a, 1009
 Flounder, squat as a, 1025 Flour, back of the, 731 of knighthode and of freedom, 6 of wyfly patience, 7 snowy, 731
 Floures in the mede, of alle the, 4 white and rede, 4 Flourish in immortal youth, 195 princes and lords may, 250 Flourished, whilst bloody treason, 83
 Flourisheth in every soil, it, 477 Flow, aids in the ebb-tide or, 504 fault in its, 651 gently sweet Afton, 286 how well so e'er it, 213 in one down eternity's river, 503 in soft luxurious, 403 like thee, could I, 167 of soul, feast of reason and, 213 Flowed and opened new fountains, numbers, 393 the tide, ebb'd and, 437 Flower, alike they're needful to the, 423 an army's, 737
 and bee, summer cometh with, 370 and fruitage is the world, 411 between the horses' feet and the wheel track, 515 born to bluish unseen, 245 breaks like a, 833
 bright consummate, 153 can say it, 849
 canst not stir a, 749 cherish some, 499 crimson, of battle blooms, 522
 dear common, 525 death lurks in every, 342 every, enjoys the air, 295 every leaf and every, 153 every opening, 199
 glistering with dew, 152
 if life's a, I choose my own, 406 in heaven's high bower, 281 in the crannied wall, 467 is dry, 309
 is forgotten, as a, 883 it fell upon a little western, 42 lightly like a, 469
 look like the innocent, 84 lovely little, is free, 305 lowly as a, 774
 man a, he dies, 231
 meanest, that blows, 302 near the lark's nest, 304 Flower, never loved a tree or, 338 no stronger than a, 107 of all his race, 294 of collie aristocracy, 735 of glorious beauty, 179 of olden sanctities, 556 of our young manhood, 965 of perfect speech, 735 of the field, as a, 1105 of wickedness, 491
 one, no garland, 137 or wearing-stone or open eye, 839 or weed, love is a wild plant, 797 pale and sweet, a tiny, 642 passing all wisdom or its fairest, 417 pleasure like the midnight, 334 proved a beautiful, 78 safety, pluck this, 61 that grow'st beside the way, 525 that once has blown, 1019 that opens but at night, 793 that sad embroidery wears, 159 that seemed the very pattern, 820 that smiles to-day, 133, 368 the sculptured, 372
 the splendid, 619
 the summer's, 108
 thou the tree and I the, 623 tip-tilted like the petal of a, 470 to flower, bee goes from, 1069 unblown a book unread, 568 up there came a, 574 will bloom another year, 385 without perfume, woman without religion is, 551 you are like a, 1065
 you might have sent, 642 Flowers, all the sweetest, 24 and fruits of love, 358 appear on the earth, 1110 are at my feet, 383 are lovely love is flower-like, 317 are made of earthly, 446 are painted in tints, 1084 are springing, sweet, 336 bitter o'er the, 352 by the opening and folding, 371 chaliced, 105
 crown old winter's head with, 165 death of the, 952 deck with fragrant, 439 foam of, 630
 for color, as, 895
 for your table, buy some, 909 green leaves with golden, 597 have their sober use, 646 have their time to wither, 370 howe'er they bloom, spring's, 983
 I find the daisy dear, above all, 1022 idler than the idlest, 579 in her hair, 710
 in the garden meat in the hall, 702

- Flowers in the meade, all the, 4 June reared that bunch of, 485 most can raise the, 467 no path of, leads to glory, 1046 nosegay of culled, 1030
 o' the forest are a' wede away, 240, 936
 of all hue, 152
 of Friendship faded, before the, 836 of the town, 936
 of the valleys, and the, 889 of Thy heart, 338
 of transient fragrance, 231 on the coffin, 578 on the hills, wild, 772 only treads on, 294 promote friendship and social amity, 646
 purple with vernal, 159 say it with, 821
 she comes again, with the, 793 showers for the thirsting, 366 shut of evening, 154 silent above the, her children, 565 so beautiful, when to the, 658 so blue and golden, 433 soil's fertility from wholesome, 60 some bitter o'er the, 352 soonest awake to the, 334 sprang up to see, 619 spring to blossom, 444 sweeter in the air, breath of, 111 sweetest, in all the world, 634 that come and go, of all the, 612
 that do best perfume the air, 111 that fade, loved, 668 that in the forest grew, 24 that laugh to the summer's day, 371 that skirt the eternal frost, 316 they were radiant with glory, 432 touch a hundred, 916 we are the roadside, 757 were mine, all the, 460 when spring unlocks the, 342 white and red, 4 whose names they bear, 1083 with its all-late, 714 without fragrance, no perfect, 789
 Flower-bell, fancy from a, 488 Floweret blow, rain-drop makes some, 504
 can endure the storm, what, 269 of the vale, meanest, 245 Flowerets that shine, 433
 Flower-fed buffaloes, 856 Flowery meads, I would be in, 140 meads in May, 132
 oratory he despised, 200 Flowing cups pass swiftly round, 168 cups, remembered in, 67 curves of beauty, 444 fees and fat contentions, 162 limb in pleasure drowns, 225
 with milk and honey, 1098
- Flown from simple sources, floods have, 53
 with insolence and wine, 148 Flows in fit words, sense, 174
 Floyd Ireson, for his hard heart, 443
 Fluent men, 806
 tongue the only thing, 278 Fluid as nature chaste affectionate, 437
 Flunked and he never lied, he, 639
 Flush as May, 95
 in the sunset's, 833
 Flushed and magnificent song, 693
 Flushes have their laurels, 428
 Flushing his brow, 383
 Flute, a boxwood, 693 bore to the man with the, 685 high and silver, 922 listen to a, 910 of Arcady, many a, 468 played on a silver, 664 Flutes and drums, spring's first, 887 and soft recorders, 149 broken, 807
 of April, hear the, 755 of Greece, 634
 to the tune of, 104
 Flutter round my door, wave and,
 418 Fluttered your Volscians in Corioli, 76
 Fluttering about the fruit-trees, 621 Fly, a tiny metal insect-pin, 683 betimes, then, 141 busy curious thirsting, 223 from pleasure, 1, 232 is hell, which way I, 151 not yet 't is just the hour, 334 O could I, I'd fly with thee, 276 or I can run, I can, 158 poor harmless, 77
 said a spider to a, 394 shell must break before the bird can, 471
 that sips treacle, 205
 those that, may fight again, 143 to him, I may not, 672 to others that we know not of, 93 to the desert fly with me, 338 which way shall I, 151 within a bead of amber, 112 would not kill a, 331
 Flyeth, how fierce soe'er it, 480
 Flyin'-fishes play, where the, 782 Flying chariot, 267
 cloud, 588
 Dutchman, they who see, 675 feather, 631 hour, wait for love one, 691 trapeze, man on the, 640 Fly-wheel of society, habit the, 662
 Foam, far beneath the tainted, 375 house of, 916
 is amber, whose, 166 long furrows of, 712 mist and cloud and, 588 o'er the dark sea's, 503
- Foam of flowers, 630 of perilous seas, 383 on the river, like the, 308 passes like the, 834
 the cruel crawling, 523 too full for sound and, 472 whiter grows the, 668 wiped away the weeds and, 408 Foam-bell more or less of no consequence, 548
 Foaming lips of inebriated virtue, 635
 Fodder is in the shock, 697
 Foe, Byzantium's conquering, 299, 353
 censure from a, 219
 dare molest, no, 950
 grim death my son and, 150 heat not a furnace for your, 72 if, love shall conquer, 815 in strife with many a valiant, 626
 is faithful, know that every, 919 learned to treat my, 965 let in the, 156
 manly, give me the, 293 meet the insulting, 280 my dearest, 117
 never-slumbering, 453
 no friend who never made a, 471 overcome but half his, 149 quarrel with the, 820 that comes with fearless eyes, 764 the, they come, 352
 to favouritism, 727
 to love, unrelenting, 225 to make one worthy man my, 213 to meet the insulting, 80 was it a friend or, 577 where breathes the, 382 with his feet to the, 327 without hate friend without treachery, 599
 Foes, beat down baffling, 547 chief of, 865 comfort friends and, 254 friendly counsel cuts off many, 68 his chest against the, 248 his fellest earthly, 735 judge a man by his, 727 laugh at any but, 214 long inveterate, 174 must have made, 504 proclaim his courage, 173 their friends, make, 425 thrice he routed all his, 176 two, of human happiness, 1064 we were fierce to our, 390 Foe's desolation, 332
 Foeman, death is no, 896 foot of, 1073
 Foeman's bride, be our, 306 frown, 474
 Foemen in the fray, 771 worthy of their steel, 308 Fog and fire, shipwreck and collision, 834
 betwixt us and the sun, 719 comes on little cat feet, 854 comes through, 858
 in my throat, to feel the, 489

- Fog, like a thick midnight, 170 men who live above the, 522 or fire by lake or fen, 158 that may not lift, 926
- Foggy cloud, sits in a, 87
- Foibles, misery from our, 275
- Fold, curtain's mystic, 644 entered that beautiful, 798 like the wolf on the, 356 rose with sweets in every, 453 within its magic, 630
- Folds, blending your, 813
where it hath lain, 789
- Folded arms, lord of, 41 blooms, o'er, 606
glory of his wings, 922 in our infancy, 572 mates, from their, 756 orbs would open, 626
seven, fondly, 642 wing, 888
- Folding of the hands, 1106
- Folio, whole volumes in, 41
- Folk, advise not wayside, 784 as poor as they, 792 dance like a wave, 791 drinking the gospels in, 891 I write about, all the, 784 of all, queerest, 754 should carry bright, 923 that depend on us, 872 to goon on pilgrimages, 5 who lived in Shakespeare's day, 621 with friendly faces, 875
- Folks ain't got no right, 820 ancestors good kind of, 278 at home, far from the old, 567 expect a street parade, 849 got taking me for him, 630 never understand folks they hate, 527
out in front that I jar, 845 say our lives is grand, 870 went to bed, the big, 667 were growing old, 702
- Follies, count o'er their youthful, 309
may cease with their youth, 239 teach us not, others', 465
'tis by our, 659
that themselves commit, 45 youthful, 309
- Follow as the night the day, 91
the king else wherefore born, 470
the vision, 864
to the last gasp, 48
- Followers, to advance her, 28
- Following his plough, 297 take to, where He leads, 609
- Follows but for form, 98
she draws him yet she, 436
- Folly, a tale of, 608 according to his, 1108 another man's, 785
as it flies, shoot, 206 asks the why and wherefore, 406 brood of, 160
but vanity, cured of every,
1054 even in pleasantries, 1017 fool serviceable according to
his, 726
- Folly, forts of, 547 grow romantic, if, 209 has not fellow, his, 743 in all of every age, 1050 ineluctable problem of human, 871 into sin can glide, 309 is all they've taught me, 336 is at full length, 204 is worth, a good, 791 mirth can into, glide, 309 no soul exempt from, 1028 of others, the irritating, 746 of the age, some rooted, 1050 or urbanity, from, 390 shielding men from the effects of, 581
shun'st the noise of, 160 stays and genius goes, 409 stoops to, 899
that seeks through evil good, 443
the slightest, 48 to be wise, 243
to tell women truth, 507 when lovely woman stoops to, 253
- Follye of people, 10
- Fond affection thou hast, my, 388 and wayward thoughts, 296 caress, naught but weakness in, 522 deceiver, 252
for what they have not, 106 imagination, so fair to, 303 kiss and then we sever, 225 never prove so, 80 of quoting Homer, 819
of uttering platitudes, 623 recollection presents them to view, 348
sheep quiet, and few, 406 to rule alone, man too, 213 to shew our clothes, 199 too, for idle scorning, 447 tyrant, late the, 847 unalterably and pesteringly, 472
- Fonder of my staff, I'm growing, 509
- Fondest hope decay, seen my, 338 hopes would not decay, 590 our, boast, 386
- Fondly do we hope fervently do we, 457
folded seven, 642
- Food and drink, with moderate pleasant, 1049
and fire for winter's cold, 894 as it comes, take, 923 as luscious as locusts, 101 at noon he bounded out for, 515 between two kinds of, 1021 crops the flowery, 207 for powder, 63 for unattainable, 890 give us better, 496 harmless sport and simple, content with, 479 his, was glory, 401 human nature's daily, 299 hungry man's, 524
if there's a, 908 minds not craving for, 280
- Food, nothing to eat but, 729 of fools, flattery's the, 190 of love, if music be the, 53 of sweet and bitter fancy, 51 of sweetly uttered knowledge, 27
one man's, is another's poison, 132 pined and wanted, 295 rapture and response of, 887 rats and mice have been Tom's, 99 stomach and no, 65
that appeases hunger, 1042 that dead men eat, 650 to furnish him, 700
was dear, 917
- Fool, a ful gret, 3 all of the people, can not, 457 almost at times the, 900 and jester, white hairs ill become a, 66
and knows not, is a, 706 and still vainly is a, 1066 answer a, 1108
as he was, as much a, 1037 at forty is a fool indeed, 203 be merciful to me a, 659 believed a, 881
brains enough to make a. of himself, 704 can nought be stille, 4 contents that God is not, 583 describe a, 775
difference between a wise person and a, 979 doth think he is wise, the, 51 dulness of the, 47
every inch that is not, 174 every, will be meddling, 1107 from the next they said, 930 gudgeon, for this, 44 hath said there is no God, 362, 1103
he is a, 966
his whole life he is a, 481 hold his tongue, let a, 990 in every age, 214 in the forest, I met a, 49 is counted wise when he holdeth his peace, 1107 is man, greatest, 1050 knows himself to be a, 51, 201 laughter of the, 1109 lies here, 783
man at thirty suspects himself
a, 201
may eek a wys man ofte gyde, 4
me no fools, 947
me to the top of my bent, they,
95 more hope of a, 1108 more knave than, 31, 1037 motley, 49
must now and then be right, 263 no creature smarts so little as
a, 213
old dotting, 131, 1001 old man who will not laugh is
a, 769
one draught makes him a, 54
only good for, 1045
outlives in fame the pious, 193

- Fool, plague on the, 1050 play the, 326
 resolved to live a, 129 said my muse to me, 27 some of the people, 457 south-border couplet, 895 that eats till he is sick, 577 the more, I, 48
 there is more hope of a, 1108 there was, a, 779
 thinks better of a gilded, 1154 though he be a, 181 thought I was just a crazy, 934 to fame, nor yet a, 213 to make me merry, 51 to manage a, 785
 what, first invented kissing, 192 when he holdeth his peace, 1107 with judges, 215, 263
 you damned old, 875
- Fools, a judge amongst, 215, 263 admire, men of sense approve, 211 are my theme, 351
 at the wicket, flannelled, 780 best, are a little wise, 118 by heavenly compulsion, 98 call nature what I call God, 491
 chronicle small beer and suckle, 101 contest for forms of government, 208
 decayed into our condition, 182 eternally, they are, 886 fool me no, 947
 flattery's the food of, 190 for arguments use wagers, 142 gladly, suffer, 1121 gladly to suffer, 811 greatest, oft most satisfied, 1050 in all tongues are called, 51 in idle wishes, 280 in Paradise, no, 668 into a circle, call, 48 learn only in school of experience, 227
 let them use their talents, 54 like you, we thrive on, 216 little wise are the best, 118 make a mock at sin, 1107 measure themselves, greedy, 814
 my lord it is a world of, 472 never-failing vice of, 210
 of nature, 91
 old men know young men are, 28
 only good for, 1045
 or foes, laugh at any but, 214 paradise of, 79, 151, 280 print it and shame the, 212 profit less by wise men, 998 rush in where angels fear to tread, 71, 212
 scarecrows of, beacons of wise men, 564
 should be so deep-contemplative, 49
 simpleton sages and reasoning, 335 still take for that, 749 supinely stay, 280
- Fools that crowd thee so, 168 the privilege of, 1050
 the way to dusty death, lighted, 88 these mortals be, what, 43, 990 to be wise among, 995 to fill the world with, 581 to take and break, 703 twenty-seven millions, mostly, 379, 472
 unfit to be alive, 754 who came to scoff, 175, 251 who roam, they are, 226 wise men avoided the fault of, 998 with the time, thus we play the, 64 words are the money of, 132 young men think old men, 28
- Fool's bolt is soon shot, 16 most artful part is the, 1038 paradise, 607
 talke, 25
- Fools' experiments, I love, 449
 Fooled with hope, 178 Foolery, a little, governs the world, 130
 that wise men have, 47 walks about the orb, 55 Fooles and children cannot lie, 15 bolt is soon shot, 16 Foolish and so false, so, 185 fears of what might pass, 955 like you better, 901 little maiden, 653 or though you be wise, be, 846 questions, answer, 1083 ruin the, 995
 tears would flow, 583 thing, never says a, 184 thing to make a long prologue, 1125
 things to confound the wise, 1120
